Action of Full Body Expected Today On Resolution To Repeal Section

Hasty Retreat

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The Senate Civil Service Committee last night voted to report favorably to the Senate today a resolution repealing the so-called Congressional pensions section of the new Federal retirement law.

The vote was 4 to 2 on an act of Congress that has brought Senate and House members more criticism—both by volume and by degree of bitterness—than any action in many years.

Barring the possibility of delay because of an expected move to couple repeal of the provision with general old-age pension legislation, the committee's action appeared to clinch a Senate vote on the resolution today.

Executive Session

The committee acted in an executive session at the close of an extraordinary night hearing at which representatives of Federal employe groups piled the record high with commendation of so-called pensions for Congressmen—the first substantial public indorsement of the proposition to be heard on Capitol Hill since Congress sent the legislation to the White House for approval by President Roosevelt exactly one month ago yesterday.

Senator Bulow (Democrat), of South Dakota, the committee chairman, joined the Senate sponsor of the law, Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, in voting against repeal, it was reported.

The "aye" votes were cast by Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, leader of the Senate fight on "pensions," and Senators Aiken, of Vermont; Langer, of North Dakota, and Burton, of Ohio (Republicans).

President 'Could' Get Annuity

The repeal resolution which the Senate yesterday gave right of way for today by authorizing the committee to make its report without the customary one-day layover would remove the President, Vice President and members of Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet, as well as members of Congress, from the benefits of the new Federal retirement law.

According to a statement put into the committee record by Senator

New Parking Regulations Go Into Effect Today

New parking restrictions on Constitution Avenue Northwest and one-way regulations on the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway—effective today—were announced last night by the National Capital Parks Office.

The changes, ordered by Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, include:

Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway: One way southbound traffic from 7 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and one-way northbound betwen 4 and 6:30 p. m. The hours formerly were 7:30 to 9:15 a. m. and 4 to 6 p. m.

Constitution Avenue—No parking west of Seventeenth Street from 7 to 9 a. m. and 3 to 6 p. m.—Saturday and Sunday included. The former "no parking" hours on Constitution Avenue were the same except for Saturday and Sunday.

The changes were made to meet demands of the new Federal stagger hour system, it was announced.

Classic Example of Overlapping

Eight U. S. Bureaus Gathering Same Data on Coffee, Spices

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Federal Diary Editor

Here's what is believed to be a record in Government duplication! Eight separate Federal agencies gathering the same data on coffee, tea, and spice imports.

It is of a sort sought to be eliminated by the movement to convert Government to a war basis.

The duplication was unearthed by Representative Karl Stefan of Nebraska, who told the House during debate on the Commerce-State-Justice appropriation bill that all eight agencies finally conferred with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce "because it (the bureau) had more information on tea and spices than anyone else in the country."

"Here was a growing need—in a Government tackling the defense job—for reliable business facts," Stefan explained, "but the bureau's specialists, trained to help everyone seeking facts, were getting lost in pigeonholes of separate organizations."

Four of the bureaus were in a single agency—the War Production Board. They were WPB's Food Section, Research and Statistics, Civilian Supply and the Shipping Committee. Office of Price Administration, the Board of Economic Warfare and the Army's Quartermaster Corps were the others duplicating the work of the bureau.

This classic example of overlapping is being cleared up as the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is fast being converted to a war footing.

For all practical purposes the international part of the bureau is under direct supervision of Vice President Henry Wallace's Board of Economic Warfare. When arrangements were made several weeks ago for the Board of Economic Warfare to take over the international division, Vice President Wallace made this statement, which is interpreted as a crack at other

Ewing Denies Charge He Attacked Girl

Nowhere Near Scene, His Lawyers Say As Government Rests

Attorneys for Orman W. Ewing, onetime Utah politician charged with raping a 19-year-old Government stenographer last October, yesterday opened Ewing's defense with a statement to the jury denying all charges of the young complainant.

Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray, who have asked the death penalty for Ewing, rested the Government's case late in the afternoon after presenting testimony from police officers and a 21-year-old boy friend of the Government girl.

Defense Attorney Charles Henry Smith told the jury of 11 men and 1 woman that defense evidence would show that Ewing did not even see the girl between about 1:30 a. m. October 26—before the assault is alleged to have taken place—until 10 o'clock the next morning when he spoke to her about going to church.

Accused of Breaking in Room

The girl has accused the former Democratic national committeeman of breaking into her room about 2 o'clock that morning and attacking her. She charged that he threatened to kill her if she resisted.

Smith asserted in his opening statement that Ewing had stayed late at the Whitestone Apartments—scene of the alleged attack—working on business matters. He said that the 53-year-old landlord had taken a drink with the girl and Miss Hester Chamberlin, co-owner of the building, after the girl had come in from a "date."

After that, he continued, the two women went to bed, and Ewing, after fixing a bathroom leak for a tenant, retired in a room across the hall from that occupied by the complaining witness.

Witnesses Tell of Seeing Him

During the time that the assault was said to have taken place, he said, Ewing was investigating a noise in the rear of the building and again attending to the leaky bathroom. At about 2:30 a. m., it was said, Ewing met one of his tenants in the hallway while returning to

7 Billion Tax Parley Today At Capitol

Administration's Program Is About Ready for Showdown

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

The Administration's seven to nine billion war tax program last night was about ready for a showdown with Congress.

A preview of undisclosed Treasury recommendations will be presented to Congressional tax leaders at a preliminary conference today, after weeks of exploratory digging into every remaining revenue source.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee and Chairman Walter F. George of the Senate Finance Committee will represent the Capitol's two tax-making groups.

Common Ground Sought

Participating will be Colin F. Stam's joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue staff and Undersecretary of the Treasury John L. Sullivan with Treasury staff experts.

Avowed object is to reach a common ground basis on which hearings can be opened, probably early next month, before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Although the President outlined the seven to nine billion dollar tax goal in his budget message in January, and a few subsequent talks were held, no detailed program has crystalized up to now.

Conferences Held

Conferences have been held since January in an effort to iron out in advance differences on controversial issues likely to delay the bill once it hits the House.

Most explosive of these are the long-standing dispute over the Treasury's twice rejected invested capital base for excess profits taxation, joint income tax returns and possible use of a salary withholding tax as a method of collecting increased individual income levies. Expected Treasury recommendation of the latter has been countered by growing Congressional demands for a sales tax.

Congressional tax leaders have opposed setting any specific revenue goal and have questioned whether "the traffic will bear" the seven to

2-Cent Rise in Milk Price Threatens D. C. Consumers

To consumers already alarmed by the prospect of a 1-cent milk price increase there came yesterday the threat that the increase may be 2 cents instead.

Representatives of Washington dairies told a public hearing that if the milk producers' request for a 1-cent increase is granted, milk will "have" to go up another cent to cover increased distributors' costs.

These costs, it was explained, would include larger income earned by routemen through commissions and larger salaries. Labor will demand these salaries, the distributors said, to keep it apace with the farmers' gains through the 1-cent increase.

Representatives of the dairies, testifying against the increase, included Coleman Gore, production manager of Embassy-Fairfax Dairy; John F. Hillyard, attorney for Wakefield Dairy, and Arthur E. Thompson, president of Thompson's Dairy.

The hearing, held in rooms G and H of the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, is expected to be concluded there this morning.

Gore told the hearing that one good way to keep milk prices down is to eliminate for the duration of the war all "frills" connected with sale of milk. He proposed these changes:

Every-other-day delivery of milk to homes instead of every-day delivery.

No special deliveries.

Fish Agrees To Testify in Viereck Trial

Congressman Will Appear Tomorrow For Government Against Nazi Agent

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

Representative Hamilton Fish has agreed to appear as a witness against the German agent, George Sylvester Viereck, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Fish and Viereck were declared Tuesday to have had an arrangement for 125,000 copies of a speech written by Viereck, and delivered in the Senate, to be franked by the late Ernest Lundeen, (Farm Laborite), of Minnesota, to persons on Fish's mailing list.

Special Prosecutor William Power Maloney asserted that Fish ordered his secretary, George Hill, 45, to mail out the speeches. "A poor dupe," Maloney called Hill, who is under a 2 to 6 year prison sentence for swearing he did not know Viereck.

Appearance Delayed

Last night Fish would not say whether his testimony would support the charge Maloney made before the jurors, who are trying Viereck in the District Court of Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

"I expect," Fish told The Post, "to appear before the jury and I will make my statement at that time."

Special Prosecutor Edward J. Hickey, jr., first asked Fish to go on the witness stand this afternoon. But, Hickey said, the Congressman said he would be busy and asked for his appearance to be put off until tomorrow.

In courtroom, the jurors were told of the alleged dealings of three other anti-interventionist members of Congress with one of Viereck's Nazi propaganda agencies.

Sigfrid H. Hauck, president of Flanders Hall, Inc., a publishing house, already had testified that Viereck got control of his company. He said Viereck put $22,500 into it and got back only $4500—which came out of the proceeds of sales to the official propaganda agency, German Library of Information, of which Viereck was the registered agent.

Published Book by Day

Hauck testified that Flanders Hall received and published a book called "We Must Save the Republic" over the signature of Representative Stephen A. Day (Republican), of Illinois. Viereck has called Day as a defense witness.

Hauck testified that his firm received and set up in type, but did not publish, a book entitled "Who's Who Among the Warmongers," with the signature of former Senator Rush Holt (Democrat) of West Virginia.

Viereck summoned Holt as a defense witness, but the West Virginia Federal marshal returned the Railway Feeding Burma Road Periled; Australia Reveals Raid on Northern City

By the Associated Press

Japanese warplanes bombed the United Nations' naval base of Port Darwin on the northern rim of Australia for the first time today in the invaders' uninterrupted march of conquest in the Pacific.

The number of bombs dropped by the Japanese and the extent of the raid were not yet known, Prime Minister John Curtin said.

Darwin is about 675 miles south of the Japanese-captured Dutch Island base of Amboina. It is one of the few naval bases left to the United Nations in their hope of eventually counterattacking in the Pacific.

On the land front the Burma military supply road to China apparently was endangered—so much so that a government evacuation department began moving its own employes out of Rangoon, port head for the Burma road, the lifeline for China.

A sharp turn for the worse on the Rangoon front—that front upon which so much depends in the Allied aim to aid the sadly ill-armed Chinese—already had been indicated in information that the fighting front had been advanced to within some 20-odd miles from the main railroad by which Rangoon feeds the Burma Road.

Foe Forces Crossing of Bilin

This was accomplished by a Japanese crossing of the Bilin, the middle of three north-south rivers which like parallel extended fingers protect the western approaches to Rangoon, itself lying just across the Gulf of Martaban. Fighting was developing near the third and westernmost of these streams, the Sittang, in an area northeast of Rangoon.

Here, the enemy's effort was to skirt Martaban along its northern shores, striking then due west to the Rangoon-Mandalay railway and thus obtaining position for turning south upon Rangoon itself.

Chinese Attack Unconfirmed

There were indications also that the invader was marshaling for a frontal assault upon the city by sea and air through the gulf and that some 200 miles to the north of the present heaviest action—at Chiengmai in the upper section of Japanese-dominated Thailand—he was assembling his own parachute

Terrific Artillery Barrage Softens Strongly Held Line

By the United Press

Moscow, Feb. 18.—Tank-led Russian troops advancing behind a curtain of artillery fire were reported today to have broken through a strongly fortified German intermediate line on the central front and chased the enemy westward.

(A Vichy broadcast heard in London said the Russians had started a big scale offensive in the Crimea, concentrating on Feodosiya at the neck of the Kerch Peninsula.)

The midnight communique said only that the Red army was continuing "offensive fighting against the enemy, inflicting heavy losses in machines and manpower."

[It added, according to the Associated Press, that the Russians had destroyed 35 enemy planes—aloft and aground.]

Military dispatches said that after penetrating the German line at a number of points, smashing many of the strongholds to which it was anchored, the Russians were "ad-

Willemstad, Curacao, Netherlands West Indies, Feb. 18.—Alert United States bombers drove U-boats from the Aruba coast today and frustrated a repetition of the Monday raid in which seven United Nations tankers were attacked and the big refinery was shelled from the sea.

The submarines were sighted from both land and sea when they surfaced and bombers flew at once to the attack. The U-boats dived quickly without launching torpedoes and the aircraft were unable to carry out a concentrated attack.

At the time of the U-boats' appearance, one tanker, the Monagas, still was burning at sea northwest of Aruba as a result of the Monday assault and all hope of saving her was abandoned. Four of her crew were still missing.

On the beach near Aruba were the tankers Pedernals and Arkansas, the latter a Texaco vessel, but the Shell tanker Rafaela was safe at Curacao after being torpedoed between Curacao and Aruba.

It was reported that 37 out of 78 crew members had been saved from three vessels, the Tia Juana, Oranjestad and San Nicolas.

Costa Rican Chief Warns of Perils

San Jose, Costa Rica, Feb. 18 (AP).—President Calderon Guardia warned his people today of the danger of enemy raids and said that Costa Rica "may become a field of operations for the powers trying to commit aggression against the United States' continental positions—especially the Panama Canal."

Costa Rica was the first American republic to declare war on the Axis after Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor.

Japs Prepare New Assault Upon Bataan

Planes and Artillery Are Bombarding Our Forces Continuously

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

American air forces in the Far East have made two new attacks on Japanese invasion hordes in the Dutch East Indies, destroying four enemy fighter planes, damaging an air base and probably sinking two transports.

This was announced yesterday by the War Department in communiques telling of additional enemy reinforcements arriving in the Philippines and of continuous heavy bombardment of American-Filipino positions in Bataan by newly strengthened Jap air and artillery forces.

Fighters Turn Bomber

One of the new air attacks on Jap forces in the Indies was a foray of nine Army P-40 pursuit planes against the enemy-held air field at Palembang in southern Sumatra.

Although built to shoot down other airplanes rather than assault ground objectives, the little Curtiss fighters were loaded with light bombs and sent against Palembang, once the chief oil port of the Indies and now an advance base for the expected invasion of Java.

En route, six Jap pursuit planes jumped them. Four of the enemy craft were shot down in the ensuing fight and the other two fled while the nine American planes continued on to their objective.

Score Direct Hits

They bombed the enemy air field and all returned safely to their base. The extent of damage done to the airdrome was not determined, the War Department said.

American flying fortresses made the other attack. A flight of the big four-engined bombers struck at Japanese ships off Bangka Island, near Sumatra, some 250 miles

Christians, Jews Sign Agreement On Fundamentals

The National Conference of Christians and Jews announced yesterday that leaders of the Nation's three faiths had joined in signing a declaration of fundamental religious beliefs held in common by Protestants, Catholics and Jews.

The declaration, first of its kind in America, was issued in observance of National Brotherhood Week, which has for its theme "Build Understanding—Defeat Intolerance." Thirteen Washington religious leaders are among the signatories.

OCD Director Makes the Move 'Without Comment'

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

Director James M. Landis yesterday lost no time in accepting the proferred resignation of Dancer Mayris Chaney from her position at the office of Civilian Defense, and simultaneously lopped four former mayors from the OCD setup by abolishing their jobs.

The ousted former mayors are T. Semmes Walmsley, of New Orleans, chief inspector general, $22.22 a day; Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, associate director, State and local cooperation, $8000 a year; Bernard F. Dickmann, of St. Louis, and Joseph D. Sholtz, of Louisville, inspector's general, $6500 a year.

The four former mayors were appointees of the former OCD director, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, who recently resigned.

In abolishing the Office of Inspectors General, and the Know Your Government section because they were "of no further value," Director Landis took OCD posts from under 13 other officials of one kind or another.

Announcing yesterday's action, his first major move since taking over the leadership of OCD last week, Director Landis declared, "It is urgently necessary that OCD immediately be stripped for emergency action."

Miss Chaney, blonde dancer friend of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wrote Director Landis yesterday and offered to "step aside gladly, effective at your convenience" from her $4600 directorship of folk and children's

Holidays 'Out' for Duration, Nelson Tells U. S. Industry

By the Associated Press

Most, if not all, of the Nation's customary holidays were virtually abolished for the duration of the war yesterday, as far as factories producing war supplies are concerned.

Asserting the country is "fighting for its life," Donald M. Nelson, War Production director, issued a peremptory "request" for full production on Washington's Birthday, which is to be celebrated next Monday.

"If in any plant a holiday is scheduled for next Monday—cancel it," he said.

The decree was officially regarded as a likely precedent for following holidays, including Memorial Day, the Fourth of July, which both fall on Saturday, and perhaps even for a request that workers stay at their tasks on Labor Day, September 7, which is written as a holiday into virtually every labor contract.

Nelson told both industry and labor:

"If we lose the battle of production we lose the war. We must not have a Washington's Birthday shutdown anywhere on the production line."

He offered the services of the War Production Board to settle any disputes arising under contract terms over working next Monday. "If in any plant there is disagreement as to the terms under which work will be done on Wash-

3 Blasts Shatter Gigantic Tanker

Seamen Disagree On Whether Mines Or Sub Hit Vessel

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 18.—The Atlantic Refining Co.'s 19,400-ton tanker E. H. Blum was abandoned off the Atlantic coast last night by her crew of 40, who expressed divergent opinions when landed at Norfolk by a rescue ship as to whether their vessel had been torpedoed or had struck a minefield.

Two members of the crew suffered minor injuries in escaping in four lifeboats from the tanker, which was still afloat when they last saw her. Survivors interviewed here by newsmen agreed that the tanker was wrecked by three explosions spaced about 15 minutes apart. None saw a submarine, they said.

Capt. William L. Evans, of Philadelphia, declined to talk about the wrecking of the ship.

The E. H. Blum, built within six months at a cost of four million dollars, is with her sister ship the largest all-welded tanker ever built. She had a speed of 13 knots and a capacity of 154,000 barrels of oil. She was launched last March 15 at Chester, Pa.

The crew was picked up by a rescue vessel within an hour after their four lifeboats were launched.

Ernest Lee Thomas, able seaman, of Jasper, Fla., who was on lookout duty on the forecastle head when the first explosion rocked the tanker, gave this account:

"I saw a light, which I took to be the m stlight of another ship, about 75 yards off the starboard bow. I reported this light to the bridge and about 15 seconds later the captain ordered full speed ahead and hard right. Then there was an explosion and the bow came up 5 or 6 feet. I thought we had rammed a submarine. The tanker listed to port. I believe we were torpedoed.

Second Blast Halts Ship

"The captain gave the order to stand by the lifeboats but not to lower away. Fifteen minutes later there was a second explosion and the skipper gave the order to abandon ship. After the second blast the ship stopped dead. That is why I believe the third explosion, which took lace after my lifeboat had left the tanker, must have been from a torpedo, because a motionless ship could not run into a mine."

Fireman Irving Blumenburg, who was in the engine room, said mines instead of torpedoes wrecked the tanker because the bulkheads "sort of collapsed" instead of "blowing upward as they would have done if we had been struck by torpedoes."

Boatswain John Johansen, of Larvik, Norway, said he believed the ship had struck a mine field "because I saw no explosion flashes."

Brazil "Taking Steps"

Rio De Janeiro, Feb. 18 (AP).—Government officials said today Brazil was taking steps "to safeguard her national interests" as a result of the German submarine sinking of the Brazilian steamer Buarque off the United States East Coast, and recalled that such sinkings during the world war brought Brazil into the conflict against Germany.

These sources expressed the personal belief, however, that at least for the present Brazil would not declare war on the Axis.

One official said the government's action would depend partly on whether Chile broke relations with the Axis, thus making a solid South American front except for Argentina.

Missing 'Culprit'

Pierre Cot Ridicules Riom Trial

By Ruth Cowan
Associated Press Staff Writer

The missing sixth defendant, one of those blamed by Vichy for the German defeat of France, spoke out yesterday in behalf of the five others and described their trial, which begins today, as "a judicial comedy."

He is Pierre Cot, minister of air in the cabinet of former Premier Leon Blum, one of the men on trial. Cot is living in Chevy Chase with his American-born wife, the former Louisa Phelps, of New York and Boston, and their three children.

Besides Blum, another former premier, Edouard Daladier; the former generalissimo, Maurice Gustave Gamelin; Pierre Jacomet, former administrator of national defense industries, and Guy La Chambre, another former air minister, are to be tried by a special tribunal set up by the Petain regime to determine their responsibility for the fall of France.

Fled After Armistice

Cot left France at the time of the armistice, disgusted, he said, that the government would not flee to French Northern Africa and continue to fight from there.

The other five have been in prison more than a year, and as excitement grows hourly in Vichy, one newspaper said of the forthcoming trial at Riom, 20 miles distant, that it "may become one of the most important in our history."

PIERRE COT
It's a "Judicial Comedy"

"It is a political trial," scoffed Cot, a lean, youngish chap with the air of a scholar. He was a professor in a French law school and he has lectured at Yale University. He is now doing research in the Library of Congress.

"It is a judicial comedy, whose purpose is to put the blame for the French defeat on the political adversaries of the Vichy government," he continued.

"Convicted" by Petain

This trial will be held partly in secret, he said. "What is more important, Marshal Petain, three months ago, interfered in the business of the court, declared we were culprits and sentenced us to perpetual imprisonment.

"After this decision, you cannot expect the judges to be free. They are obliged to adopt the point of view of Marshal Petain.

"Even in Germany at the time of the fire in the Reichstag, Hitler left more freedom to the court. If you want to appreciate the justice of Petain and Darlan, remember the Dreyfus case!"

Cot said he was proud of certain accusations they have made against him. "They charge me with having delivered armaments and planes to the Spanish republic. Of course, I did it!" he said. I only regret not to have been able to send them more."

Explains French Security

He said he was charged with leading Parliament to believe when he was air minister in 1936 and 1937 that the security of France was assured.

"I made this statement in consideration of our agreement not only with England but also with Czecho-Slovakia and Russia. I have always been a believer in the necessity of an alliance with Russia, and I still consider that this alliance would have provided us security and peace."

Cot said he was working with De Gaulle's Free French movement. "I have always been an adversary of fascism," he said.

Hostesses Scored For Killing Time Of U. S. Officers

Hostesses were scolded in the House yesterday for luring Army and Navy officials to benefit teas and the officers themselves were rebuked for going.

The critic was Representative Andrews (Republican), of New York, ranking minority member of the House Military Committee, who called for abolition of "dances for Dakar, sings for sailors, smokes for selectees and music for Marines."

He suggested that if hostesses wanted to raise money for these worthy purposes they do so directly and stop what he called "the battle of the Waldorf Astoria' 'and "the battle of the Mayflower."

"I've heard a lot of criticism about it from men on the street, who protest about these social shows in times like these."

vancing toward the western border" of the Soviet.

Nazis Flee Village

Pursuing the German after they abandoned a big village, the Red troops ran into the line defended by extensive fields of barbed wire and numerous batteries of artillery and mine throwers.

Artillery, tanks and infantry opened a concerted attack, forcing the German command to order its infantry to take up positions on the snowy fields in an attempt to ward off a break-through.

Soviet artillery pulverized 36 enemy pillboxes, enabling the tanks and infantry to stream through at many points and dislodge the Germans from their key points.

Soviet artillerymen were credited with equally effective work on the northwestern front, where the Red army first drove a giant wedge 62 miles westward and continued with thrusts into White Russia.

Firing at point-blank range, the big guns smashed a determined counterattack and the Germans withdrew, abandoning 15 cannon, 3000 shells and 50 horses.

Big Guns Hauled Up

Seeking to wipe out stubborn holdout points in an unidentified sector, the Russians hauled up their guns during the night to positions within 800 to 1000 feet of the German fortifications.

At such short range 21 guns blasted the Germans out of one village and cleared the way for an infantry advance.

(The London Star said a Russian detachment had broken through at some points on the Rzhev-Vyazma front where "strong Soviet forces are exerting tremendous pressure on the German lines still holding the roads to Smolensk."

(The London radio also said Marshal Timoshenko was celebrating his forty-seventh birthday today. He is directing the Red army offensive in the Ukraine.)

Col. Georgi Baidukov, Russian airman who took part in the nonstop flight from Moscow to Vancouver, Wash., in 1937, commanded a squadron of four planes which attacked a flight of 31 German planes and shot down five of them.

Congress Units To Probe Loss Of Normandie

Congress yesterday decided to conduct its own investigation—possibly a joint inquiry—into the cause of the fire that wrecked the United States transport Lafayette, formerly the French luxury liner Normandie, at its New York pier two weeks ago.

Leaders emphasized that the probe should not "in any way embarrass" the special Navy board of inquiry or the Federal Bureau of Investigation which are examining factors in the disaster.

The Senate, by unanimous vote, authorized its Naval Affairs Committee to conduct an inquiry of the fire and the capsizing of the huge vessel, approving a resolution offered by Senator Arthur K. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who charged the vessel was "sunk by an enemy at home."

Shortly afterward, the House Naval Affairs group ordered its own inquiry and instructed Chairman Carl Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, to appoint a six-man subcommittee to holding hearings in New York at a date to be announced.

Joint Action Possible

Vinson indicated the two committees would work jointly. He hoped the investigation could be started before the end of the week. He told newsmen he had discussed the possibility of a joint inquiry with Chairman David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachuseets, of the Senate group.

It is understood that Vinson's committee is planning to hold public sessions but Walsh declined to reveal whether he would agree to such a plan.

Representative Walter A. Lynch (Democrat), of New York, later demanded on the House floor that the present inquiry be halted "to permit the true facts to be disclosed by pitiless publicity." He contended that "carelessness, negligence and incompetence" were responsible.

Drewry Heads Group

Vinson named seven members—four Democrats and three Republicans—to his special subcommittee. They were Reps. Patrick H. Drewry, Va., chairman; Ed V. Izac, Calif.; Lansdale G. Sasscer, Md., and James J. Heffernan, N. Y., all Democrats, and Melvin J. Maas, Minn.; James W. Mott, Ore., and George J. Bates, Mass., Republicans.

Lynch contended in his speech that the people want assurance that those responsible for the disaster "be brought to a bar of justice and, if convicted, stripped of their rank and punished according to their deserts."

Referring to Japan's sneak attack on Pearl Harbor, he said:

"Carelessness, negligence and incompetence lost us a part of our fleet in the Pacific. Carelessness, negligence and incompetence lost us more tonnage in the safe waters of the North River than has been occasioned by enemy submarines in the Atlantic Ocean.

Chiang Talks With Gandhi; Wife Gets Spinning Wheel

Calcutta, Feb. 18 (AP).—Working on a charka—Indian spinning wheel—Mohandas K. Gandhi talked today with Chiang Kai-shek, China's generalissimo, who is making a strategic wartime visit to India.

After the talks, which lasted altogether four and a half hours, Gandhi presented the yarn on which he was working to the generalissimo and the wheel itself to Mme. Chiang, who accompanied her husband.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Indian leader, who received Chiang at Birla Park, where Gandhi is staying, said the Mahatma and the generalissimo discussed all matters concerning the Indian and Chinese world.

The President's Day

By International News Service

KEEP OUT: Polishing off his breakfast in double-quick time, the President doled out the orders for the day and sat down to a pile of memos, dispatches and certain evidence in the case of Vichy, France and the Axis. Midmorning, the lean, immaculate Mr. Welles clicked briskly in. For well over an hour the President and the Undersecretary of State discussed pro and con the facts and possible fancies in the Vichy case. All in all, the President found the Vichy alibis for aiding the Axis in North Africa a little hard to swallow. At the President's direction, Welles picked up the phone, called Vichy Ambassador Henry-Haye for an immediate session on the State Department carpet.

REPORT: Fifty minutes later Welles called the President, gave him a detailed account of the conference with Henry-Haye, suggested holding further talks with the Vichy representative.

SECLUSION: Pretty well cleaned up on detail and paper work, the President let fly with one long list of military promotion nominations and decided to stay over at the house—where seclusion, privacy and secret callers are more possible.

GRIND: With the far-flung battlefronts growing more complex by the hour, the President had a lot of work to grind out, much heavy thinking and judgment-making to do. On top of all this the writing gang waited, pencils poised, for some ground work on the speech the President will deliver to the Nation Monday night.

FIRESIDE ANGER: Late in the afternoon, Playwright Robert Sherwood, Judge Samuel Rosenman and Archibald MacLeish got the come-in, found the President has very definite ideas of his forthcoming fireside chat. Thoroughly aroused and angered by the wild-fire spread of lies and unfounded arguments against the conduct of the war, the President's fireside chat Monday night will have strong overtones or scorn and fury directed at "the Cliveden set" who both originate and spread "such scurrilous lies." The President intends to get out the big bull whip and set the United States straight on several rumors and debates currently tilting the apple cart.

NIGHT: The President was in no mood to enjoy light chit-chat last night, went back to working on his speech immediately after dinner, stayed close to the phone and the war dispatches until very late.

Negro Churches Pledge War Aid

Spokesmen for the Fraternal Council of Negro Churches of America, claiming to represent 6,000,000 colored church-goers, yesterday pledged full support for America's war effort, but asked for an abrupt end of discrimination against colored people in war industries and the armed forces.

Seven representatives of the congress, headed by Dr. W. H. Jernagin of Washington, presented a statement to President Roosevelt through his secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre.

Eire Made Out of Bounds For U.S. Forces

By the Associated Press

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 18.—The Belfast telegraph said today that United States Army headquarters in Northern Ireland had issued orders making Eire "out of bounds" for the American troops.

British troops are permitted to cross the frontier from Northern Ireland in civilian clothes and many unofficially spend their leave from this black-out area among the lights and well-stocked restaurants of nonwarring Eire.

Ambassador Winant Pays Visit to A. E. F.

With the United States Army in Northern Ireland, Feb. 18 (AP).—United States Ambassador John G. Winant made a flying trip from London today to visit United States troops at bases in Northern Ireland and called them "a great outfit."

Accompanying him on the tour were Maj. Gen. James E. Chaney, commander of United States forces in the British Isles, and Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, commander of the North Ireland force.

The Ambassador, who was a captain in the United States Army Air Corps during World War No. 1, ate his meals with the soldiers and chatted freely with them.

He said he found the men, mostly from the Middle Western States, cheerful, healthy and eager.

"We inspected the camps and ate the food," Winant said of his inspection trip. "Except for a few colds all the men are well. I noticed that each man had four blankets, and ate steak for lunch, along with potatoes, turnips, tea and cake. Sanitation in the camp was good and everywhere there was the highest morale."

Nazi Production Reported at Peak

London, Feb. 18 (U.P.).—German industries have hit an all-time high in war production and are turning out "large numbers" of gliders, presumably for new spring invasions, a ministry of economic warfare spokesman said today.

The Germans gave invasion gliders their first major test at Crete.

This is a fact:

If you were less than 21 when Prohibition started, you have never tasted such whiskey as the Old Overholt now being offered at bars and liquor stores.

The reason is simple.

This is the first time since 1920 that America's favorite bottled in bond rye has been a ripe and mellow six years old.

And if you think that extra age doesn't make a marvelous difference in this finest of rye whiskies—the best advice we can give you is try it, and taste for yourself.

Just ask for Old Overholt, next time you're at a bar, and you'll thank us for passing the word along to you.

British Convoys Run Mediterranean

3 Enemy Cruisers, Destroyer Damaged; 5 Planes Shot Down

London, Feb. 18.—The British Mediterranean fleet has taken new convoys through central Mediterranean waters in the face of a strong challenge by Axis surface and aircraft, damaging in the process three enemy cruisers and a destroyer and shooting down at least five enemy planes, the admiralty announced today.

These operations extended from February 13 through February 16.

Two British merchant ships were damaged by Axis bombers and subsequently had to be sunk by British action, since they could not be towed, but all the rest safely reached their destination.

This, while unstated, was believed to be Malta, mid-Mediterranean island fortress which has sustained about 1600 air raids since the start of the war. It also was indicated the convoys may have started at Alexandria.

Today's fresh proof that the Mediterranean is still, in part, an avenue for British supply movement came three days after Prime Minister Churchill had declared that "the Mediterranean is closed and all our transports have to go around the Cape of Good Hope."

Authorities said, however, that Churchill was referring to through transit of the Mediterranean. Malta formerly was supplied by convoys which made the dash through the menacing western Mediterranean, accompanied by a powerful battle fleet. But that was before the British lost the battleship Barham and the aircraft carrier Ark Royal in the Mediterranean and the battleship Prince of Wales and the battle cruiser Repulse in the Orient.

The admiralty's announcement of four days of running action expanded previous announcements that two Axis cruisers and a destroyer had been hit.

The third cruiser, it was disclosed, was one carrying 8-inch guns and was twice torpedoed by a British submarine in the dispersal of a strong enemy force of cruisers and destroyers which was "severely handled" in its unsuccessful effort to get near enough to attack the convoys.

Axis Forces Retire to New Line in Libya

By the Associated Press

Cairo, Feb. 18.—The Axis army in Cirenaica has retired to a general line running 40 miles from Tmimi to El Mechili after several days of widespread patrol activity in the broad noman's land separating it from the British, official advices said today.

(This meant an Axis withdrawal of 20 miles, the United Press said.)

British patrols were active in this area, with strong fighter protection, but encountered no opposition. The center of the Tmimi-El Mechili line lies about 90 miles west of Tobruk, in the Cirenaican hump.

In London, military observers expressed the belief that a recent attack by R. A. F. American-made Kittyhawks, which cost the German air force 30 planes, had prompted the German withdrawal. They said also that the area south of a line running from El Mechili to El Zabala had been cleared of Axis troops.

War Sidelights

Milwaukee's Boy Mayor Joins Navy

Milwaukee, Feb. 18 (AP).—The boy Mayor of Milwaukee, who holds that in addition to guns and machines victory depends on recruiting better men than the Axis hordes, has decided to lend his hand in the fight.

So the Navy will get the services of Carl F. Zeidler, 6-foot, 186-pound package of dynamic energy whose charm and love of people have gained him such sobriquets as "the personality kid" and "the Nation's oomphiest mayor."

Zeidler, who at 32 and in his first political campaign ended the 24-year mayoral tenure of Socialist Daniel W. Hoan, in 1940, has enlisted in the Naval Reserve and announced today that he would resign his $12,300-a-year municipal office.

At the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, Commander O. F. Heslar said the mayor probably would be assigned to recruiting or promotional duties.

He Knew Him When

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Benny Nussbaum, New York paperhanger, knew Adolf Hitler when Hitler was known as plain Schickelgruber, the paperhanger.

They were members, he said, of the same paperhangers' union in Germany.

"He was not only a crackpot," said Nussbaum today, "but he couldn't put paper up straight. He was a punk soldier, too. We both were privates. I rose to the rank of sergeant. He never got higher than corporal."

Nussbaum, who became an American citizen shortly after he arrived in this country 19 years ago, has a memento from Hitler—a medal sent to him by mail in 1935, awarded "in the name of the Reichsfuehrer and chancellor of the German people for conspicuous bravery and service to the fatherland in the last war."

Quisling Decrees

Ship's Officer Tells of Two Sea Escapes

By Bill Brinkley
Post Staff Writer

The bombers were the worst, Second Officer Finn Burnby said. Not because the death they spat out was any more certain than the death from the U-boat torpedoes or the quick end that would come against a stone wall if the Nazis caught him when he fled Norway on skis. But because they first circled overhead, like vultures torturing their victims.

BURNBY

The bombers, one French and one Italian, roared over as the British freighter plowed its way to Suez. One emptied its belly toward the ship and was away as a bomb found the mark. The slender Norseman Burnby was to the ack-ack, aiming at the plane's tail. Like a sky-rocket, it suddenly burst brilliantly apart, tumbling into the calm Mediterranean.

Second officer Burnby could then check up another episode in one of the most amazing odysseys of escape from death to come out of the war. This modern Ulysses was at the Norwegian Legation yesterday with his story.

Attacked by German Raider

It began April 7, 1940.

Bound for the Far East, Burnby's merchant ship left Norway that day. Out to sea, news of the German invasion of Norway came and with it the order to turn back to port. Going on, Burnby's ship came in August into the Indian Ocean.

"A German raider attacked us in a thick fog," Burnby, in trim blue uniform setting off the Norse blondness, related in Norwegian accent. "We tried to escape but had to surrenler when our foredeck was badly damaged by shellfire.

"We were placed aboard another captured Norse vessel under a German prize crew. I discovered my own brother, Sven, among the prisoners."

The German officers, taking the ship to Bordeaux, began a period of Nazi evangelizing, Burnby said, trying to persuade the Norsemen of the glories of Hitlerism, but getting no converts.

"Six miles off Bordeaux we were attacked by a British sub, which contacted with three torpedoes. I saw many of my friends die and that is the part I do not like to think about. Eighty-seven persons were lost. My brother and I clung for several hours to wreckage of the ship."

The pair of them were taken to a German concentration camp near Bordeaux. "The only article of clothing we got was pajamas, which we had to live in all the time," Burnby said.

Laid Plans to Escape

After three months in the camp, Burnby and his bbrother were repatriated to their native Norway, now ridden with Nazi domination. Three months more and they had their stomachs full of it. They made careful plans to escape.

"We didn't even tell our sisters we were going," Burnby said. "We told only our mother and father. We left at night on our skis. We traveled across the mountains and one dark night went across the border only 500 yards from where the Germans were stationed."

In five months the brothers, calculating every step they could, made their way from Sweden to Finland, to Russia, then through Turkey, where they took ship. Following the bombing in the Mediterranean, the ship limped into port after two harrowing days and nights.

As the final leg of the journey, they were 72 days aboard a British troop transport, bringing them from Suez to South Africa and to New York.

Brother Sven is now on his way to Australia. Any time now brother Finn will be back in this war, transporting vital materials to the people who fight to free his Norway.

House Earmarks Funds to Comb West Coast Area

Warned of a Japanese fifth-column menace, the House yesterday made $30,000 of a $221,209,100 supply bill available immediately for a Justice Department investigation in California, Washington, Oregon, Alaska and Hawaii.

The bill, carrying funds for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments and the judiciary for the year starting July 1, was then passed unanimously and sent to the Senate.

An amendment by Rep. Carter (Republican) California, adopted unanimously, earmarked the $300,000 for the Japanese investigation. Carter told the House that the West Coast was endangered by possible sabotage by Japanese residents and persons of Japanese descent.

"We are going to run the Japanese out of Hawaii or they're going to run us out," declared Rep. Rankin (Democrat) Mississippi, who said he favored putting every Japanese in a concentration camp.

"Once a Jap, always a Jap," shouted Rankin. "You can't any more regenerate a Jap than you can reverse the laws of nature."

He added that the West Coast and Hawaii were "teeming with spies and Fifth Columnists."

Representative Costello (Democrat), of California, said that no sincere effort had been made to remove Japanese from California, and warned that "if we don't move in advance of that sabotage, Pearl Harbor will be insignificant to what will happen there."

150 Japs Seized

Santa Maria, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP).—FBI agents, in a surprise raid on Japanese aliens in the Santa Maria-Guadalupe area today, took 150 into custody and indicated the list might reach 200.

Reports that Japanese have been releasing carrier pigeons caused the Los Angeles board of supervisors to order registration of the birds. Unregistered pigeons wil be regarded as contraband.

Sacramento, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP).—Henry S. Murimoto, wealthy alien Japanese, was sentenced to San Quentin Prison today for an indeterminate period and fined $500 after pleading guilty to possessing firearms. His plea for probation was denied.

Wandering Nipponese

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Feb. 18 (INS).—With most farm, labor and civilian defense officials in the Rocky Mountain region hanging out the "not welcome sign," ousted Japanese from California tonight traveled eastward through New Mexico toward unknown destinations.

Peace officers at Albuquerque estimated that at least 150 Japanese traveled eastward on U. S. Highway No. 66 during the day. The Japanese were not expected to stop in New Mexico as Acting Gov. C. R. Quintana announced his State had a labor surplus. In Colorado State Publicity Director Robert Warren has banded together a group of leaders from all walks of life in his campaign against acceptance of the Japanese.

Montana doesn't want the Japanese either, although Idaho will accept them provided the Federal Government will furnish military guards to watch over them.

Hohenlohe Seized

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—An official at Ellis Island, who declined to be quoted, said today that Prince Franz Hohenlohe, son of Princess Stephanie Hohenlohe-Schillingfuerst, reputed Nazi sympathizer, was in custody as an enemy alien.

The prince's mother has been resisting Federal attempts to have her deported or interned as an enemy alien for more than a year.

Austrians Give Britain Canteen

London, Feb. 18 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, accepting the gift of a trailer canteen from Austrians in Britain, declared in a speech today that "only our own follies can deprive us of victory."

"And in the victory of the Allies Austria shall find her honored place," the prime minister added.

Nazi Spy Wrote a Year Ago: 'U. S. Is Seriously Prepared'

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 18.—Letters written by alleged German agents here to agents in Spain and Portugal, revealing information concerning American troop disposition, defense plants, labor and war material were introduced as evidence in Federal Court today in the trial of five men and a woman charged with espionage conspiracy.

United States Attorney Mathias Correa, who introduced the letters, said they had been seized by British censors at Bermuda.

Charles Appel, an FBI expert on handwriting and disputed documents, identified the letters as the work of Kurt Frederick Ludwig, a defendant whom Government agents have described as the master mind of the German spy ring, and Capt. Ulrich von der Osten, alias Julio Lopez.

One letter, dated March 3, 1941, and attributed to Von Der Osten, whom Federal authorities identified as the leader of the spy ring until his death in a Times Square taxicab accident on March 18, 1941, said the United States Government was "seriously prepared for war."

The letter said in part:

"My journeys through the country have in the meantime shown me that this beautiful country is really in earnest. All the reports about internal dispute, bottlenecks, et cetera, do not in actual fact mean much. Everything is working to the best possible means and in spite of waste and all sorts of stupidities, much is being achieved.

"The Government has the country entirely behind it and is seriously prepared for war. Censorship has not been introduced officially but unofficially it exists, nevertheless, so that the newspapers publish far less than they used to. I had actually imagined that there would be considerable difficulties with the workers, but I believe that this assumption is incorrect for one finds repeatedly that the Government intervenes immediately in all strikes as they break out and makes peace at any price, quite contrary to Roosevelt's previous attitude when the workers were pampered.

"The A. F. L. is almost behind the Government and anything missing will soon be made complete. I also believe that—at least in case of emergency—the C. I. O. will willy nilly have to follow the example of its fellow trade union."

Appel said that some of the many letters had been addressed by Mrs. Helen Pauline Mayer, a Queens housewife and a defendant.

Torpedoed A.P. War Writer Finally Learning to Swim

"IT'S A PLEASURE . . ."—Larry Allen takes swimming lesson from Peggy Diehl

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 18.—Larry Allen, a star war correspondent of the Associated Press, has taken his first swimming lesson as he vowed to do while fighting death in the night-blackened waters of the Mediterranean.

Pretty Peggy Diehl, professional swimmer from Minneapolis, is his instructor. His first awkward splashes in a swimming pool at the Miami Biltmore Hotel were in sharp contrast to last December's struggle when 469 of his shipmates drowned.

Here spread the brilliant Florida sunshine and a blonde expert supported and coached him in 4 feet of water. On that fateful night in the Mediterranean, he slid feet first down the side of the torpedoed British cruiser Galatea into the deep sea, fervently wishing he could swim. An underinflated lifebelt and a piece of wreckage supported him.

He didn't strike out alone during this first swimming lesson, explaining:

"I haven't relaxed yet. I'm still suspicious of water."

His ambition at the start was to learn to swim 20 feet, "enough to escape the suction of a sinking ship and reach a piece of wreckage."

Then his lovely instructor arrived to give the first lesson. Allen's ambition increased.

"I should like," he declared, "to learn to swim the length of this pool."

The Biltmore pool is 100 feet long.

"Put your arms out—no, not around my waist—in front of you. Now, kick and make the arm strokes I showed you. Kick! I won't let you sink."

Her arms supported him, and Allen, only American war correspondent allowed with the British fleet in the present World War, shouted delightedly to friends on the tiled pool deck.

"Keep your knees almost straight," instructed Miss Diehl. "Hold on to the edge of the raft. Now . . ."

Later, over a soft drink, she told him his mistakes, urged him to greater aquatic confidence, set the time for his next lesson, and she coaxed him to tell her again of the torpedoing of the Galatea and the murderous bombing of the aircraft carrier Illustrious while he was aboard.

Allen is taking the Florida vacation before returning to the Mediterranean war zone.

Holidays 'Out' For the Duration

ington's Birthday—do the job and settle later," Nelson urged.

"A lot of good American boys right now are face to face with a grim, determined, well-equipped enemy," the director's statement said.

"They're taking punishment, taking it with courage and in the spirit that has always animated American troops. But those boys can't stop planes and tanks with their bare hands. They can't get where they have got to go without what it takes to get there. Only we can give it to them.

"You and I, every one of us here at home, must realize now, today, that we can give those boys the weapons they need only by going the limit in producing them.

"We cannot let any consideration whatsoever interfere with the job of production.

"The most effective way to honor George Washington's memory this year is to work full time so that the Nation to which he gave independence can make that independence stick."

Marines Also 'Ever Faithful' To Their Studies

A couple of marines stationed at Midway Island and Pearl Harbor found the war an annoying interference with correspondence courses they are taking from the Marine Corps Institute here.

From Pearl Harbor, one marine studying airplane maintenance, wrote to the institute:

"I lost my text books in the raid. Could you send me some more."

The institute sent them.

From Midway Island another marine wrote:

"Due to the present circumstances I will be unable to keep up the monthly quota of one lesson. However, I shall try to have another lesson to submit soon. I hope this delay does not affect my record in the institute."

The institute answered that it would not.

Jap Sniper Who Almost 'Got' U.S. Newsman Will Snipe No More

By Frank Hewlett
United Press Staff Writer

With Gen. MacArthur's Forces in the Philippines, Feb. 18.—A little brown man painted green, who was so much a part of the tree in which he had lashed himself that he couldn't be detected from 50 feet, took pot shots at me but his sniping days are over.

He's still in that tree, providing an excellent demonstration of perfect camouflage, but he is a very dead Japanese. United States countersnipers finally got him, but not before he had fooled the keenest eyes in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's army.

If this little green man had not been a mediocre shot I wouldn't be alive to file this dispatch.

Against the advnce of friends and by own better judgment I walked through a sniper-infested wood with Maj. Joseph L. Chabot, of New York, and Maj. John Pugh, Washington, who were investigating activities of the hidden marksmen unpopularly known as the rattlesnakes of Bataan.

We should have waited until dark, but the majors were anxious to get on with the job of ferreting out snipers in an area where a small force of Japanese was cut off.

Became Overconfident

We marched within 200 yards of our destination without incident, keeping separated and a little off the trail.

At this point we met a tank corps lieutenant who said he had noticed no evidence of snipers along the remaining leg of the trail.

That made us too confident for our own good. We grouped and walked down the middle of the trail. Then we made our nearly fatal mistake. We stopped to talk.

Suddenly something kicked up the dust 3 feet from where I stood. Then three shots whizzed past my ear. The majors and I hit the dirt and crawled into the brush. We got behind trees, but I use the word "behind" loosely because none of us had any idea of what direction the shot came from.

I learned later that a counter-sniper company had got my sniper and I was allowed to inspect his remains.

He had been left in the tree as a research specimen for the camouflage corps.

As we approached, I had the sniper's tree pointed out to me and I took a look at it through high-powered binoculars. All I could see was trunk, leaves and branches. Even from almost directly under the tree it looked no different from those around it. You almost had to climb up and poke the sniper to realize that he was there.

He wore a green uniform. His face and hands, and even his shoes, were painted green. There are shades and shades of green, but the coloring of this man from Nippon matched perfectly the foliage of the big dau tree among whose twisting branches he had lashed himself.

Equipped With Climbers

The sniper was equipped with lineman's climbers to expedite his getting in and out of trees and smokeless ammunition for his low-caliber rifle. That made it impossible to detect his whereabouts by a smoke trail.

How the sniper was finally detected and killed cannot be explained, but the countersniping companies have developed a fine art of bagging the "rattlesnakes," with the result that sniper casualties in the United States forces have been greatly reduced, especially among officers, the particular prey of the treemen.

One of these small patrols, known as the "Rizal Legion" after the Filipino patriot who led the rebellion against Spain, is made up of Filipino volunteers who wear special countersniping insignia.

One frequently sniped-at officer told me to publish a request that Alvin York and his Tennessee mountain neighbors plus a few Kentucky feudists be included in the long-waited reinforcements to Bataan.

Sergt. York Ready To Start for P. I.

Pall Mall, Tenn., Feb. 18 (U.P.).—Sergt. Alvin C. York tonight responded enthusiastically to the invitation of an unnamed American officer to bring "his mountain neighbors plus a few Kentucky feudists" to the Philippines to fight with Gen. MacArthur.

"I'd be mighty proud to start for there tomorrow," the top hero of World War I observed, "and if you were to start tomorrow morning getting together a bunch of old-time squirrel hunters with steady trigger-fingers, you'd have more than you could handle right here in Fentress County before night."

south of Singapore.

Direct hits were scored on two enemy transports, one large and one small, and both are believed to have been sunk. Two enemy barges were also destroyed. All of our planes returned to their base undamaged.

The report from Gen. Douglas MacArthur indicated that the Japs intend to "soften up" the little American-Filipino Army as much as possible and add to their already great superiority before again tackling them at close range.

Yesterday it seemed that the moment for a new Jap offensive might be at hand. New enemy units appeared over the defenders' lines, bombing them "almost constantly," the War Department said. Another bombing attack was made on the undefended Filipino refugee camp at Cabcaben.

When the "big push" comes, it is expected to be launched from all directions—frontal assaults, landing attempts from the sea, heavy artillery bombardment and intensive dive bombing attacks.

War Dept. Communique No. 112

"1. Philippine theater: New enemy air units are appearing over our lines, bombing our troops almost constantly. Another bombing attack was made on the refugee camp at Cabcaben.

"Hostile artillery fire on our forts from positions on the Cavite shore continues. New enemy batteries in Bataan have increased the density of artillery fire on our positions.

"A fairly large convoy of Japanese troop ships has arrived in Subic Bay and enemy reinforcements are landing at Olongapo.

"2. Netherlands Indies: A flight of American Army flying fortress bombers attacked Japanese ships off Bangka Island. Direct hits were scored on a large enemy transport and on a small transport. Both are believed to have been sunk. Two enemy barges were destroyed. There was no damage to any of our planes.

"3. There is nothing to report from other areas."

War Dept. Communique No. 113

"1. Netherlands Indies: "Nine American P-40 fighting planes intercepted six Japanese pursuit planes near Java, shooting down four. The American planes then went to the Japanese-held Palembang air field in Sumatra and dropped light bombs on enemy installations. The extent of the damage was not determined. All of our planes returned safely to their base.

"This action is believed to have been the same one reported today from Gen. Wavel's headquarters.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

Senate Sets Example On Defense Bonds

Setting an example for others, the Senate inaugurated a plan yesterday permitting voluntary deductions from salary for the purchase of defense bonds.

The deductions would be made, Senator Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, announced, only on order of Senators or their employes.

When the full amount of the purchase price was deducted, the Senate paymaster would deliver the bond to the purchaser.

JAVA AWAITS INVASION ATTEMPT—The Japs were poised today on Sumatra, Borneo and Celebes for thrusts at Java. The Nipponese had not been sighted on the shores of Sunda Strait (1) after occupying Palembang, but their bombers hit at Bali (2), Lombok, Soembawa and Timor. The southern shores of Borneo and Celebes (3) furnished footholds for invasion thrusts over water invaders and the available troops of his Thai confederates for a stab into central Burma.

At Chiengmai, British bombers delivered the heaviest raids in recent weeks.

There were reports that Chinese troops assigned to the defense of upper Burma had crossed into Thailand headed for Chiengmai, but of these there was no confirmation.

In the Dutch East Indies Japanese bombers returned to raid the great Allied naval base of Sourabaja on Java—the one major base remaining to the United Nations in the South Pacific—but this time lost heavily, 5 of the 21 raiders being shot down.

Elsewhere—on the islands of Borneo, Sumatra and Celebes, much of whose militarily important areas are in the enemy's hands as bases for the grand offensive on Java itself—the Dutch fought bitter delaying actions, one of the few encouraging phases was the fact that the Indonesian natives were reported to be resisting with unexcelled valor.

Swordsmen in Fight

In south Sumatra these fierce Indonesian fighting men, charging with pistol in left hand and razor-edged "Klewang" sword in right, were wiping out Japanese machine-gun nests and smashing enemy formations superior in both size and equipment. In one attack, 160 native regulars of the N. E. I. army charged across an open field to seize eight machine gun emplacements and slaughter the crews.

A communique said fighting still raged in many places on Borneo; a dispatch from an official N. E. I. war department correspondent on Celebes disclosed that the defenders, after withdrawing from the capital city of Macassar, had established new positions and were carrying out intensive activity against the invaders. On one occasion, the correspondent wrote, a strong Japanese patrol was ambushed and 30 to 40 men, including the enemy commander and other officers, were killed.

U. S. Fighters Over Sumatra

In the air over the region of Pelambang, invaded and destroyed south Sumatra oil port, United States fighters were credited with getting four Japanese planes without loss to themselves in an attack on an enemy-captured airdrome; Dutch bombers escorted by the fighters got two more.

To this announcement the United Nation's southwest Pacific command added the news that a United States-Dutch bomber force which earlier in the week struck at the Japanese invasion fleet off south Sumatra had sunk one big transport, hit two others and destroyed many barges crammed with troops. These barges presumably were sailing up the Musi River toward Pelambang.

About 5000 Indians still were encamped in one area of Rangoon, hoping somehow to get passage to India. They had enrolled weeks ago with the civil evacuation authorities. Another 2000 were milling in the vast gardens of a fantastic ramshackle palace, similarly awaiting the means to be taken away.

The roads north of Rangoon carried a steady procession of evacuation vehicles jammed with turbaned natives. One vehicle was a fancy black hearse filled with household goods.

BOTH SIDES MOVE—Chinese troops massed in northeastern Burma have invaded Japanese-occupied Thailand and are battling toward Chiengmai (dotted arrow, 2) in Allied counteroffensive to relieve pressure on Burma Road, it was reported yesterday. In a drive toward Rangoon, Japs have crossed Bilin River (black arrow, 1). The British, meanwhile, stepped up the civilian evacuation of Rangoon

War Plant Tieup Ended

Detroit, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Aluminum Co. of America's Detroit plant resumed operations today, a few hours after members of the Aluminum Workers of America (C. I. O.) voted to end a one-day strike which company and union officials agreed was unauthorized.

Kentucky House Seeks Antistrike Legislation

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 18 (AP).—Spurred by pleas of a member who is in the Army and another who has a son in it, the Kentucky House of Representatives today voted to petition the United States Senate to pass antistrike legislation.

The chamber adopted on a voice vote a resolution by Representative Thomas Swope, who said the fact that his son was in the Air Corps made him particularly interested in keeping the flow of munitions unhampered by "unnecessary strikes."

Rep. Fish Agrees to Testify Tomorrow as Government Witness Against Viereck

subpena with the report "not found."

Holt was in Washington last week and gave testimony before the special grand jury on Axis agents, which indicted Viereck.

Another of nearly a score of violently anti-British books issued by Viereck through Flanders Hall was "The 100 Families That Rule the (British) Empire," by Dr. Gieseleher Wirsing, of Munich.

Hauck testified that Representative Martin L. Sweeney (Democrat), of Ohio, praised this work—which had a foreword by Viereck—in a Nation-wide radio broadcast. This praise, said Hauck, was arranged by Prescott Dennett, who promoted isolationist committees for Viereck. Hauck said Flanders Hall paid Dennett $250 for publicity for the "100 Families" book.

Day, Sweeney, Holt and Fish were among a score of isolationists whose unaddressed franked envelopes, containing reprints from the Congressional Record, were at the disposal of Dennett, in the mailing center he maintained on Viereck's money here.

Dennett is under $1500 bond to secure his appearance as a witness. Prosecutors Maloney and Hickey had him bonded after he failed to obey grand jury summonses last week. They said they feared he would flee or "be sent away" from Washington.

It was from the headquarters of Dennett's isolationist groups—Make Europe Pay War Debts Committee and Islands for War Debts Committee—that a ton of the franked propaganda was hauled away last September, in a truck sent by Fish's secretary, Hill, a few hours before Dennett was to make his first appearance before the special grand jury.

Hill had eight mailbags full of this material put in a storeroom used by Fish. Both denied it—Fish in the House and Hill under oath before the grand jury. Hill was convicted of perjury.

Hauck said that when publication of Day's book was under way he came to Washington and Dennett had lunch with the Congressman. The next day, said Hauck, he had dinner with Viereck, after which he went with the German agent to Senator Holt's home. They conferred, said Hauck, about "Who's Who Among the Warmongers" and another book by Holt. He could not remember the second title.

Hauck said he got $100 from Holt for a "revision" of the book about "warmongers." Holt, he said, spoke of giving him a mailing list, which could be used to promote sales.

Viereck supplied his firm with numerous mailing lists, Hauck said, identifying them from a bale produced in court by Prosecutor Maloney. Representative Day also gave him a mailing list, Hauck said, adding on cross-examination that he did not share Day's hopes of selling hundreds of thousands of copies, but still expected to make money on it.

Paving Way for Claim

Defense Counsel Morosini brought out this point, evidently paving the way for the claim that Flanders Hall was not a propaganda enterprise but a business company.

Dr. Werner B. Ellinger, 1439 Girard Street Northwest, was being examined by Prosecutor Hickey when court adjourned yesterday. Dr. Ellinger said he was a German, who was a legal official until 1933, when he was removed by Hitler legislation. Justice Letts refused to strike this statement when Morosini asked that he do so.

Dr. Ellinger is now in the catalog division of the Library of Congress. He testified that he has examined "The Hapless Boers," a Flanders Hall book for which Hauck said Viereck supplied the manuscript. The German scholar said the Nazi work, "Englund und die Boren," was the same book, except that all of its slurs against Jews were taken out of the Flanders Hall version.

Prosecutor Maloney got Hauck to identify a letter he issued when publishing the anti-British books for Viereck. The letter urged that America keep out of the war and deprecated "spilling American blood for some vague, undefined cause across the seas."

Then Maloney read a passage from Viereck's book, "Spreading the Germs of Hate." It said:

"Every propagandist drapes himself in the flag."

Van Mook Calls For Full Scale Allied Offensive

Sydney, Feb. 18 (U.P.)—Lieut. Gov. H. J. Van Mook, of the Netherlands East Indies, said on a visit here today that the United States is throwing "everything they can lay their hands on" into the battle of the southwest Pacific, and that the time is now ripe for a full-scale Allied offensive, which could still be launched from Java.

Urging Australia's support for such an offensive, he said that even if the Japanese conquered the indies they probably would veer away from Australia and turn to the Middle East and Russia to "help Hitler."

There is no reason to fear that Allied material cannot be shipped to the battle zone, because the United States has sufficient transport facilities, he said.

"Once the United States get het up they really do a drastic job," he said.

"We should not go on the defensive all the time. That is a big mistake of the democracies—thinking in terms of defense. The policy of constantly retiring on prepared positions can, I believe, lead to a position where in the Allies might lose the war."

War Has Just Begun, Tojo Warns Japs

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (from Japanese Broadcasts), Feb. 18.—The war "has only just begun," Premier General Hideki Tojo told a mass meeting celebrating the fall of Singapore today.

"We Japanese must continue our efforts together with Germany and Italy until the foes of the Axis are brought to their knees," he added.

The rally was the principal meeting of hundreds held throughout the empire and the occupied lands and was timed to coincide with a "formal entry" of the Japanese army into Singapore City.

Domei reported from Singapore that the railway running down the Malay Peninsula and across Singapore Island has been reopened to traffic. The causeway and "no less than 500 bridges of all sizes" were wrecked by the British but have been repaired, Domei said.

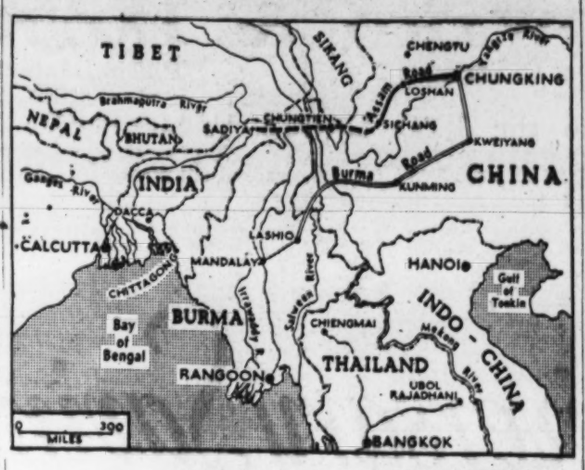
The Tokyo radio, with loud speakers rigged up in public places, broadcast the triumphal formal entry of Japenese troops into the captured British stronghold.

A Singapore song, written and rehearsed in anticipation of the victory, was heard for the first time over the radio as part of the celebration.

Emperor Hirohito, seldom seen by his people, presented himself several times at Nijubashi Bridge over the moat at the main entrance to the imperial palace, in full view of crowds shouting banzais from the plaza.

A Domei disatch from Manila said the complete revision of Philippine school books has been started, and reported that the Japanese commander on Luzon had recommended the gradual elimination of English from the schools.

Old Marco Polo Track May Become New Lifeline of China



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BURMA ROAD "DETOUR"—Map indicates proposed route of the Assam Road, possible new supply line into China which would be of major importance to Allied nations if Burma Road should be cut. The new route runs from Chungking to the Assam section of northeast India, connecting with river and rail routes. Broken line on the route indicates uncompleted section west of Sichang

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 18.—The old Marco Polo Road which winds between the deserts of Mongolia and the snows of Tibet to Turkestan in Soviet Russia may be used to transport American aid to China if the now threatened Burma Road is severed, Harrison Forman, American observer at Chungking, said in a broadcast today.

"The Chinese government has established diplomatic relations with Iran" and is also negotiating with Iraq, he said.

"The convoys of lend-lease material may still be sent across the south Atlantic and Africa to Iran and Iraq. They may then transship by rail up through Russia and across Siberia to the Chinese northwest border, over 2000 miles from Chungking."

This so-called "Red route" by way of Lanchow in the far northwestern Provinces of Kansu and Sinkiang has been so much improved since the beginning of the Japanese invasion that motor caravans use it regularly.

New Road Visioned

It probably is the most readily available route that China could use, despite the vast distances, and because of the difficulty of shipment over a Soviet railway system hard-pressed by Russia's own war transport needs.

Since the summer of 1939, according to some reports, Chinese coolies said now to number 120,000, have been at work on a gigantic new undertaking, the Assam road, which would cut well north of the Burma Road across 10,000-foot high mountain ranges and at least three mighty rivers to Assam in India.

There it would tap the Indian railway system and the vast Brahmaputra River.

River steamers can go 800 miles up the river from Calcutta almost to Sadiva, near the Tibet frontier, terminal of the proposed road.

The China information committee in New York has reported about 330 miles, or about a third of the road, completed from Loshan in western Szechwan province to Sichang in southern Sikang province. A motor road already extended from Chungking to Loshan, 170 airline miles west.

Dwarfs Burma Road

The projected road dwarfs the Burma Road in mileage, forbidding terrain and the casualties already suffered in its building. Seven thousand workmen and stonecutters already have been dashed to death while at work in the rocky gorges or killed elsewhere on the route.

The most difficult part of the construction appears to be ahead, however, in the builders' attempt to cut across the peaks of the Himalayas and the deep chasms of the Upper Yangtze, Salween and Mehong Rivers.

A third possible route for the Chinese would be the age-old caravan trails across Tibet to the Pamir Mountain passes on India's northern frontier.

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Address Greenbelt Rally

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will speak at a defense rally to be staged by the residents of Greenbelt at the Greenbelt School Saturday night.

The rally is being held by the Greenbelt Defense Corps to raise $1000 for the purchase of medical equipment and supplies for the community casualty station.

Features of the evening will be a beauty contest to pick "Miss Defense," a concert by the 55-piece Greenbelt Band, and a talk by W. A. Scharffenberg, who will discuss the situation in the Far East. Arthur L. Rysticken, chairman of the Greenbelt Defense Corps, is in charge of the committee making the arrangements. A dance will follow the rally.

Before the court adjourned for the day, three defense witnesses were called who stated that they saw Ewing on the eve of the alleged attack and asserted that he was sober at that time. One of them said he saw Ewing as late as 12:30 a. m.

Who will be called to the witness stand today in Ewing's behalf, defense attorneys did not disclose.

Among the first witnesses to testify for the prosecution yesterday was 21-year-old Robert H. Payne, RFC worker who had been out with the girl on the night of October 25.

Friend Tells of Calling Police

To a courtroom packed with spectators for the third consecutive day of trial, he related that she had told him Ewing had assaulted her when they met again on Sunday night. He said that he had called police for her after consulting a cousin who was a lawyer.

Payne, together with four policemen who took the stand, related that when Ewing was questioned at the Third Precinct shortly after his arrest, the defendant told the policemen:

"I was all liquored up, and I'm not very clear about what happened. But I don't think anything like that could have happened."

Defense attorneys questioned Payne closely concerning the length of time that he had known the girl and how many dates he had had with her. He was asked whether he had ever told the girl that he was going to inherit a large amount of money, whether he had ever talked to her about marriage, and whether he had ever "taken her up on the roof." He answered "no" to all of these queries.

Policemen testifying were Lieut. Albert I. Bullock, Sergt. Carl McCormick, and Privates Grayston Chapman and Edgar W. Blackburn—the four men who arrested Ewing at his Cleveland Avenue home.

They declared that Ewing had answered "child, you're mistaken," when accused by the girl at the precinct station, and also quoted him as saying that he had been "liquored up" on the night of the alleged attack.

They added that he had dictated a statement to them, but later stated that he preferred not to sign it until after he had talked with his lawyer. In this statement, they charged, Ewing related that he had fallen asleep with the girl sitting on the couch beside him and remembered nothing more until the next morning.

Defense Attorney Homer L. McCormick asked Justice James W. Morris to order a directed verdict of "not guilty" at the close of the Government's case, but Morris denied this motion.

nine billions asked by the President.

Suggestions Offered

While the Treasury in the past has advanced only tentative "suggestions," which it may or may not recommend, conferees today are expected to get down to brass tacks on sources, rates and methods, though they reach no agreement on the overall goal.

Treasury suggestions for distributing the big revenue increase on top of the present tax structure have roughly followed the following lines:

From individuals, nearly two billion dollars.

From corporations, three billion dollars.

From increased excises and taxes on services, $1,400,000,000.

From loophole plugging, such as lowered estate and gift tax exemptions, taxing State and local bond issues and possible joint returns, one billion dollars.

Senate Committee Votes to Kill Plan for Pensions

Mead, the President, if he made back contributions to the retirement fund, would be eligible for a $20,000 annuity at the end of his third term. If he made no back payments, he would be eligible to receive $17,900 annually by payment of $7716.50, Mead disclosed. Mr. Roosevelt told a recent press conference that he supposed he would be entitled to a $37,000 "pension."

Mead said his calculations were based on 19 years of Government service by the President, including 7½ years as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Byrd, who will handle the repeal resolution on the Senate floor, during the hearing confronted Civil Service Commission President Harry B. Mitchell with a provision of the Federal Constitution requiring that the salary of President "shall be neither increased nor diminished during his term of office."

Mitchell agreed with Byrd that, in all probability, the Constitution barred Mr. Roosevelt's participation in the act.

In answer to a question from Byrd, Mitchell told the committee 2. With House Civil Service Committee hearings on pension repeal starting today, Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, committee chairman, announced he would "take the lead in affording the House an early opportunity to act upon a bill to repeal that part of the Retirement Act," said he expected committee action before the weekend.

In the overwhelming House and Senate demand for repeal, however, there was one factor that threatened to hold up the stampede—announcement by Senator Downey (Democrat), of California, that he would move to attach general old-age pension legislation to any repeal resolution.

that "about eight" members of Congress have "elected" to qualify themselves for retirement benefits.

Senator Aiken remarked that "about 90" Senators will be open to suspicion unless Mitchell could designate whether the members were in the Senate or House. Mitchell replied—"I think we have gone as far as we can."

The after-dark proceeding, a rare expediency with Congressional committees, took on aspects of a face-saving operation inasmuch as these developments yesterday brought Congress to the verge of repealing its "pensions":

1. The Senate deliberately delayed until today action on a pending bill for the purpose of providing the chamber with a vehicle to which a pension repeal rider may be attached in event of failure of the move to force committee action.

Downey said his bill would provide $30 monthly Federal contributions for needy persons 60 years of age and older. The "ham and eggs every Thursday" legislator served notice on the Senate that he would press this new and highly controversial issue "firmly, seriously and energetically."

His announcement brought from Senator Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, the declaration that: "If the Senator from California is going to offer his pension bill, God knows how long the committee will take."

Mayris Chaney Quits OCD Job

activities of the Division of Physical Fitness. Landis accepted at once, "without comment."

Disclosure that Miss Chaney headed the children's section provoked heated controversy in Congress during the debate on funds for the Office of Civilian Defense.

Criticism against Mrs. Roosevelt as assistant director of OCD in charge of volunteer participation was also voiced in Congress. Last week Mrs. Roosevelt announced that with her organization work virtually through, she would probably quit at the end of the month.

Appropriation Approved

Meanwhile two other OCD issues were cleared up yesterday.

Congressional conferees approved legislation appropriating 100 million dollars for purchase of OCD equipment, such as gas masks and fire trucks.

John B. Kelly, director of the OCD physical fitness division, announced he is ceasing his efforts to make his division into an independent agency and that he is ready to go along with the division to Office of Defense, Health, and Welfare Services under Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt.

Kelly, here for conferences with Budget officials, said he had given up the idea of taking his plea for an intact physical fitness division to the President "because he is too busy to be bothered."

Miss Chaney Gives Reasons

In her offer of resignation, Miss Chaney said she considered the children's program of the division of "paramount importance" and did not wish anything—even herself—to jeopardize its organization and development.

"It is the duty of every American citizen to see that our helpless ones are provided for in times of emergency and guarded against the terror and panic that usually result from bombings and other terrible acts of war," she wrote Director Landis.

"There has been much said about this portion of Director Kelley's wonderful physical fitness program. And many seem to think that it was designed to introduce fan dancing among innocent tots.

"While I am not familiar with fan dancing, I do not agree that such frivolity has any place in a children's program in normal times, let alone in times of stress."

Some persons patronize fan dancing and approve of it, Miss Chaney said, "as a form of necessary relaxation." "With these people," she wrote, "I have no argument.

"But I would fight if they tried to introduce fan dancing into a children's program such as I have been working on for the United States division of physical fitness.

"Unfortunately, there are many patriotic Americans who honestly want to be fair, but who have not had an opportunity to study the child welfare problems that caused so much grief in war-torn Britain, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Greece, Russia and Germany.

"Their Duty as Parents"

"If these people have children, then it is their duty as parents, as well as American citizens, to take steps to see why so much time has been wasted arguing over fan dancing when the lives of little children have been at stake.

"Two weeks have been wasted. Two weeks in which Singapore fell! And, if you will recall, the tragedy that was Pearl Harbor occurred within the short space of a few hours!"

"Because I wish no further altercation which might cause disunity and delay, and for the same reason which prompted me to take up this work originally—my desire for a strong and free America—I wish to step aside if it is your will.

"If you feel that the best interest of the physical fitness program—and the best interests of the United States of America—can be served by my resignation, then I will step aside gladly, effective at your convenience."

U. S. Spurns Vichy's Stand on Aid to Axis

Report Says Nazi Subs Which Raided Aruba Got Supplies on Martinique

By Michael Chinigo
International News Service Staff Writer

United States-Vichy, France, relations took a turn for the worse last night when the American Government, after carefully evaluating French explanations of aid extended to the Axis powers, informed Marshal Petain that it considered them unsatisfactory.

Notice to this effect was served on Vichy Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles in a 50-minute State Department conference after Welles had conferred with President Roosevelt at the White House.

The American decision, it was considered, may have been partially influenced by reports that the Nazi U-boats which recently raided Aruba in the Caribbean obtained supplies from the French West Indian islands of Guadaloupe or Martinique.

These and other reports that a French Gen. Jeauneau was believed to be acting as Axis tool at Madagascar, strategic Indian Ocean island which is as large as France itself, were emphatically denied yesterday by Henry-Haye. The State Department refused comment on the subject.

Brought Fresh Information

The Vichy envoy, following his conference with Welles, appeared concerned by the trend of present negotiations but said he still hoped that every difficulty would be ironed out.

"The duty of an ambassador," he declared, "is to try to explain the position of his government and not to work for any break in relations with the country to which he is accredited.

"I am trying to do just that for France. Today I brought fresh information I received from Vichy.

"There will be other conferences with Mr. Sumner Welles as soon as I can get further information concerning the issues under consideration."

Henry-Haye told reporters that there is "not the slightest shadow of a cause" for starting a campaign of rumors that Japan may gain access to Madagascar as it did in French Indo-China.

"We are not aware of any threat to Madagascar," he asserted, "nor have we received any demands concerning it from any quarter.

"Nonetheless, we have decided to protect the island from any invasion."

Calls Allegations Fantastic

Categoric assurances to this effect, it was learned, were given by him to Undersecretary Welles in the course of their afternoon meeting.

Ridiculing reports involving Gen. Jeauneau, Henry-Haye declared that he had left Madagascar "several months ago."

Allegations that Nazi submersibles were obtaining supplies from Martinique, he said were "equally fantastic."

"The American consul at Martinique is not a blind man. He would know whether German U-boats were receiving aid from that island.

'No matter where anything goes wrong, whether it be the Far East, the Mediterranean or the Atlantic, we poor French are always held to blame.

"I wish France were in South America—then, maybe, the good-neighbor policy would apply to us."

Detroit Sounds Defense S O S

Copyright by The Chicago Sun

A telegraphic SOS for planes and antiaircraft guns reached the White House yesterday from—Detroit.

It was signed by Gov. Murray D. Von Wagoner of Michigan and was shunted through the routine practice of delivery to the War Department.

Meanwhile, White House attaches and officials of the War Department were mum concerning the text of the message, its urgency or whether it was meant facetiously or seriously.

Its receipt followed President Roosevelt's remark at Tuesday's press conference that Detroit might be bombed, under certain conditions.

And some few reminded that Detroit, as in none to few other cities, is torn apart by internecine politics over the administration or lack of administration of civilian defense.

'Sunken' Shaw Reaches Port Under Own Power

Planes Held Singapore's Biggest Need

By Harold Guard
United Press Staff Writer

Batavia, Feb. 18.—If Singapore had got the planes that the people kept hearing about but never saw, even as late as mid-January, when the Japanese were far down the Malay Peninsula, the island base could have been defended successfully.

Now it's only another "if" to be added to the overcrowded too little and too late archives, but it seems to be worth getting on the record.

That is my studied opinion after watching the whole Malay aerial fiasco from the time the first of the American-made Brewster Buffalos arrived to receive much acclaim last March.

The Buffaloes cut quite a swath of enthusiasm in Singapore when they first came, the Royal Air Force personnel competing keenly for the privilege of flying them. But when the squeeze was on last December 8, even they came in for their share of the blame.

They said the Brewsters lacked maneuverability and adequate gun power. Only a few Americans were employed anywhere in Malaya, and this apparently led to a lack of adequate servicing of the plane by Brewster-trained mechanics.

Be it said to the credit of the R. A. F., however, that a squadron leader aboard the refugee vessel on which I left Singapore claimed that the force's average in Malaya after December 8 proportionately topped that of the home force in the Battle for Britain. That was said to have represented an average daily bag of five enemy planes.

Anyway, I can say that the R. A. F. in Malaya worked hard, flying from dawn to dusk, the individual pilots often carrying out one assignment, returning, loading up and taking off on another job.

During Singapore's last days when I visited the two main R. A. F. airdromes, I saw only a famine of serviceable planes.

D. C. Now World Capital, Foreign Minister Of Poland Implies in Visit to Washington

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The parade of Allied statesmen and notables to Washington continues, emphasing the city's position as a world capital and as G. H. Q. in the war effort.

Count Edward Raczynski, tall, dapper foreign minister of the Polish government in exile, is the newest visitor. On his arrival here from London, he saw Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, and later will be received by President Roosevelt.

At a press conference in the Polish Embassy, yesterday, Count Raczynski was asked what brought him to Washington. He appeared to be surprised at the question.

"Oh," he said, "I don't think anybody could be responsible for his country's foreign relations without coming to Washington. It was essential for me to come over."

The Polish Foreign Minister, whose "defeated" nation is still a formidable enemy for Hitler, both at home and on the battlefield, said that despite some of the gloomy news that has recently come to the anti-Axis world, there was no reason for despondency.

He predicted that the United Nations would defeat the Axis in 1943.

In the midst of bad news, the Polish statesman said, one is tempted to forget the great preparations that are being made to achieve victory, and the great mass of strength that will be hurled at the Axis. One also is tempted to forget, he said, that an overwhelming majority of mankind is on the side of the Allies, and that even in the subjugated countries there is a big majority waiting to do its part.

"We represent a cause that cannot lose," he said.

The Foreign Minister, however, warned against family bickering among the Allies.

"This is no time to criticize each other," he said. "There is no point in crying about who is doing more or who is doing less. The main thing is for all of us to do all we can."

In spite of all the calamities that have befallen her, he said, Poland was sticking to her guns and playing not merely a symbolical part, but a real part in the war. He spoke proudly of the Polish mechanized divisions in the British Isles, of the crack Polish Air Force, of the remnant of the Polish navy, of the Poles who fought at Tobruk in Libya, and of the large Polish army now being formed to meet the German spring offensive in Russia. These Poles, he said, would fight with the Red army but would have Polish officers.

The foreign minister was asked about internal economic conditions in Poland. A perceptible change came over him as he answered.

"The Poles have been turned into beggars," he said. "All their property has been taken away from them by their German masters. They have ceased to be normal human beings."

Nevertheless, he said, the Poles remained faithful patriots. By no means, he said, had they given up the struggle, and he told how they now publish a large number of underground newspapers, 30 of them dailies. One of these, he said, smiling, recently published a picture of Churchill reviewing Polish troops in Scotland.

He said he couldn't talk about sabotage in Poland, but he called attention to occasional German reports from there which told, among other things, how 40 Poles were executed for derailing a train headed for Russia with warm clothing for Hitler's freezing legions.

Secrets' Measure 'Too Broad;' Senators to Tone It Down

By the Associated Press

Chairman Van Nuys (Democrat) of Indiana, said yesterday the Senate Judiciary Committee would have to rewrite Attorney General Biddle's proposal that disclosure of secret Government documents be made a criminal offense, because the bill as it stood was too broad.

The bill, introduced by Van Nuys at Biddle's request, would provide a two-year prison sentence, $5000 fine or both for any one who made disclosures without authorization by the department head who had custody of the information.

"Why, it would be possible for them to impound every public document," Van Nuys said, "and I doubt whether the Senate could subpoena documents declared by the head to be confidential."

Biddle asked Congress yesterday to spell out by statute his authority to engage in wire-tapping to prevent sabotage and treason, after saying the present law had prevented inspection of commercial cables prior to Pearl Harbor.

He flatly opposed limiting wire-tapping authority to the duration of the national emergency and told the House Judiciary Committee that "subversive crimes" would not end with war's termination.

"I think it's going to be a stiffer world after the war—and we've got to be tough," said Biddle.

Meanwhile, the American Federation of Labor withdrew its opposition to the measure, provided, said Legislative Agent Paul Scharrenberg, that it was limited to the duration of the war.

Biddle maintained that he had authority under present statutes to tap wires, but expressed the belief that clarification would prove valuable in eliminating "public confusion."

He said that "we constantly tried to get commercial cables before December 7 and were constantly refused." He ascribed that refusal to the confusion.

Representative Eliot (Democrat), of Massachusetts, a committee member, emphasized, however, that the present law did not bar wire-tapping by the War Department, and J. Edgar Hoover, Federal Bureau of Investigation chief, commented: "That's right," adding, however, that most of the Japanese messages had been sent by radio.

Capital Churches Usher In Lent

Washingtonians Pause Amid War Tasks To Renew Faith at D. C. Services

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Church Editor

A wartime Capital yesterday paused amid bustling wartime activities to pray at Ash Wednesday services ushering in Christianity's penitential season—Lent.

From now until April 4—the Saturday before Easter—the faithful will abstain from many worldly pleasures, commemorating Christ's 40 days' abstinence.

In sermons that mirrored the gravity of these times, clergymen called for renewed faith in Christianity's "imperishables," assuring that the present black world outlook did not mean the "blackout" of the Christian gospel.

Thousands of worshipers, including many newcomers here in war work, men in the armed forces, civilian defense workers and others went to masses in Catholic churches and Holy Communion and other services in Protestant churches.

Follow Ancient Custom

Catholic churches followed their ancient custom of placing ashes in the form of crosses on worshipers' foreheads, symbolizing penitence and humility, and reminding that man is but dust. Masses at St. Matthew's Cathedral, St. Patrick's, St. Dominic's, Immaculate Conception and other churches of that faith drew capacity crowds.

More than 1400 persons—among them stenographers, store clerks, shoppers and business and professional folk—filed into Epiphany Episcopal Church, 1317 G Street Northwest, for its opening midday service of the 1942 Lenten season.

There they heard the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, Epiphany's new rector, warn that the present world calamity is a "testing ground" for the depth of one's faith. How we emerge, individually, from this crisis, will show whether we have been worshiping the true God, or an "idol" we have been setting up in His place, said the rector.

Addressing a Federation of Churches-sponsored service from the same pulpit later in the day, the Rev. Dr. Charles B. Foelsch discussed "The Three-fold Secret of the Lenten Quiet Hour." He is pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, Thomas Circle.

Through the moments we spend along with God, he said, we get the chance to "conscript our spiritual resources;" realize our fellowship with Christians of all generations, and realize the assurance of comradeship with Jesus. This gives us courage to face life, he added.

Joy Through Faith

Dr. Foelsch compared Jesus' loneliness in the wilderness with the loneliness of many newcomers to Washington, and said that just as He found that God was always present, so would the newcomers "find" Him in the Lenten quiet hours. Dr. Foelsch was presented by the Rev. Dr. Charles W. Sheerin, Epiphany rector.

Members of 11 Southeast Protestant congregations, as well as many other churchmen, attended the opening noonday Lenten service of the Southeast Interchurch Council at the Penn Theater, 650 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast.

Preaching on "A Faith for Our Time," the Rev. Dr. Warren D. Bowman said that to acquire an enduring faith we must completely surrender our lives to God's will and purpose; lose ourselves in unselfish service, and find in God our inner resources for living. He is pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren.

The congregation of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard parish, is in charge of the Southeast services this week. The Rev. Edward Gabler, its rector, presided yesterday. Today's speaker will be the Rev. H. C. Lukens, pastor of the Vienna (Va.) Presbyterian Church.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, celebrated Ash Wednesday Holy Communion at the Washington Cathedral, and the Very Rev. ZeBarney T. Phillips, Dean of Washington, preached.

Chevy Chase Protestant congregations' opening weekly Lenten service of 1942 will be centered tonight at 8 o'clock at Wesley Methodist Church. The preacher will be the Rev. Dr. Harris E. Kirk, of Baltimore, Md. The Brookland Methodist congregation, Fourteenth and Lawrence Streets Northeast, will sponsor a weekly Lenten institute, beginning tonight at 6:15 o'clock.

Traffic Deaths Increase 18% During 1941

The general death rate in the United State declined considerably last year, but the deaths from automobile accidents kept going up.

The United States Public Health Service reported yesterday that the general death rate during 1941 was approximately 50 persons less per 1000 in the population, as compared with 1940. The death rate from automobile accidents increased 18 per cent and the death rate from accidents other than those connected with automobiles increased by 2 per cent.

Deaths from tuberculosis, diabetes, cerebral hemorrhage, heart diseases, pneumonia and diseases of the digestive system and kidneys were "relatively less numerous," the summary said.

An expected outbreak of influenza resembling that of 1918 and 1919, due to present crowded conditions in camps and in areas near defense production areas, has not materialized. The number of new cases during the last week on which reports are available totaled only 4899, compared with 61,809 cases during the same week a year ago.

Albert Payson Terhune Dies Among Famed Collies at 69

Writer Succumbs To Heart Ailment; Ill for Two Years

By the Associated Press

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Feb. 18.—Albert Payson Terhune, 69, died today at his 24-acre estate, Sunnybank, among the collies which won him international fame as an author.

The collies he raised, many of them blue ribbon winners, were second only to Mrs. Terhune in his affection. The 100 dogs he owned at death had the run of the estate.

The immediate cause of death was a heart ailment. The energetic author had been ill for two years.

One of his collie companions was with him in December, 1928, when he was struck and knocked 8 feet by an automobile which failed to halt. He was confined to his bed for several months and never fully regained his health.

Not until his sixty-fourth birthday, when he announced his formal retirement, did Terhune abandon his rigorous schedule of at least 11 working hours a day, six days a week. But two years ago he published a novel called "Lost" and continued a syndicated newspaper column.

Criticized Modern Women

Although dogs were the central characters in his most famous stories, such as "Lad: A Dog," and "Buff: A Collie," Terhune's prolific writings included other subjects. "The Story of Sunnybank," published in 192? took modern woman to task for failing to provide her husband with a nice home.

Terhune turned out 30 motion picture plots, dabbled in music, traveled widely and collected antiques.

The funeral was arranged for Saturday at the 83-year-old vine-clad estate, with burial in the Pompton Dutch Reformed Church Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Anice Stockton Terhune, a prominent musician, and a daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Stevens of New York.

Made $90,000 a Year

Terhune was a robust giant, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 230 pounds in his prime.

At the height of his writing career, his annual income was estimated as high as $90,000.

He was born in Newark, N. J., December 21, 1872, son of the Rev. Edward P. Terhune and Mary Virginia Terhune, a fiction writer in her own right under the name Marion Harland.

In 1894, a year after his graduation from Columbia University, Terhune got a job as a cub reporter on the old New York World. It was the start of a 20-year association that culminated when he became the paper's sports editor.

His career as a novelist started in 1900 when he and his mother wrote "Dr. Dale: A Story Without a Moral." It was one of the few instances on record of mother-son collaboration.

Amateur Boxer

His interest in those early days were not limited to writing. An outstanding amateur boxer, he entered the ring for exhibition matches with such old time fistic greats as "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Kid McCoy and Jim Jeffries.

Some of his ring opponents, Jeffries and McCoy, were among the clients for whom Terhune later said he had written signed "ghosted" articles. Similarly, he wrote for Lillian Russell, Mrs. Leslie Carter, Terry McGovern, Laura Jean Libby, and David Belasco.

In 1904 he collaborated with William C. DeMille in writing the lyrics for a comic opera "Nero;" his wife wrote the score.

Protestants, Catholics and Jews Agree on 17 Beliefs in Common

A declaration of fundamental religious beliefs held in common by Protestants, Catholic and Jews, first statement of its kind in the Nation's history, was announced yesterday by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Thirteen local religious leaders were among the signatories of the statement, issued in connection with the observance of National Brotherhood Week through this Sunday under the sponsorship of the national conference. "Build Understanding—Defeat Intolerance," is this year's theme.

A. W. Gottschall, Southern area director of the national conference, made public an explanatory statement by Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the national conference, who emphasized the wide area of agreement on fundamental religious issues among America's three major religious groups.

Dr. Clinchy pointed out that a recent study of the social teachings of the three religious bodies published by the National Conference indicated that they agree to a "remarkable extent" as to the principles which should govern society and the relations that men should bear to one another.

On 17 specific subjects, said Dr. Clinchy, official pronouncements of Catholics, Jews and Protestants reveal "basic parallelisms and identity of spirit and intent."

"From its beginning in 1928," said Dr. Clinchy, "the National Conference of Christians and Jews has upheld the right of freedom of religion with the right of all individuals and groups to differ from their fellows and to express their full faith. Emphasis upon differences, and freedom to maintain them, however, may easily distract attention from the areas of agreement among Protestants, Catholics and Jews. In these days it is important to state the foundation of common religious convictions on which American institutions rest.

"These foundations, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders agree, are spiritual in character. A completely materialistic and secularized way of life leads inevitably to paganism and eventually to some form of totalitarian tyranny. Victory for our way of life demands that we preserve intact our common religious heritage. This is as important as anything that can be said about the war."

The common convictions were described as:

Belief in one God, creator and sustainer of the universe; rejection of all attempts to explain man in "merely material terms;" belief that God's "all-holy will" is the ultimate sanction of human morality and rejection of all deterministic interpretations of man; belief that education or social theories which state man's duties, standards and happiness without reference to God are "doomed to failure."

Belief that "God's fatherly providence" extends equally to every human being and rejection of theories of race which affirm the essential superiority of one racial strain over another; belief that the republican form of government is the "most desirable for our nation and for countries of similarly democratic traditions;" belief that political forms can bring liberty and happiness to a society "only when moral and religious principles are accepted and practiced," and belief that individual rights are an endowment from God, and rejection of all denials of this principle as "certain to result in the enslavement of man."

Girl, 17, Missing For Week After Phone Call Home

Missing for a week today—after telephoning her mother she would be home within an hour—Mary Catherine Ballenger, 17-year-old Washington girl, was being sought yesterday by police.

The girl, daughter of Mrs. Bernardine Meinberg, 2224 Good Hope Road Southeast, was last heard from at 11:20 p. m. last Thursday, when she telephoned her mother from a downtown night club to say she had met some friends and would be home in an hour.

Mrs. Meinberg told police her daughter had gone to a downtown theater and was supposed to be home at 10 p. m. She is worried by the fact Mary Catherine took the trouble to call her and then did not appear.

The girl is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 133 pounds, has red hair and hazel eyes. When last seen she was wearing a dark blue dress and hat, black cloth coat with small fur collar and patent leather slippers.

Steel Firm Calls Labor Board Rule 'Closed Shop'

Cleveland, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Republic Steel Corporation today attacked as a "closed shop under a different name" the War Labor Board's "so-called voluntary maintenance of union membership clause used in settlement of the Marshall Field case."

Declaring that according to Washington dispatches this "vicious plan" is "to be offered as a compromise substitute for the C. I. O. closed-shop demand upon Republic and three other 'Little Steel' companies," the corporation asserted in a statement.

"The plan is all the more vicious because its real purpose is to force men to become, and remain, members of unions under a false cloak of supposed 'voluntary' action on their part.

"The big job today is to keep plants running at capacity. Every worker should have the right to do his job without being under pressure to join in any particular scheme of compulsory union membership."

Top Priority Rating Urged For Planes

By Samuel W. Bell

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Vigorous demand was made in Congress yesterday that the War Production Board act "realistically" in the light of all war experience and give the aircraft industry absolute tops in its shifting system of priorities.

The recommendation came in a supplemental report of the aviation subcommittee of the House Military Affairs Committee, filed by Representative Dow W. Harter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman. Speaking to the House, Representative Harter said it was "incomprehensible that the man charged with the direction of the war effort, in vew of the experience in every theater of war," should place the production of aircraft "behind battleships, tanks and even trucks."

In effect, the committee's report amounted to coment on the WPB's belated action, announced Tuesday, finally awarding an A-1-A priority to aircraft production. Prior to that, four-engine bombers had A-1-B rating and all other types of combat planes nothing better than an A-1-D.

In a letter embodied in the report and addressed to President Roosevelt, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of WPB; Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, and Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, the committee said:

"Surely our armed forces should be conversant with the fact that to be successful on land or sea requires air supremacy. The A-1-A priority now given to the aircraft industry will be of little avail unless the aircraft manufacturers are given preference ratings over and beyond some of the many industries to which this A-1-A has been granted."

The report of the subcommittee and Representative Harter's protest were only two of several shots aimed at the manner in which the war is being prosecuted.

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, called for closer cooperation between the Army and Navy high commands, asserting that the widespread operations in the Far East made it imperative.

Recalling that the report of the Roberts Committee which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster noted "no contact or cooperation" between the commanding Army and Navy officers in Hawaii, Senator Connally said he believed steps thus far taken by the President should do much to correct the situation. He explained re did not advocate a unified Army or Navy command or a separate air force. Also he deplored the current "strife and bickering" among civilians which is "not aiding the war effort."

In the House, Representative Stephen A. Day (Republican), of Illinois, urged the establishment of an overall department of national defense with control over "land, sea and air forces." He charged that "old fogey ideas" in the Army and Navy and jealousy between the service branches "are as much trouble to our Commander in Chief as they are to the Nation."

[The Chicago Sun reported that a House group which believes "the war cannot be won on a 40-hour week" is moving to force a vote next week on suspension, during the emergency, of work-week limitations and overtime pay provisions of Federal law.

[The proposal, which informed persons concede small chance of passage now, would not affect the 40-cent minimum wage but would withdraw the Federal mandate that a 40-hour week must be observed in interstate business, it said.

[The group, led by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia, and Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, will seek to have the House Rules Committee make it in order to consider suspension legislation, authored by Smith, as an amendment to an omnibus war powers bill. Both Smith and Cox are Rules Committee members—Editor's note].

Hillman Hails Detroit Pact Stabilizing Skilled Wages

By Anthony G. de Lorenza

United Press Staff Writer

Detroit, Feb. 18.—A wage stabilization agreement under which skilled tool and diemakers employed by the automotive industry in the Detroit metropolitan area will receive pay boosts averaging 10 to 20 cents an hour was indorsed today by a labor-management committee.

Sidney Hillman, labor chief of the War Production Board, who convened the committee, hailed the agreement as "one of the most constructive steps of the entire war effort." He predicted it would reduce migration of these workers, facilitate upgrading of employes to more skilled jobs, and "lower the cost as well as increase the speed and efficiency" of the industry's conversion to full war production.

There are approximately 20,000 skilled tool and die workers in this area, 15,000 of whom would be subject to raises under the labor-management agreement, details of which will be formulated February 23.

Storm Ahead, Leiserson Warns

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Asserting that a "stormy career" lies ahead of the war labor board, William F. Leiserson said tonight that "as things look now" it appears inevitable that Congress will be forced to decree a national policy on wage increases and the closed shop "because the problems are too big and too crucial" for the board to solve.

Leiserson, a member of the National Labor Relations Board, addressed an audience at the College of the City of New York.

He said that Congress probably would act "promptly and drastically" should a crisis arise out of refusal of employers or workers to accept a policy or decision of the board, and added that this would be unfortunate without a final attempt to bring about mutual agreement on policy between labor and management.

To obtain such an agreement he suggested reconvening the labor-management conference which met in Washington in December and outlawed strikes and lockouts for the duration of the war.

"If the war labor conference were reconvened," he said, "and the policy problems now facing the board were referred to it for study and formulation in the light of possible Congressional action and the none-too-bright war situation, I think the method of mutual agreement might still prevail and the war labor board function successfully.

"Or, perhaps the President's war labor council (composed of three members each of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O.) might be given the same task with the addition of some employer member. Either of these could develop into the consultative agency for advice and agreement on policy, without which any labor relations program on a voluntary cooperation basis is bound to prove clumsy and unworkable."

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America (C. I. O.) said today they would seek wage increases of from 15 to 20 per cent for 300,000 members in the men's apparel industry because of increased living costs.

In the clothing industry, where the base pay is 86 cents an hour, an increase of 12½ cents an hour will be asked.

SHE'S BRINGING IT ON HERSELF . . .

Oh no, she's not trudging down the street under the weight of a laundry bag—just yet.

But every time she causes the laundry route man an unnecessary trip, she wears down his truck tires by just that much, and in just that measure hastens the day when laundries may be forced to cut deliveries down to a minimum more drastic than anything yet dreamed of.

Let's put it off as long as possible! You . . . and you . . . and YOU . . . can all cooperate by following three simple rules.

1. Don't ask for special pick-up and delivery service.
2. Don't tell the laundry route man to call, and then leave the house, forcing him to make a second trip.
3. Send BOTH your laundry and dry cleaning at the same time—and then no oftener than once a week.

To "Keep 'em Flying," to keep the caissons rolling along, we must all save on tires, and whether you have a car of your own or not, you can do your share in conserving rubber by making your delivery requirements as reasonable as possible.

YOU can help by placing your call for pick-up service at least one day in advance.

being READY with your bundle when the route man calls.

paying when the laundry is delivered (so the route man won't have to make a collection call the next day.)

sending ALL the wash in one bundle once a week, instead of sending several small bundles on different days.

refraining from asking for special pick-ups and deliveries.

WE are now helping by

Capitalites Are Boiling In a New Melting-Pot!

Theater Audiences Take on Odd Complexion; Paramount Plans House-Warming Party; Items of News and Gossip of the Theater

WASHINGTON will never be the same again. It wasn't after the first World War and, with the vastly increased influx of "temporary" outlanders—a surprising number of whom will grow fast and become permanent residents—a proportionately greater metamorphosis will have been undergone by the end of this one.

VICTOR JORY

Already, the casual chatter overheard in public places is as characteristic of Seattle, Salt Lake City, Albuquerque, Baton Rouge, Savannah, Bangor and way stations as it is of the National Capital. The starters on the street car loading platforms all are post-graduate sardine packers, struggling with the tumult and confusion of a once decorous—more or less—Capital of the Nation, suddenly become the overstuffed crossroads of the whole United States. At the corner of Fourteenth and F one is apt to be stopped by a bewildered stranger anxious to learn where G Street is and how to get there. All is not quiet along the Potomac.

The second transformation of a once somnolent city is even making itself felt in the theater. Audiences aren't what they used to be. They are bigger, but not better. Washington no longer sits on its hands in attendance at the theater, either flicker or flesh. It does not even keep its mouth shut, when the actors' are the only ones that should be open, except for purposes of catarrhal breathing. Take last Monday night at the opening performance of "Angel Street," for example.

"Angel Street," as we were saying Tuesday morning, is an eerie and taut business. It is written in a style and played in a spirit befitting the tenseness of superlative melodrama, but certainly, so beautifully done, it deserves respectful adult consideration a cut or two above the level of the ten-twent-thirt. It didn't get it Monday night.

A deep bass voice in the general vicinity of your reporter rumbled annoying asides and gratuitous promptings to the cast throughout the three acts. He was merely the one who happened to be nearest our good ear. At one point a bellow that must have startled Baltimore came out of the balcony. When Ernest Cossart almost forgot his hat, we began to suspect that we were in the Roadside—where such things are encouraged—instead of the National.

Washington was no longer Washington at the play, but a composite of all the whistle-stops in the country.

I am reliably informed that it was the first time this superb cast ever had encountered anything of the kind. Mr. Cossart, who once saved a scene on the same stage by some inspired ad libbing and impromptu business when a door stuck, found a fair share of amazement mixed with his amusement. Miss Sidney was more than mildly discomfitted, thinking something might be amiss with her performance—which most assuredly nothing was—and Victor Jory, I am told, for the first time in years felt the urge to revive his boxing skill and do something about that bass voice. There were those in the audience who would have been glad to hold his towel and keep the resin-box handy!

Dots and Dashes

Tuesday's preview peek at "The Vanishing Virginian" turned up a far more entertaining study of nearby Virginia family life than some of us had suspected, even with all the ballyhoo coming out of that recent, three-day, world premiere celebration at Lynchburg, the scene of the story . . . Yesterday's anticipatory squint at "Captains of the Clouds" unspooled what is probably the best picture of its kind to date—and in Technicolor's top tints, to boot . . . Thanks, belatedly, to Boniface Harry P. Somerville, of the Willard, for the annual edition of the legendary Lincoln apple . . . And to Bennett A. Cerf, of Random House, for the copy of Patrick Hamilton's new novel, "Hangover Square," duly received—but quick! . . . Incidentally, Sam Jack Kaufman's overture at Loew's Capitol, beginning today, will feature all the Virginia tunes he can think of, in compliment to "The Vanishing Virginian" . . . For present purposes, that would be Frank Morgan . . . Orson Welles' "Citizen Kane," up for all sorts of Academy Awards, will take over the screen at the Little Theater, come Sunday . . . Personal aside to Shepard Traube, producer-director of "Angel Street:" Replying to your thoughtful note of the 17th, the sense of gratitude runs in the opposite direction.

Words to the Wise

New York, Feb. 18.

GEN. HERSHEY: Edward Arnold, president of the Screen Actors Guild, was in New York last night. About the blanket-deferment of movie employes in the draft, Arnold—who opposes this—said: "When an actor is called by the draft board, let his conscience be his guide" . . . LIEUT. COMDR. GENE TUNNEY: Jack Dempsey, whose cigar and cigarette bill has been over $10 a day, has given up smoking.

EDWARD ARNOLD

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU: After Abbott and Costello finish "Pardon My Sarong," they'll take an unlimited leave of absence from Universal, to make a comprehensive tour of the Nation's theaters. Their goal is to raise enough money, $350,000, to buy a bomber. They'll pay their own expenses, and every dollar received will be earmarked. As soon as they gross the required sum, they'll present it to the Government . . . N. B. C.: Your rival chain, C. B. S., will try a television innovation next Friday. Linton Wells, the commentator, will conduct the new program-series . . . CAFE OWNERS ASSOCIATION: Joe E. Lewis, who won the 1941 Night Club Award, is being signed by Universal.

ᔓᔕ

JUSTICE WILLIAM O. DOUGLAS: Kay Swift, the songwriter who rented your Oregon home, is going to Hollywood. She'll work with Ira Gershwin, in editing the songs to be used in the Warner Bros.' biography of George Gershwin . . . MUSIC CORPORATION OF AMERICA: A large group of the artists whose contracts were transferred to you when the C. B. S. Artists Bureau was disbanded, have organized to break their contracts . . . CLAUDE WICKARD: Farm organizations have united in a plan to distribute "—Walking Clubs," which will be named in honor of the man who will be found responsible for the rubber shortage, and therefore for their having to walk to market.

ᔓᔕ

GEORGE WHITE: Your former night club, the Gay White Way, will be reopened by Lou Walters, the Boston and Miami nightclub operator, and Irving Zussman. It will be renamed "The Latin Quarter" . . . BILLIE BURKE: There will be no "Ziegfeld Follies" this year The plans were canceled . . . PAUL V. McNUTT: Arthur William appeared on last night's "Behind the Mike Program"—to tell of how he was reunited with his brother, after hearing the latter's name mentioned in a broadcast. William had gone to Alaska in 1907, and his family had him declared legally dead. His salary for last night's broadcast is being held up, because the producers of the program were unable to get a Social Security number for a man declared legally dead.

ᔓᔕ

EQUITY: Collette Lyons bought a song last year, for her exclusive use, called "She's the Toast of the Boys at the Post." She heard Audrey Christie sing that same song, in "Banjo Eyes." Miss Lyons was preparing to bring suit. But yesterday she was summoned to New York and signed by Cantor to sing that same song in the show, replacing Miss Christie, who has other commitments . . . WILLIAM BATTS: This is the time to quote Justice Brandeis, who, in 1917, said: "For every civilian these days, the job now is to be a good public private citizen" . . . BROADWAY ASSOCIATION: The production cost of "Let's Face It" has been repaid, and the backers now are profiting $8000 a week.

ᔓᔕ

MOSS HART: This is the story behind Victor Mature's current illness: When the doctor examined him, he told the star: "This is very serious, and I must take you to the hospital immediately. Come on, I'll take you in my car" . . . "No, we'll use an ambulnace," said the ailing but wise Mature. "In an ambulance, I'll get a million dollars' worth of publicity" . . . FANNIE BRICE: The producers of two new musicals have offered contracts to Bea Lillie, but she can't get passage from London to Lisbon . . . WARNER BROS.: Jimmy Durante is returning to Broadway. He'll be the next attraction at the Copacabana.

War Effort Seen Periling U. S. Press

(Copyright by Chicago Sun)

The life of American newspapers is threatened in the development of the war program, Charles H. Kaletzki, advertising man and public relations counsel of Syracuse, N. Y., told a Congressional committee yesterday.

A Senate Banking and Currency Subcommittee on small business heard Kaletzki and others testify in favor of the Murray bill to help the small businessman in wartime. Kaletzki told the committee that liberty of the press was an integral part of the problem.

"The stoppage of production in consumer goods must result in a serious breakdown of our mercantile establishment, thus lessening newspaper advertising," he said.

"Weaken your newspapers and you weaken the Nation—and there is only one way to prevent weakening of your newspapers—by seeing to it that the merchants of the Nation have something to sell.

"I am sure, however, that if given the proper incentive, the inventive genius of this country will produce new goods.

"If we can't have all wool garments, then maybe we can make something out of paper or grass. If we can't have furniture of metal, perhaps it can be built out of willow reeds. If we can't have china for our tables, maybe we can have glass.

"I do not ask for business as usual. Hundreds of thousands employed in mercantile establishments can be of little service on the battlefield or in the factories. If they are to continue to be self-sufficient, they must have something to sell."

S. B. Levings, sales manager of the Bastion Blessings Co., Grand Rapids, Mich., and Chicago told of his particular problem, that of changing from a manufacturer of soda fountains to the manufacturer of airplane parts.

The bill, written by Senator James E. Murray (Democrat), Montana, calls for a small business division to be set up in the War Production Board. The head of this division would be appointed by the President and have power to make investigations and recommendations to the board.

House Committee Due to Sidetrack Program Today

The House Ways and Means Committee at an executive meeting today is expected to sidetrack the Administration's 300-million-dollar program for Federal-subsidized increases in unemployment payments to war-displaced workers.

Faced with majority opposition, leaders long since abandoned hope for the original plan to pay up to $24 a week for 26 weeks. A compromise 20 per cent increase in State payments appeared likely to meet the same fate.

If further compromise efforts fail, Representative Pat Boland (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, majority House whip, said he will propose that the WPA be called on to meet temporary unemployment resulting from industrial plant conversions.

Boland said he believed WPA could provide jobs at prevailing wages for displaced workers, mainly on defense projects, with a 100-million-dollar additional appropriation, one-third of the cost of the subsidy proposal. Boland, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, doubted that that group would have jurisdiction to act on the WPA alternative. If the displacement measure is rejected in toto, he said the Appropriations Committee may be called on to act.

Held National Problem

Opposition to the original plan mainly stemmed from State charges that the program would start "Federalization" of State unemployment compensation systems, broaden coverage, "encourage idleness" and handicap the quest for additional farm labor.

Despite Administration contentions that trained labor temporarily displaced must be kept on the spot and trained to man new defense plants, Governors of six States satisfied that the States could adequately meet the problem from their own unemployment reserves. Federal Security Administrator McNutt and War Labor Director Hillman told the committee State payments were "inadequate" and that the problem was national.

One compromise proposal that will be offered today in an effort to prevent outright rejection of the plan is a lump-sum payme.. amendment b yRepresentative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan. He proposed that the States be reimbursed for liberalized aid to displaced workers, up to one-third of the cost.

A somewhat similar plan was advanced by some of the Governors, who did not oppose special aid in the case of Michigan, where auto plant conversions may put 350,000 temporarily out of jobs.

2c Milk Price Rise Threatened

Reduction of number of "brands" of milk each dairy puts up and of number of bottle sizes.

Requirement of a bottle deposit.

Testifying for the proposed one-cent increase, B. B. Derrick, secretary of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, said of the threat of a two-cent jump that "all they're trying to is scare people."

Hillyard, in his testimony, contended that increase in milk prices would result in "less consumption by the public."

"Another effect," he said, "would be to lessen the sales of cream. The distributors have after much hard work greatly increased the sales of cream in this area. This has been accomplished after much publicity and personal contact. If the price of cream is increased more evaporated milk will be used for coffee."

Thompson likewise raised this argument that increase in milk prices would give an impetus to sale of evaporated milk.

O. W. Anderson, Montgomery County agent, testifying in favor of the increase, declared that production costs have arisen lately greater production costs justified the increase.

Gen. J. K. Herr, Chief of Cavalry, Retires Feb. 28

Maj. Gen. J. K. Herr, chief of cavalry, will retire from active service February 28, the War Department announced yesterday.

Herr, an ardent horseman and one of the Army's noted polo players, is a staunch advocate of the use of horse cavalry in modern warfare. He began his tour of service as chief of cavalry in March, 1938, and prior to that had commanded the Seventh Cavalry at Fort Bliss, Tex.

He was born at White House Station, N. J., on October 1, 1876, and was graduated from West Point in 1902. For his services overseas in 1918 as chief of staff of the Thirtieth Division he received the Distinguished Service Medal, as well as the Belgian Order of Leopold.

House Votes 221 Millions For 3 Departments, Courts

A bill appropriating 221 million dollars for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments and the Federal judiciary for the 1943 fiscal year was passed by the House and sent to the Senate yesterday.

Representing an increase of nearly 14 million dollars over budget estimates, the measure will permit some increases in Federal personnel. At the same time the total is approximately 150 million dollars less than the sum available this year for the three departments and the courts.

Passed virtually in the same form as recommended by the Appropriations Committee, the principal floor amendment would allow $300,000 for a Justice Department investigation of Japanese activities on the West Coast.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation will have 10,000 employes under the funds authorized—6400 clerks and 2000 agents.

An increase in the State Department's budget will enable an increase of 204 positions in the departmental staff, of whom 65 would be permanent and the remainder for the duration of the war emergency.

The immigration and naturalization service will hire 375 new employes here and 670 in the field under the appropriation.

The alien registration service, shortly to be moved to Philadelphia, will increase its personnel by 278, bringing its total force to 462.

Under the Ramspeck Act $930,909 in pay raises are recommended, of which the State Department would receive $124,370; Commerce, $390,491; Justice, $281,898, and the judiciary, $34,141.

One of the chief items of the bill is an appropriation of 36 million dollars for the civilian pilot training program. The approved amount is that originally requested by the Commerce Department, which was subsequently pared to approximately 20 million dollars by the Budget Bureau.

The budget for the Washington National Airport in the next fiscal year was fixed at $466,000—an increase of $171,000 over last year to meet increased operating costs occasioned largely by operation of hangars for a full year instead of on a part-year basis as in the current budget.

G.O.P. Leader Urges Curbs On Spending

By the Associated Press

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 18.—Representative Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Republican), of Massachusetts, appealing for economy in Government during war as well as peace, said that "the individual who uses the peril of this Nation and the stress of our needs to cover up or to justify waste and inefficiency betrays his country."

The chairman of the Republican National Committee, in an address tonight at a public meeting attended by party leaders, continued:

"You are aware that the very necessity for huge expenditures for the war effort makes it imperative we call a halt on nonessential nondefense spending. Our future security rests upon the degree of efficiency and economy we can force into nondefense spending, as well as defense spending.

"It is a curious and utterly fallacious argument which holds that the wage earners and the little people, so to speak, are not particularly affected by a great public debt or by heavy taxation. There are those spurious economists and false prophets who try to tell the people a little inflation is a good thing. They hint repudiation of debt hits only the wealthy."

He said that 65 million individuals who have life insurance would be adversely affected by inflation or debt repudiation.

San Francisco Is Blacked Out

San Francisco, Feb. 18 (AP).—San Francisco and the bay area was blacked out at 9:01 tonight. It was the first in this area since January 3. The blackout ended in 30 minutes.

The Fourth Interceptor Command said it was due to the presence of an unidentified plane in the bay area. The plane later was identified as friendly.

Searls and Blaisdell Join Nathan on Thinkers Board

By the Associated Press

War Production Director Donald M. Nelson last night announced his hand-picked "thinking committee," a three-man planning board set up to advise Nelson on all production and procurement problems and headed by Robert R. Nathan, 33-year-old economist and statistician of Dayton, Ohio.

BLAISDELL

The other members — like Nathan comparatively unknown in Washington officialdom — are Frederick Searls, jr., New York industrial engineer now serving as consultant in the ordnance bureau of the War Department, and Thomas C. Blaisdell, jr., Pennsylvania-born assistant director of the National Resources Planning Board.

Nathan has been in the defense organization since May, 1940, when he left his post as chief of the national income division of the Department of Commerce. At present he is chief of the military and civilian requirements branch of the War Production Board's bureau of research and satistics.

Blaisdell came to Washington in 1933 as a member of the consumers' advisory board of the NRA. He subsequently served with the Resettlement Administration, the Social Security Board, and the Securities and Exchange Commission. He is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College. Searls is president of the Newmount Mining Co., New York City.

The salaries of the three were not disclosed immediately.

More Hospital Beds

Senator McCarran is scheduled to appear today before the Education and Labor Committee of the Senate on a matter of the utmost concern to the District. He will present for the committee's consideration a plan for expanding private hospital facilities. That such facilities are insufficient to cope with an expanding Washington has been generally acknowledged. But for financial reasons the hospitals have been unable to do anything about it. There is now pending before the House a bill which would provide 1000 additional beds at Gallinger Hospital and at Glenn Dale Sanatorium. And it is equally urgent that private hospital facilities be similarly expanded.

The plan which Senator McCarran will present was approved yesterday by the Senate and House District Committees. It would provide 867 additional beds at a cost of two million dollars. The money, however, would have to come from Lanham funds. Since the Education and Labor Committee of the Senate is now considering the authorization of some 50 million dollars from Lanham funds for defense housing and public works in the District, it will have to determine whether the requested two million dollars for hospital beds may properly come from the 50-million-dollar total.

The main issue here is not the wisdom of allocating public money to private hospitals. The issue is community health in an area for which Congress is directly responsible. All of the local hospitals have been overcrowded for some time. With more and more persons arriving in Washington to service the war effort, the predicament of the hospitals is bound to worsen. An epidemic of disease or a military catastrophe—either of which could happen—would, as Senator McCarran sensibly emphasizes, lay Congress open to blame for not providing increased hospital facilities. In the circumstances, the logical course for the Education and Labor Committee of the Senate is to recognize the many implications of hospital overcrowding and act accordingly.

Oil Rationing

Secretary Ickes, who is likewise petroleum coordinator, warns that the rationing of gasoline may not be far distant. For the present he suggests a voluntary reduction of 15 per cent in consumption on the East and West coasts. He also urges shifts from the use of industrial fuel oil to coal and conyersion of some tankers carrying gasoline to North Atlantic States to transportation of fuel oil. Mr. Ickes has also resurrected his plan for constructing a pipeline from Texas to New York—a project for which the defunct SPAB refused to grant steel priorities last fall.

In favor of the pipeline proposal are the losses of tanker tonnage, actual and prospective, caused by submarine warfare along our coasts. Recently completed pipelines plus much more effective utilization of railway tank car facilities have relieved the pressure upon transportation facilities, but have not prevented rather alarming inroads upon Eastern petroleum stocks, due to tanker sinkings and Navy requisitions. On the other hand, it would require an enormous amount of steel—to say nothing of labor—to construct a Texas-New York pipeline. Furthermore, it would take many months to complete the undertaking, whereas the threat to our water-borne transportation of petroleum is painfully immediate.

The only way in which we can counteract the immediate threat to dwindling oil stocks is to conserve our gasoline and fuel oil supplies. If the voluntary system does not yield satisfactory results, rationing will be the only feasible method of coping with shortages. And it should not be too long delayed, in view of the uncertain outlook.

The value of the pipeline project not only has to be balanced against the cost in terms of steel. It also has to be estimated in terms of the consumption needs of a future which will witness a rapid decline in the number of automobiles in use as tires wear out. By the time Mr. Ickes' pipeline to Texas had been completed, the enforced reduction in gasoline consumption might be so severe as to make new means of transporting oil superfluous. But such speculations merely indicate the difficulties of the oil problem and the need for a resurvey of demand and supply factors to take account of rapidly changing conditions caused by war.

Our Front Line

That the universal nature of this war has rubbed out our national frontiers has become axiomatic. Yet a defense psychology limited to our shorelines might be unconsciously encouraged by the Presidential statement that "under certain conditions," our territory might be bombed, even invaded.

Certainly many timorous folk will seize eagerly upon that statement. For already they have been clamoring to keep planes and ships at home. Senator David I. Walsh, for instance, said on Tuesday that we were in an "almost defenseless condition," and that "the day may come when we shall have to bring back from the four corners of the world our depleted Navy to be a source of defense for our shores." That kind of talk is exaggerated and defeatist. It is born of that sense of caution which has been our undoing since the nature of this conflict as a universal irruption directed in the final analysis against "pluto-democratic" America came to be understood by our leaders.

Hitler helped our leaders to explain the danger to America of this war when he entered into his compact with the Japanese. That was on September 27, 1940. The President keyed his prewar defense program to the Japo-Hitlerite challenge. He and the event combined to make such a deep impression on the American people that exactly 12 months ago—five months after the Axis compact—the Gallup organization recorded that 56 per cent of the people polled responded with a decisive yes to the question: Do you think the United States should try to keep the Japanese from seizing the Dutch East Indies and Singapore? Only 24 per cent voted no. By comparison a year before little more than half of the Americans polled favored the defense of even our own territory of Hawaii.

What an awakening in 12 months! That was sufficient justification, if leadership had any meaning, for the assumption, tacit or otherwise, of joint responsibility with the British for the defense of Singapore, as this newspaper suggested on February 25, 1941. Yet caution still ruled our statesmanship. Nothing was done. We did not even switch the moorings of our destroyers and light craft from Cavite to Singapore. And now the American people have the mortification of reading that the loss of Singapore will add years to the duration of the war, and that Singapore could have been saved if there had been 30 Flying Fortresses in Malaya.

Such caution must now be thrown to the winds if this Nation is to be saved. Nelson said that "the boldest measures are the safest," and the Japanese have adopted the motto with signal success. Yet our present need to abandon a cautionary policy which is responsible more than anything else for Japanese and German seizure of huge chunks of our world is not based upon boldness. It is based upon common sense. In a world given over to war the only frontier that counts is the battleline. For there is only one thing sure about this war, and that is that every lost battle brings the ultimate battle nearer to our shoreline. In those circumstances retreat is defeat.

Accordingly, any action in accordance with Senator Walsh's ideas—which are isolationism in war dress—would be the action of the Pied Piper drawing the entire force of Japo-Hitlerism to our continental positions. Let us not compound lost battles by letting others go by default, but think only of those lost battles as missed chances to be repaired in the next battle.

Stripping The NYA

The National Youth Administration has taken pains to point out that projects which do not qualify as essential to defense are being discontinued. This sounds definitely encouraging and in line with our paramount need to strip for war. Actually, however, the NYA's claim merely reflects an extraordinary ingenuity in making its activities appear to be essential to the war effort. The agency marshals impressive statistics to show that thousands of young people now employed in defense industries received their preliminary training under the NYA educational program. This is no doubt true, but it does not dispose of the fact that that program was set up to train unemployed young people when private industry could not absorb them. Industry can absorb them now—which undercuts the most important original excuse for calling the NYA into being. Some industries, to be sure, have not yet acquired sufficient training facilities, but private expansion in this direction is already considerable and will continue to increase in the months ahead.

The sensible thing to do, therefore, is to coordinate NYA training courses with private training courses. If this should be done, however, it would mean a gradual diminishing of the NYA's educational program in direct proportion to private industry's increasing ability to train young people for defense jobs. So far, anyway, those who defend the continuing existence of the NYA show little disposition to acknowledge the soundness of such a development. It is a discouraging attitude, considering the urgency of eliminating duplicating effort in the emergency. And it tends to confirm the impression that the NYA, like some other Government agencies, is determined to perpetuate itself, regardless of changing circumstance. Expert advice, as The Post has pointed out, is needed in determining where the knife should be applied in stripping Government agencies for war. But such advice is worthless without a critical and impartial appraisal of what constitutes essential defense activity.

Case For Repeal

The chances strongly favor speedy repeal of the legislation making members of Congress eligible for voluntary inclusion in the Federal contributory retirement system. However, the current debate in the Senate shows very plainly that many Senators regard themselves as the hapless victims of a campaign of deliberate misrepresentation and vilification. Stung by public criticism, they are fearful of the effect of the pensions vote upon their political futures as well as upon public morale. Primarily for those reasons—and not because they regard pensions for themselves as wrong in principle—many legislators are prepared to reverse their votes and approve a repeal measure.

It is true that exaggerated statements regarding the size of the pensions and the cost to the Government (which would probably be small) have gained currency. A few minor changes in the pension law would meet criticisms of this sort. But the issue goes much deeper. Members of Congress who honestly believe they are entitled to share in the benefits of the Federal retirement system mistakenly attribute the strength of the repeal movement to public ignorance and stupidity. So believing, they will almost certainly return to the attack and again demand pensions for themselves when conditions become more propitious. Hence it is important not only to repeal the present pension plan but to emphasize the fact that Federal pensions for members of Congress are fundamentally wrong. That was recognized by Senator Byrd who tried unsuccessfully in committee to amend the pension bill so as to exclude all elective officials.

In defending the action of Congress Senator Mead stressed the fact that New York permits her elective officials, from the Governor down, to participate in the State retirement system. If New York wishes to extend such privileges to elective officials, that is her prerogative as a sovereign State. But it does not justify the Federal Government's following a bad example. Furthermore, the cases are not strictly parallel since the members of Congress, although paid from the Federal Treasury, are elected to represent the several States. It is entirely unfitting for them to become beneficiaries of a retirement system set up primarily for the benefit of the permanent administrative employes of the Federal Government.

Service in the Congress of the United States is, as a rule, of limited duration and was meant to be so. A few old-timers experienced in the arts of legislation are an asset to Congress, but a representative form of government as a matter of self-preservation requires a fairly rapid turnover in its legislative body. Men who enter political life do so with the understanding that they are sacrificing economic security for the prestige and the honor of serving the public. Those Congressmen who plead poverty and inability to save as an excuse for voting them into a Federal retirement system are making a very unedifying spectacle of themselves. If they do not like the conditions attached to elective public office, they can return to private life. And in so doing most of them will find that their political careers have greatly assisted them to make a living in private capacities.

UNDER THESE STREETS

Earth is there, just under the paving.
Men who prisoned him know full well
What the strength of the captive giant
Put no trust in this molded shell!

Try with hands the silent metal
White with the charging winter storm:
Warm! As flesh in a fitted garment
Makes the stuff of the garment warm!

Earth is a god of growth and growing.
What are these barren streets and walks?
Roots examine the jointed curbstones,
Grass creeps up through ballast and knocks.

Even now as darkness hovers
Somewhere, learning the crust is slight,
Earth has silently lifted upward,
Found the way to remembered light!

The Ordeal Approaches

Before Pearl Harbor we were a people soft and self-indulgent, a generation which has never really known what it is to "do without." We cried out our belief in the principle of liberty for all men everywhere, but we were too hesitant and preoccupied to do anything about it, even for the protection of the freedoms of our own shores. Has that one action transformed us so quickly and so completely? Are we now a people hard, ruthless, enduring and self-forgetting, the only kind of people that can stand up against the evil which confronts us? Where is the evidence that such transformation has taken place?

Look within yourself and ask, what sacrifice have you laid on the common altar? Put your hand on the pain, on even the inconvenience this thing has caused you so far. Perhaps you are as all the rest of us—talking of what we must do to win this war but secretly meaning that the other fellow will have to do it. We brag of what sacrifices we will have to make and at the same time slip over to the corner grocery and buy up all the sugar our purse will allow, to be stored away for use when others are on the ration allowance, or doing without.

Did you buy a new car just at the "right time" so that you can roll around as usual until all is over? Did you buy the wife a few dozen pairs of silk hose while they were to be had, just enough maybe to last "for the duration?" Did you stock up your clothes closets and pantry shelves so that there would be no danger that you or any of yours would have to suffer any of the pangs of cold or hunger, even that freedom might not perish from the earth? Anything, anything, that the hide shall not be knocked off our smooth and comfortable backs!

We are due for a terrible lesson and it is coming upon us sooner than the wisest of us think. The skies are becoming darker and darker, and destruction beyond our imagination is even now not far away. Remember, it is the fantastic, the impossible, the inconceivable that happens in this war, and we are faced with powerful and desperate races of men. The ordeal is drawing closer and closer apace and only the strong, the valiant and those able to stand self-denial, pain and bitter tragedy will be able to survive. Whether the American people can endure that which we must endure or perish God alone knows. FOLGER TOWNSEND.

Help Not Glory

They are naming a street in Washington for MacArthur; squabbling over whether they will call it a road or a boulevard; quite characteristic of our war effort in this city. What cares MacArthur about a street named for him here in Washington! He and his men need everything, planes, reinforcements, supplies, and we give him an epitaph. Name a street for him and sit back in our smugness and prattle about the honor we have shown him. His men are dying out there, bravely upholding the finest traditions of our country, with just a glimmering ray of hope that somehow, before it is too late, Uncle Sam will do the right thing by them. Those were fine words that our President spoke right after Pearl Harbor to the defenders of the Philippines. Hold on and we will help you. Everyone knows how they held on. In the meantime reinforcements reach Ireland.

The best defense is an attack. Who said that? Not the men in Washington. By now surely we must be turning out 2000 bombers a month, flying fortresses, some of them. Are there no red-blooded men in the air forces of the Army or Navy who would volunteer to fly just a few token long range bombers by stages to MacArthur? Are there not a few red-blooded men in command who will give the orders? AN AMERICAN MOTHER

Filipino Loyalty

The desire of the Filipinos for political emancipation has often been interpreted in the past as one of ingratitude and unfriendliness toward the American people.

The best way to understand the desire of the Filipinos for political freedom is perhaps by way of an analogy. The youth who reaches the age of maturity and desires to depart from the family home for a life in which he must depend on himself, offers a close parallel to American-Philippine political relation. In his father's house the boy may enjoy all the comforts and protections that the family can afford: to live in his own would be uncertain, and in all probability it will impose incalculable sacrifices on his part. From the standpoint of his immediate well-being it would be to his interest to stay close to the family table. But in spite of all these he is still willing to forego these conveniences so that he may go out into the world and live the life he chooses.

The Filipinos are that youth. They have been taught for the last 42 years by their mother country—the United States of America, the desirability of freedom and self-determination. The Filipino people would be unworthy of themselves if they do not have the urge to put into practice the things they have learned. And what is more, the desire for political emancipation would be in accordance with the desire of the United States Government to bring into fruition the American colonial policy in the Islands—"Philippines For the Filipinos."

Yet this aspiration interferes in no way with the friendship and devotion to the United States; nor does it diminish the willingness of the Filipinos to serve America in time of crisis. The loyalty of the Filipinos was first tested during the World War I. In 1917, 25,000 Filipinos loyally responded to the proclamation of President Manuel L. Quezon when he summoned them to the cause of Stars and Stripes. Today the same loyalty of the Filipinos is being subjected to the same ordeal; this time it is in the scene of battle at Bataan Peninsula. It must be admitted that the odds are heavy, but they are being met with loyalty and courage equal to the need that requires it.

But if some day when the tragedy of defeat overcomes Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his men, attribute it not to the lack of courage or determination, nor to the lack of loyalty on the part of the Filipinos, but to some other factors whose existence and solutions are only best known to our military men here in Washington.

Consequence Predicted

If those Congressmen who voted for that pension bill for pauper Congressmen would only look up the past history of Congress, they would drop it as quickly as a hot poker picked up by the wrong end.

The writer remembers the time not so long after the Civil War when Congress voted itself a raise, which was to begin, and did begin, with the existing term. The whole Nation was so shocked at members voting public funds into their own pockets, that the welkin rang with denunciations. Many young members, just bidding into statesmenship, never again saw the inside of Congress, and many of the old war horses who thought their terms life tenures, heard themselves condemned as untrustworthy of public funds in their keeping and felt themselves forcibly ejected into the "has been" class. OCD Criticism

I have just finished reading a letter to the editor of The Post from one "Legioneer." For several days The Post has evidenced its attitude toward the policy of OCD in hiring certain individuals to carry out the morale program.

I say, Mr. Editor, this is just the type of criticism we have practiced for a long time. Every new idea seems to meet with unnecessary opposition before it has had a chance to prove its value. Isolationists blocked many new plans for our national defense by refusing to listen to those with new ideas. Anti-New Dealer newspapers aided in the defeat of many Government projects proposed to raise the standard of the masses. And now, "Legioneers" have begun to advocate policies of criticism toward new ideas for us, which, in other countries, have been practiced for years. The successful belligerents of today began their national program with the children and educated them in every activity and every duty leading finally to the defense of their country. They could see, for instance, a possibility that their program could not succeed if they were faced with distractions of bombs, excitement and general hysteria. And in many other respects those countries tried new ideas that proved valuable to them and injurious to us. Some of these accomplishments are now recognized by us, and we criticize ourselves for delaying, while our Congress "absolves itself" of blame for many delays.

But with all this, Mr. Editor, we continue to fear the launching of a new campaign, a campaign to organize, train, and educate our people in what, how, and when to do, as well as the method of doing the same. We would rather sit still with obsolete methods, that once proved successful, and ignore the fact that they are today inadequate in view of modern warfare. We seem to prefer paying the dear price of experience before initiating the new program.

Thanks to Mrs. Roosevelt for her voluntary effort in many projects. Thanks to her for breaking the tradition of "teas" so completely. She is undoubtedly the most active First Lady, the most democratic-minded personality, and most generous individual ever to inhabit the White House.

No, Mr. Editor, Mrs. Roosevelt is not, in the words of your Legioneer, "doing more to throw suspicion on the efficiency of our war effort." To the contrary, she is now doing, and always has done, everything in her power to awaken the American people to the need of economic, political and social advancement. She is not, therefore, to be discouraged by the personal references under the seal of the alias "Legioneer." She should be encouraged by all of us.

Traffic Selfishness

All automobilists who have to travel from outlying districts into the congested area of Washington in the early morning and return in the late afternoon undoubtedly see numerous instances of selfish disregard of the rights of others.

Although there are numerous instances of private cars exhibiting callous disregard of safety regulations and the ordinary traffic regulations of the District, the greatest offenders are the taxicabs and the buses.

Repeatedly traffic does not stop when there is congestion ahead in order to leave the cross traffic a clear right of way. This selfish disregard of the rights of the crossing traffic frequently causes traffic jams which may extend back half to three-quarters of a block. The final result is that traffic both ways is frequently jammed and blocked for an appreciable time.

If every automobilist who witnesses such unnecessary and selfish disregard of the traffic laws will report to the Police Department by letter every time they see such a jam, eventually the police will have to do something about it.

'On Winter's Traces'

Mitty Bell was glaring out at the sleet on the lawn next door. "'Beneath the crisp and wintry carpet hid, a million buds but stay their blossoming,'" I offered consolingly, joining her at the window. I tweaked aside the curtain and waved a proprietory hand at the encrusted lawn; a little snow and ice could not keep down my good spirits! Mitty Bell knows how to take me down in short order; she's had long practice. She left off staring out and turned her bland green eyes on me in a commiserating way that made me feel foolish and, yes,—definitely my age.

"A million! You can't count that far. Now I'd be thankful to see ten. And don't give me that nifty about dreaming as you wandered by the way 'bare winter suddenly was changed to spring.' The only wandering you do is in your armchair!" She twitched her tail impatiently, then curled it sleekly about her velvet paws. "Besides it ain't so," she added on a less lofty note, resuming her contemplation of the boney little maple beyond the hedge which was growing increasingly glassy and brittle in its icy insulation.

"Isn't," I corrected automatically, "and I didn't dream it; it was Shelly," I retorted, miffed, as well I might be; "what I started out to say was, that, showers from the south 'will hither tempt the pilgrim steps of spring!'"

"Then you should say what you mean," she glared, parroting the Mad Hatter in her most disdainful way. "And what did the Pilgrims know about temptations? Stern, rock-bound folk they were, completely invulnerable to weaknesses. Besides we were South last winter, and I suffered, yes suffered from the cold," she emphasized, shuddering prettily. "I felt it in a way I do not feel cold here," she added significantly.

"Steam heat makes all the difference," I interposed hastily; I saw what she was leading up to; "just because its summertime inside, you needn't think I'm going to let you out. Or take you out. Besides my galoshes have sprung a leak, and you know there's a rubber shortage, Mitty!" She stretched out a silken leg and clenched her toes.

"I thought you were the one who was always seeing the rose through the snows," she said, rather irrelevantly I thought.

I denied the allegation. "Violets maybe, or snowdrops. 'Snowdrops come to strange and happy springs——'"

"Spring!" Mitty sniffed wearily; "I tell you I'd be warm enough outside, besides I'm wearing my fur." She turned a complacent side and glanced down her svelte, satin shoulders. (She's quite forgotten I rescued her from a fate worse-than-death as an alley-cat, Sh-h-)

"Well, I'm not," I said tartly, "and we're staying in. But I did see daffodils on Columbia Road last week. They 'fell from Dis's wagon.'" Daffodils always get me somehow.

"They did not, they were on a cart," Mitty contradicted flatly, "and the colored man's name wasn't Dis—it was Dick. Very bedraggled daffodils they were too; not worth the money!" Mitty can be shrewd as a fishwife when she wants to.

"Let it pass," I hastened to placate her for she was beginning to sheath and unsheath her claws, "anyway I didn't buy them." I took a new tack. "'When spring is old,'" I was beginning when Mitty snatched the words right out of my mouth and turned them to her own advantage.

"'I see my love in shadowy groves, speed down dark aisles on shining feet.' It's past time for my walk, sleet or no sleet!" she reminded me haughtily. Mitty Bell can be persistent as the devil.

"I know what you're thinking," I accused sternly, "You think you'll meet that black Tom who lives upstairs. Well, he walks on a leash!" I brought out triumphantly. She went and sat on the rug, her back to me, hunching her shoulders huffily and staring obstinately at the wall.

"We had better stay in where its snug and warm," I announced to her obdurate figure, speaking extra firm to cover my guilt; after all she did need to go out sometime. "'The hounds of spring are on winter's traces,' you know, Mitty. Hounds are unpleasant creatures!"

She flicked aside this thrust and with dignity unimpaired she went into the kitchen and lapped the last of her breakfast cream. Then she leaped softly to the window-ledge and began to wash herself decently. She looked little and alone and very helpless. Oh, well! I gave up. There are females in this world who can make a man go against anything he ever said. Spring, as sung by poets, could wait; books and deep, soft chairs could wait. But I couldn't forego a last thrust: "You can't go without your collar,—people will think you're a stray!" I snapped, rising wearily. She side-stepped it neatly and began a noisy purr, slithering around my ankles; she was willing to forgive, she said. (And why shouldn't she be? Who always wins our arguments, I'd like to know?)

"'It was the time of roses, and we plucked them as we passed,'" I chanted dismally; then I picked up Mitty and went out to face the icy blasts. JENNIFER STONE.

Shelters Wanted

Why is it that no air raid shelters have been made in Washington to protect us from bombers, if every one is sure that they are coming? I dislike to think that England thinks more of the lives of her citizens than our America does, for England certainly built air-raid shelters and underground ones as well, and we all know they saved many thousand lives.

It seems easy to sign big checks for everything else, but when it is all distributed it fails to be enough to go around. We specially need something to protect us poor scared women and children. Oh, I know we have lots of air-raid wardens scattered all around ready to pick up our dead or crippled bodies, but we want to live.

Today And Tomorrow

The American High Command

LIPPMANN

MUCH THE MOST serious and the most difficult of our tasks is to develop a high command which is able to plan and conduct the post-Pearl Harbor and the post-Singapore war. Obviously the war cannot be won without weapons and it cannot be won without trained men to use them. But though it is not so obvious, it is no less certainly the fact that without tactical ingenuity and an incisive strategical conception of this particular war, weight of weapons and masses of men cannot be sufficient.

Our enemies have proved what can be done though they started with greatly inferior resources, with less available force than their combined opponents, holding at the outset none of the strong points like Singapore, Manila, Hawaii, Gibraltar, Malta and the rest. Even today, though the combined naval forces of the United Nations are still superior to theirs, we find that everywhere they have the initiative and are on the offensive even within sight of the Pacific and the Atlantic Coasts of North America, even within the approaches of the Panama Canal.

NO DOUBT SINCE December 7 there has been much hard thinking in Washington and in London. But the fact remains that on the whole the thinking is being done by men who have made their professional careers in the pre-Pearl Harbor and the pre-Singapore era of military policy.

The question is whether, given their hourly preoccupation with rapidly moving events, they have the time, the epergy, and the freshness of mind to reexamine their fundamental conceptions and to adjust their thinking to the profoundly unexpected situation which confronts them.

It is not for a layman who is not in their confidence to say that they have not. But it can do no harm and may do some good for laymen to insist on some of the profound differences between the war as it actually is and the war as almost all Americans, including our naval and military commanders, have hitherto conceived it.

THUS THIS IS THE FIRST WAR in which the United States has ever faced an alliance of enemies in both oceans. Though it has long been known that we might eventually be at war with Japan, our national policy and our naval doctrine have always rested on the comfortable premise that the Atlantic would be safe under the control of British sea power and that our whole force could be concentrated against Japan. But in this war, having hesitated for years to reinforce the British and Allied forces in the Atlantic, having risked the fall of France and the weakening of Britain, we are no longer able to deploy our whole concentrated power against Japan.

This, too, is our first great war in which our part is not incidental but central. Our part in the Napoleonic wars was incidental. Our part in the War of 1917 was that of a powerful auxiliary pouring reinforcements into a battle line which was being held by the Allies and oversea communications which, though threatened, were well organized.

This time we do not fit ourselves into a prepared position. We have to make our own way in the world.

OUR MILITARY POLICY has reflected accurately our public opinion which has by and large held these truths to be self-evident. First, we believed that we had no mortal enemies who seriously conspired and prepared to attack us, and to destroy our position in the world, and to deprive us of rights that we deem essential; that therefore we would never be and need never be at war unless deliberately we chose to be, and that we could then make war when we chose and as we chose. The naval dispositions at Pearl Harbor reflected this opinion.

Second, we held that we had no vital interests outside of American territory—that Malaya for example, was British, Indo-China was French, the Netherlands Indies were Dutch, Siberia was Russian, and China was Chinese, and that to be concerned about them was to be concerned with pulling out of the fire a mess of inconsequential chestnuts which belong to foreign imperialists.

Third, we held that we could guarantee the security of the Philippines and of Alaska, of Hawaii and Panama, of the Caribbean, of Canada, of Latin America from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn with a Navy only slightly larger than the Japanese, and that what happened to the British, the French, the Italian navies was no real factor in the problem of American national defense.

UPON THESE PROFOUND illusions our military and naval doctrine has been built. It has envisaged a naval war with Japan in which somehow Singapore and the South Pacific islands surrounding the Philippines would not fall to Japan. It has envisaged a one-ocean war in which the control of the Atlantic from Iceland to Argentina was not something which need trouble us.

Faced with the actual war which through four years of willful blindness we have allowed to deteriorate desperately to our disadvantage, we are compelled to improvise a wholly new strategical policy and, what is perhaps even more important, radically different tactical methods. Our battleship losses at Pearl Harbor make the matter considerably worse, but even if the battleship fleet were intact, we should still be in a situation which is radically different from that which national opinion and naval doctrine were prepared for. Indeed, there is ground for wondering whether if we had been able to put into operation our original pre-Pearl Harbor plans, we might not, like the British with their battleships at Malaya, have run into a still greater and more irretrievable disaster.

THE QUESTION which the layman must ask is whether the high command in Washington is sufficiently willing to search out and promote rapidly officers who have fresh minds because they have not grown old and eminent in a routine which no longer fits the existing situation. Let us not forget how difficult it is for any one to reconsider radically the fundamental conception upon which his whole career has been founded.

Without casting away the experience of age, without resorting to any foolish demagoguery against the older men, let us promptly and calmly ask ourselves whether the infusion of new blood and the appearance of new faces would not contribute a new vigor and a new intelligence to the high command.

Colombian Economics

By Jean A. Crawford

Unstabilized By War

Bogota, Colombia.

THE GOVERNMENT of Colombia is faced with a growing economic crisis. Since the outbreak of war in the Pacific, there has been a marked unsteadiness in prices, and a tendency toward inflation.

Three factors seem to predominate in causing this condition. In some cases, actual shortages of raw materials and manufactured goods have caused a rise in prices. This is especially true of commodities cut off by the war in the Orient. Profiteering has been a second cause of instability. More important than either of the former is the fact that many dealers are uncertain as to what materials will be available to them during the next year.

When the charges for some scarce materials went to extreme height, the government fixed prices by decree and rationed the product. This was done first with rubber tires, after it became apparent that the present stocks could not be easily replenished. Dealers were required to declare their stocks, and control was begun immediately. Similar decrees were later issued covering the use of articles of metal, such as steel and copper wire, cables, and steel for reinforcing concrete. Whenever possible, locally produced materials must be subsituted for imported metals.

RETAIL PRICES of locally raised goods have also tended to rise in sympathy with those of imported goods. The explanation given by the dealers is usually "the war," although the cost of production of such local goods has not changed noticeably. There have been no wage or rent increases, nor rise in the cost of living sufficient to justify this rise in prices.

The third cause of price instability is that the people do not yet know what amounts of the imported strategic materials they will be able to obtain during the coming year. Other South American countries have seen the need of supplying Washington with complete details of their requirements. Their economic delegations presented their needs to the United States Government some months ago.

Colombia has not only failed to arrange similar representation in Washington, but has so far prepared no estimate of the materials needed to sustain her economy. Naturally, the United States can make no priority allotment for these. This has meant that certain important Colombian industries could not plan their operating schedules for the coming year. It has also meant that the possessors of such materials as are available try to realize excessive profits from them.

COLOMBIANS tend to blame this situation on the priority board in the United States, not realizing that their requirements are considered in Washington to be secondary only to defense needs, and take preference over the domestic requirements of United States civilians, and yet the tires are not available in Colombia because the needs of the country have not been presented in Washington.

The development of Colombia's resources as a result of the present war conditions will hardly be in the line of greater production of strategic materials, with the possible exception of rubber. Of the strategic materials lacking in the United States and produced by Colombia, the principal items are petroleum, coffee, divi-divi, platinum, hides and skins, rubber and wool. Petroleum is already obtained to the maximum so far made available by development of producing fields. Coffee will probably show production greater than combined domestic and export requirements.

Platinum production is at its maximum for the next several years, partly in the hands of an American financed company and partly in the hands of small miners bringing their weekly digs to local shops in payment of their "red" entries. Divi-divi and the wild rubber which the country produces in small quantity are both gathered in the forests and handled through a succession of middlemen in increasing quantities until the exporter is reached. Rubber is the object of considerable interest at present and some increase of production and of export is anticipated—possibly with the aid of financial backing from the United States.

PRODUCTION of wool is now, and probably will remain insignificant. This is true in only a slightly lesser degree of hides and skins.

The development which may take place in Colombia as a result of war conditions is that of manufacturing, but even here the country is handicapped by its present inability to obtain a long list of raw materials essential for such expansion. Some industries are experimenting with substitute materials. Others are giving serious thought to expansion and diversification of products to fill gaps left by import difficulties.

Inter-American Trade

By Frank Henius

One American Currency

OUR EVER-GROWING necessity to try and obtain all possible strategic and industrial materials on this hemisphere, the fortunate occurrence of many of the most vitally needed items in our own country as well as that of our neighbors from the nickel of Canada to the wool or iodine of Chile, the changing economic status of the other American republics because of their ability suddenly to develop exports to the United States of products and materials we had imported from other parts of the world: all this will serve more than anything that could have been artificially devised to create closer cooperation, better teamwork, technical and agricultural development. It also accentuates the fact that the republics as well as the American dominion to the north of us have realized that here is indeed one hemisphere and one purpose, one enemy and one future.

On the other hand, during the past year or so we have heard, spoken, and written almost continuously of the Good Neighbors, the Sister Republics, the Latin-Americans, Pan-America, the Northern Neighbor and the Rest of the Hemisphere. We almost completely ignored the fact that the forefathers of these very same neighbors, in the south, landed on this hemisphere before any white man ever set foot upon what is now our own country. We acted as if we had discovered some newcomer and immediately began to clamor for his trade and good will. From books to films to good-will ambassadors, from samples to traveling salesmen, all along the line of culture, trade and finance, we have shown this recent attitude toward the Latin-American republics, and coupled with the diplomatic and political efforts for better understanding, called this new drive collectively the Good Neighbor Policy.

As a policy, it has as a matter of fact now again at Rio proved itself not only to have been worth while, but distinctly good and timely, definitely foresighted and vital.

But this new understanding and this new friendship must outlast this war, and we must continue in normal times to keep up a flow of dollars to the republics to the south of us and in return receive the many products of forest, mine and pasture which they will now supply us with for our war efforts. We must perpetuate the possibility of their bolstering their economies and improving their trade balances with us in the days of the peace to come. For all these reasons, we also must change our minds and thoughts and ideas about our relationship with them in many ways, especially from a trading and economic point of view.

RIO HAS suggested a first step in this direction, but many others will have to follow. And when the suggested currency stabilization meeting takes place, it will have to be recognized by all the North, Central and South American nations on this hemisphere that there is only One America.

We will have to grasp this fully, not only in its purely ideological or political form but in every form of our national and individual life. It is just as well to open our eyes and brains to a fact which, geographically, was established centuries ago.

This recognition may yet prove one of the presently unrecognizable blessings of the World War, which will result in so many changes in the political and economical constellation of the world's powers and relationships. Considering this fact from the point of view of trade only, all of the nations on our hemisphere, prior to this war, had their own established export and import interests, guided not by the old maxim that Trade follows the Flag, but by the modern equivalent of Trade Follows Trade. The war, however, has changed all this and changed it in the most surprising, efficient and determined manner. Prior to it, the other American nations, generally speaking, had to dispose of products abroad which we ourselves possessed in such abundance that we, too, were able and indeed compelled to sell our surpluses in foreign markets. Thus, with few exceptions, we have not figured as their leading buyers, until now when we are turning to this hemisphere for our war materials.

Other nations were the greatest customers of and investors in the southern republics' mining and agricultural as well as all other fields directly and indirectly connected with their development. Naturally the goods and services needed in turn by the exporting American nations, were purchased as much as possible from these customers, a simple and justified quid pro quo. Native sympathies naturally followed in the wake of this two-way overseas trade. This was prompted by Spanish, Portuguese and French cultural backgrounds of long standing, coupled with the ties between younger generations and their forefathers' native lands. Moreover, there were differences between our neighbors and ourselves, also some political faux pas which we had committed, causing fear and in some cases jealousy. Therefore, many easily understood and even justified reasons caused by the nonexistence of this thorough understanding and this true good neighborhood which the recent efforts of our Government have now been able to achieve in such a surprisingly successful manner. Aided by the war, and as a direct result of Pearl Harbor, the Neighbors proved to be Allies. Their former adverse trade balances show every hope of being completely or at least to a very great extent reversed, since they have become suppliers of the many strategic and critical materials which we now realize we can and must obtain on this very hemisphere, wherever possible.

BUT OF COURSE it would be not only a pity but a disaster if this relationship, even if ony considered from a trading point of view, were to end with the war. On the contrary, we will have to continue to foster this new two-way trade, study the materials and products which will now come to us from the other republics of America instead of from Europe, Africa, Australia, British India and Malaysia, the Dutch East Indies and elsewhere. We must find niches for these wartime Latin-American imports in our peacetime industrial life, in our manufacturing processes of every kind and for every possible product. Thus we can maintain the easy flow of goods from the south to the north, which then will enable our suppliers to buy from us what they need themselves. And if this steady and uncomplicated two-way flow of goods and materials is to continue, the realization that this is one America must find expression in one trade currency.

The currency problems of the sister republics were naturally greatly endangered by the outbreak of the war. Thus, we committed ourselves and made the well-known Export-Import Bank loans, which primarily served to stabilize these currencies. This is just as important in war as in peace times, and the best method was decided upon: loans from government to government, repayable eventually, if possible, by goods and services. It would be very difficult and inadvisable for any one nation to try and stabilize the currency of another within the latter's own country, for that would involve the entire national life and all its problems, its wages, standards and materials. Our loans, therefore, were to allow the borrower to do his own stabilizing in his own country. But now, for the purpose of trade in this one America, and the assurance of its uninterrupted and uncomplicated continuation when this war is over, more than that is needed: the One America needs One Currency for all inter-American trade. For, after all, in this America the various republics and the dominion, from our modern streamlined and practical point of view, are inter-American traders, and if inter-American states are to deal with each other effectively, we need one Trade Currency. It need not be the dollar; it could be a new currency. It need not even be pegged to the dollar, but on some gold, or gold and silver combination, both metals being mined by practically every one of the other republics and of course also Canada. After all, we ourselves today have not a dollar on a gold standard, for the present high price of gold is more attractive to the owner of an ounce of gold than the metal itself. We have instead really gold on a dollar standard. But whatever its lacking, the future American Trade Dollar would be one of the greatest means of retaining and ever increasing the trade which these war times are now inaugurating, and will develop it to a degree, which even a year ago would have been thought phantastic and impossible.

ONE CURRENCY for the foreign trade of the republics and the dominion of America would not only be desirable but a great boon. It would solve the many complications and difficulties which today beset shippers of any one nation who cannot settle their trade balances in this one hemisphere without currency and value fluctuations. It would break down many barriers, and as a natural consequence, by its very efficiency and trading results, would help to break down another barrier which is bound to fall or at least be greatly lowered if inter-American trade is to develop and maintain itself on the level to which it is entitled by the very nature of our geographical situation and the new needs and sources now suddenly "discovered"—the tariffs. Our increased imports of materials and products which hitherto we did not think it worth while or profitable or advisable to bring from the countries in America will of necessity open the way for many items which do not compete with any production in our own United States whatever. But even where they do, provided we need them for our industrial or agricultural life, there should be no tariffs.

Therefore, a liberalization of our tariff policy will be definitely and urgently needed, and the lowering of all import tariffs for noncompetitive materials, as well as some of those which we produce, the production of which still has to be supplemented by shipments from abroad, will have to be effected insofar as the other nations of America are concerned. This alone will be one of the greatest help to more and less complicated trade; it will be the best means of creating two-way shipments. It will create the necessary foreign exchange for our suppliers to become, vice versa, our good customers more or less pro rata of our own purchases, and last but not least it will become a very definite restrictive agent in connection with an otherwise somewhat competitive industrialization of the southern republics.

One trade currency and lowered tariffs will be the surest wedge to better any permanent trading relations between the nations of America. It would confirm, in practice, that there is only One America, and it would heighten the achievement of all that we now collectively call the Good Neighbor Policy. Not only One Hemisphere, geographically, but One America, ready to defend all of its shores and nations against any third enemy, and One America, economically. The first is a fact. The second is right now achieved and proved. The third should be the goal of all the nations on this continent, now and in the postwar years. And ever better commercial relationship will create ever better cultural and political understanding, appreciation and friendship. It will make plain the fact that there is only One America.

Brazilian Rubber

No 'Stopgap' Move

Formation of a Brazilian-United States rubber corporation to meet this country's growing wartime needs and to provide a perpetual rubber supply that will make the United States less dependent on East Indies sources is being arranged in Washington, Arthur de Souza Costa, Brazilian finance minister, disclosed yesterday.

The amount of capitalization and the organizational structure is now being worked out, De Souza Costa said after a conference with Federal loan officials.

The rubber would come from the vast Amazon basin.

The corporation would be set up as a "long-term organization; not as a "stop gap" move to meet the present critical rubber situation.

3 Years to Produce One Month's Needs

By Richard Dyer

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 18 (Wide World).—Experts estimated today it would take until 1945 for this home of rubber to produce annually the equivalent of one month's requirement of the United States.

The long-range forecast said that a boost to the maximum possible within the next two years would make available for export possibly 30,000 tons in 1943 against current possibilities of 20,000 tons.

They drew this picture:

Wild plants, chief producer of Brazilian rubber, are a possible source of increased output.

Fordlandia, the 2,500,000 acres of scientific, cultivated plants started by Henry and Edsel Ford in 1929, still is in experimental production.

Brazil turned out 19,000 tons of crude rubber last year, of which the United States took 5000 tons. Brazil used 8500 tons, Argentina 2800 tons and Axis nations took 2000 tons, informed sources said.

Although Brazil cradled the crude rubber industry, her production problems are difficult, complicated by the fact that the 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 wild rubber trees are scattered over the mammoth Amazon River basin area, mostly inaccessible jungle.

Of the 500,000 persons in the rubber area, many are primitive tribesmen, making the labor supply scant. Literally millions of hands would be needed for maximum output.

Another factor is price. United States rubber prices do not offer an incentive to expanding costly jungle production, rubber men said. Included in costs would be payments for hacking out paths and building camps—defeating the jungle.

Transportation, now mostly by boat, would have to be improved.

The Decisive Battle

By Dr. George Lamsa

Armageddon In The Near East?

TODAY ONE of the greatest questions in the minds of the world's diplomats, militarists and experts is, where the decisive battle in this war will be fought. People wonder what is the most important front to defend and where is the weakest spot in the lines of the adversary. A year ago the commentators spoke of the Battle of Belgium, then, the Battle of France. Later came the Battle of the Atlantic. A few months ago it was the Battle of the Pacific which mirrored in the public mind. Now the Battle of the Pacific is almost lost—Singapore has fallen, but the Battle of the Atlantic continues with more velocity. Invariably military and diplomatic opinions shifted with the course of events. When one battle was lost the other became important, and as a new battlefield becomes conspicuous, the other one is put in the background.

In 1940 when the Maginot Line fell and France surrendered, the Axis powers thought that the last battle had been fought. No one knew that this battle was only the beginning of many others which have already overshadowed the Maginot Line and the fall of France. Three months ago militarists and strategists were led to believe that the Japanese navy was weak and that Singapore was invincible. Today things have changed. Both diplomatic and expert opinion has failed as far as facts are concerned.

NEW BATTLES may be fought and new fields found but the decisive battle which will alter the boundaries of the nations, change the map of the world, and crown the victor with glory will be fought in the hot plains of Mesopotamia, on the historic battlefields of the Euphrates Valley. It is on this battleground that the fate of Germany, Japan and Italy on one hand, and the fate of the United States, Britain and Russia on the other will be decided and a new chapter in history written. For it is in this ancient land that great nations have come into power and others were vanquished. It was in this land that the fate of the Assyrians, Babylonians, Persians, Greeks and Egyptians was decided. It was after Allied victories in Syria and Mesopotamia that Turkey laid down her arms and sought for peace. When Bagdad was captured, the morale of the Turkish army was broken and hopes of German victory shattered. History has repeated itself many times. The Near East seemed to be the place where the new empires rise to world power. Empires of World power are born and die in the Near East.

In the words of Napoleon Bonaparte, "only in the East have there been great empires and mighty changes; in the East, where 600 million people dwell. Europe is a mole-hill."

Geographically, Mesopotamia is well-situated for such a final test. This is because these ancient battlefields lie in the heart of the world. Mesopotamia and Persia are like a base from which armies can operate eastward into India, northward into Russia and Turkey, westward into Arabia and Egypt. On the other hand, these places not only are strategic for military operations, but possess other possibilities which are so essential in modern warfare. There lies Mosul with its rich oil and wheat fields. Then again, this area is a short distance from Caucasian oil fields and Dardanelles.

THE LOSS of this area will bring the greatest catastrophe to the Allied powers. First, this land is situated in the heart of the moslem world. Its occupation by Germany and Italy will encourage the Arabs everywhere, even in Egypt, to revolt against the British rule and will stop American help to Russia. Thus Russia and China will be compelled to negotiate a separate peace. Such a loss will also seal the fate of the Suez Canal, Egypt, the Mediterranean Sea and isolate England from the Empire.

The Allies can afford to lose Singapore and the Dutch Indies, Australia and New Zealand, but still continue to carry on war with Russian and Chinese assistance. A major Allied victory on this front will not only encourage Russia, but it may also make Turkey to side with America and Great Britain. In order to do this Mesopotamia must immediately be fortified.

I BELIEVE, therefore, the Allies war effort should be concentrated in the Near East. Supplies, munitions and soldiers going to places where there isn't much hope to retain, should be directed immediately to the Persian Gulf and Suez. Another Singapore should be hastily built on the Persian Gulf and large naval bases at the entrance to the Red Sea. Since the fall of Singapore, these regions will be the most important places for both military and naval operations.

Another factor which the Allied Powers should attend to is the native support in the Near East. The Jews have been crying for arms. Why not arm them! Then again, the Arabs should be won on the British side. These people can change the scales of war to either side. They are great warriors, they know the country and can stand the climate.

Henderson Blasts Radio Price Hikes

Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday demanded immediate cancellation of recent price increases on radios and radio-phonographs which he termed "inflationary and unfair."

He sent sharply worded telegrams to all wholesalers and retailers characterizing the price boosts as completely unjustified because a ceiling was imposed on manufacturers' prices February 9. He requested that prices be restored to the levels of February 10.

Retail price advances occurred on a nation-wide scale, Henderson said, immediately after the War Production Board announced last Thursday that the greater part of civilian radio production would be halted April 22 and the industry converted to war production.

Thirtyish Couple Who Planned to Produce Several Children Wonder Whether to Have Second Baby Now; Husband May Go on Sea Duty Soon, 'For Duration'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My problem is another one of those dilemmas created by a world at war. My husband and I are in our thirties and we have one child, almost three years old. We always planned to have two or three children. But now my husband has been called into active service by the Navy, and probably will be sent on sea duty within the next three months. He has been a reserve officer for years, and at present is working in the Navy Department.

Have we a right to bring another child into the world, under such circumstances, when there is a chance (we have to face it), that he might be fatherless? On the other hand, having been an "only child" myself, I should not like my daughter to be one. I have no family home to which I could return "for the duration." But I believe I could stand on my own feet, if necessary. My husband carries considerable insurance, which would give me financial security for some years, anyway—it it came to that.

Although my husband would love to have another child, he thinks I should make the final decision, since the burden of parenthood would fall upon me. And while the physical aspects of the undertaking don't daunt me, I do shrink from the prospect of rearing two children to adulthood without their father's help and moral support. As a result, one day I am "all for" another child, and the next day I am "thinking twice." However, I can't very well wait until the war is over to have more children. I am 33 now, and the war will be long. I hope you can help me organize my thinking, so that I can come to a definite, logical conclusion. Sincerely

'When in Doubt, Don't,—' An Excellent Maxim

DEAR L. M. D.: It has been said "When in doubt, don't." And there, in a nutshell, is my intuitive reaction to your uncertainty. It seems to me your first business at this time is to sustain the morale of your husband and the child you have—which assuredly will be severely taxed when the former leaves the latter to go on perilous "sea duty." In order to keep their chins up, you must preserve a sense of "firm footing," as you go about your daily affairs. It devolves upon you to be their "tower of strength" during the months—and, if need be, the years—to come.

A wife and mother must abide serenely in the sure conviction that she is competent to deal adequately, lone handed, with any emergency, if she is to exert an unconsciously reassuring, strength-giving influence upon her husband and offspring—be they near or far. As one psychologist has pointed out, "It isn't so much what we say or do—it is what we are, that our children react to." And the same applies, of course, to all intimate associates.

Thus, if you should undertake to have another baby during war time, while secretly uneasy about the outcome, the subtle repercussions of your anxiety would have an inescapably depressing effect upon your already more or less "upset" husband and child, if they are normally sensitive to your feelings. No emotion is so infectious or personally demoralizing as fear—and fear of the unknown is the most unnerving fear of all.

One is truly wise who recognizes his limitations, and truly prudent when he makes provision for living safely within them. It takes a pioneering temperament, an unafraid soul, to go ahead calmly with the business of living, in the face of unpredictable hazards. And your definite disposition to anticipate the worst, when confronting uncertainties, suggests that you lack the quality of cheerful self reliance which would be indispensable to making a second try at parenthood, just at this time, a worthwhile investment for the family, regardless of the odds.

Defense Furniture Solves Problem of Metal Scarcity; Stresses Simplicity

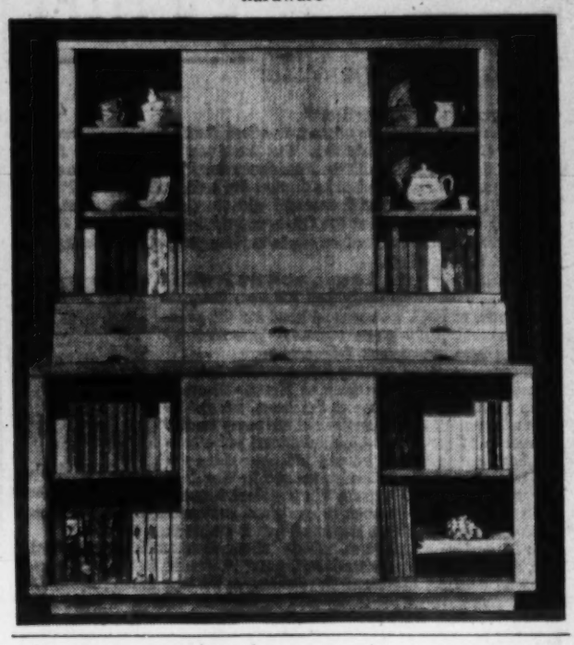
The modern mahogany desk pictured above is ingeniously designed without benefit of metal drawer pulls. By stepping succeeding drawers backward, the designer has made it possible to open them easily by grasping the bottom of the drawer front

The honey-toned mahogany bookcase (below) has gone defensive, for it is void of the proverbial metal hinges. Sliding glass and wooden doors take the place of hinged doors. Finger spaces cut into face of each drawer eliminate use of hardware



Brass Eliminated in New Designs; Wooden Grooves Take Place of Handles in Many Pieces

By Martha Ellyn

The Post Household Editor

Future furniture will have to get along without finishing touches such as brass decorative drawer pulls and grille fronts. Brass is one of the most needed metals for making defense equipment. It is also the material of which most furniture hardware is made.

Edward Wormley

That this situation can be met adequately is shown by furniture designed by Edward Wormley, chairman of the American Designers' Institute, who has given up designing for the present, and is now in the furniture section, Office of Price Administration.

Mr. Wormley eliminated brass in furniture designing by the use of grooves for furniture pulls. On one living-dining room sideboard he designed sliding corrugated doors so that no handle was necessary. The drawers have inset wooden grooves by which they can be opened.

"In the designing of a modern bookcase," he said, "I used sliding glass and wooden doors to take the place of hinged drawers. Finger spaces cut into the face of the drawers eliminate the use of metal for drawer pulls. Also by stepping succeeding drawers backward in a modern dest the drawers may be opened by grasping the bottom of the drawer front."

This designer decided some time ago that the use of metal as a focal point for ornamentation was a trite practice, that if furniture was of interesting design and excellent finish it would be just as attractive as brass adorned. He doesn't think the finger spaces, stepping of succeeding drawers and use of grooves are "handles to end all handles," but he thinks they have their merits over the brass pulls which often cause broken nails, runners in hose and also become tarnished.

Use of Enriched Bread as Health Aid Is Urged by Biochemist

By Ida Jean Kain

"LISTEN, America . . . come closer!

"Everybody who has not changed from plain white bread to enriched white bread should do it today. Do not accept any white bread or white flour that does not have the word 'enriched' on the label."

That advice, given by Dr. William H. Sebrell, nationally known biochemist, in a recent radio address, is well worth repeating. It is impossible to overemphasize his point that use of the enriched bread and flour is one of the easiest, least expensive and most important changes that can be made to improve the nutritional value of your diet.

Taste Excellent

As I sat there taking it all in, I kept wondering why people should be so slow to buy and eat this new product. The scientists, millers and bakers have gone to no end of trouble and expense to place it on the market. It tastes just as good as the plain white bread and because of the addition of Vitamin B1, iron and nicotinic acid it is infinitely better for you.

Perhaps you do not yet realize how important it is to get these food elements every day. You get some of them even on a poor diet. But if yours is the average diet it does not furnish sufficient amounts for buoyant health. There are far too many people on diets that are very deficient.

If you know of some family that does not use the enriched flour and bread, try to arouse their interest in making this change.

Old Standbys

But don't let all this stress on the enriched refined flours and cereals confuse you. One homemaker told a nutritionist that she had switched from oatmeal—although her husband preferred it—to the fancy packaged cereals labeled "enriched." In spite of her intentions she was not giving him a better breakfast food. You can't improve on the coarse whole grain cereals and breads. The enriched varieties are not meant to take their place.

It's not a question of choosing between the whole wheat varieties and the enriched white, but between the ordinary kind and that which has been enriched. If your family likes whole grain bread and cereals, keep right on buying them. Just make sure that you are getting the whole grain. But if your family insists on the new enriched product. All you have to do is ask for it.

Home Study Of Shorthand

THOUSANDS of women today are holding positions of trust and importance, are feeling the thrill of being in on big events—because they know shorthand.

It isn't hard to teach yourself shorthand! The Pitman system is just a shorter, quicker method of writing. Instead of spelling out a word letter by letter, you just write quick and easy symbols for the way it sounds.

The word "pay," for instance, is a slanting stroke and a dot—the slant for the "p" sound, the dot for the "ay" sound.

There aren't many different sounds in our language, so you won't have much trouble learning all the symbols you need.

Then for words you use often in business—like "balance," "delivery," "valuation"—you have special extra-brief symbols, easier to write and remember.

Practice a little while each day, getting someone to dictate to you—slowly at first. This will train your ear and your hand to work together. Sooner than you may think, you'll be up to the speed needed for a job!

In our 40-page booklet, "Pitman Shorthand Self-Taught," you'll find 15 step-by-step lessons with symbols and exercises for practice. Gives word signs and phrase forms; how to get job-winning speed.

Send 15c (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for our booklet, "Pitman Shorthand Self-Taught," to the NEW YORK OFFICE, of THE WASHINGTON POST, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Capital Whirl

by Hope Ridings Miller

"Are you a 'Cliveden setter?' "

"Well, maybe," was the answer, in effect, that I had from more than a score of Capitalites yesterday. But there was the invariable follow-up, "By the way, what DID the President mean?" The reference was to his recent blast against what he termed the local "Cliveden Set."

One Washingtonian had it confused with the Oxford Movement. "I'm certainly not a member of the Cliveden set," he said," I never did see any point in getting up before a whole houseparty and confssing your sins and shortcomings."

Seems nobody knew, for sure, what the President meant. . . . But everybody had his own theory—everybody, at least, who was on hand for the good-by-to-a-yacht party given yesterday afternoon by Col and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim.

Mrs. Guggenheim

The Firenze, their floating palace, which is to be turned over to the Navy early in March—March 2, to be exact—was the scene of the event, which was both a farewell fete and another of the many parties in honor of Gene Tierney, of Hollywood fame, who has been entertained right and left ever since she and her husband, Oleg Cassini, arrived in Washington some time ago. . . . From 5 to 7 o'clock a mammoth crowd surged through the spacious staterooms of the yacht, and quite a number of guests stayed on much longer than that.

So far as I could make out, nobody talked about anything except who was, or was not, a member of the Capital's Cliveden Set. . . . Only person who declined to discuss the subject at all was Mme. Maxim Litvinoff. She changed the topic—said she thought a farewell yacht party was fun. . . . Somebody came up at that moment and told her how much they had enjoyed her recent talk before the Democratic Women's Club. . . . "You know, they were very nice to me," she said. "I enjoyed talking to them—although it was my first public speech in America."

First Syllable Rhymes With "Give"—Not "Dive"

Clarence Hewes was one guest who knew how to pronounce "Cliveden." While two or three people called it CLEEV-den and several said CLYVE-den, he came through with the way it's called in England. It's CLIV-den (first syllable rhymes with "give"), and Mr. Hewes knows, because he once spent a weekend at the Astor home in the Thames Valley—but in fairness to him, I think I'd better add that was back in the days before Viscountess Astor was acclaimed head of the notorious group which continually suggested that the defensive possibilities of Hitlerism as a "bulwark against Bolshevism" were something to be considered.

Mrs. George Barnett said she didn't know any Washingtonian who could be called a Cliveden setter. . . . Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman declined to be quoted. . . . Harry Grant Meem: "Well, I guess I'm that—if I'm not a parasite. Everybody seems to have some kind of name these days. But I honestly don't know what the President meant."

"I know I'm not a member of the Cliveden Set," said attractive Mrs. Millard Tydings, who arrived at the party with her mother, Mrs. Emlen Davies. "Why? Yes," she twinkled, "I know the answer to that one, too—because I'm certainly not opposed to continuing aid to Russia." . . .

Mrs. Tydings

Later, when somebody complimented Mrs. Tydings on her husband's recent big-league speech on the Senate floor, she said that the following day he received more than 2000 letters—only 4 of which took issue with his stand. "Most of them," she went on, "wished he had gone farther."

Meanwhile, as guests collected and lingered on the foredeck, an equally distinguished group continued to file down the receiving line in the drawing room. . . . "Where's Gene Tierney?" asked more than one early arrival. Half an hour later, however, the gracious motion picture star was "in line" and there she remained until the party drew to a close.

Who else was there? Well, let me see. The Minister of Finland and Mme. Procope, who said they'd like to find a nice, quiet place to spend the coming summer. . . . The Portuguese Minister and Mme. Bianchi, the former of whom declared nobody present would confess he was a member of the Cliveden Set, even if such a thing existed in Washington. . . . Col. Stewart Roddie, slim, graying Britisher who gayly gave me a first-hand account of England's famous "Cliveden Set"—and declared, "There was actually no such thing, you know. . . . It was a catch phrase that somehow or another got attached to Viscountess Astor because, being a dynamic person, she liked to gather colorful political personalities around her so she could discuss affairs of the day. That was all."

Celebrities All Over the Place

Somebody else (who made me promise not to quote him) said Lord Halifax lunched at the White House on Tuesday—the same day the President came out, in the afternoon, with his blast against the local Cliveden Set. "You know," said my informer, "perhaps that's the reason Mr. Roosevelt had the whole thing in mind. Halifax, if you remember, was on the list of the prominent personalities originally associated with Britain's "Cliveden Set." Well, I hadn't thought of that.

Who else was at the party? Quite a crowd—and a lot of celebrities I didn't have a chance to see. . . . The Brazilian Ambassador greeted Mrs. Patrick Hurley and then bowed on through a group that included Mr. and Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck and Senator and Mrs. Burnett Maybank. . . . The Egyptian Minister and Mme. Hassan chatted with George Abell. . . . Senator and Mrs. Bennett Clark and Mrs. William A. Morgan shook hands with a long line of friends. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, Baron and Baroness Stackelberg, the Thomas Burkes, Mrs. Henry D. Flood ("No I don't belong to the Cliveden Set—I'm just a parasite," she laughed); Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, en route to a dinner; Representative Katherine Byron, who was taking Edward Van Devanter on to her house for dinner; and several dozen others made up the throng that stayed on, and on . . enjoying the party, and trying to figure out the which. what and who of the local Cliveden Set.

Here and There Dept.: Commander Frank Wead, author of "Ceiling Zero," Broadway hit of a few years ago, and more recently one of Hollywood's highest paid writers, is with the Navy Department here. . . . He's staying at the Wardman Park Hotel. . . . Molly Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, of Washington, is a member of the Trio Theater, a recently organized New York dance group which is booked for an appearance at the Dance Playhouse here on Sunday evening. . . . Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull, who had hoped to be off for a Florida vacation almost a week ago, definitely have train reservations for today. . . . The Navy wives who gave a benefit "pancake party" on Shrove Tuesday will turn over $55 to British War Relief as a result.

Gala Opening of Children's Museum At 'Villa Rose' Set for Tomorrow

HERETOFORE, CHILDREN who trudged wearily through museums with "grown-ups" looked but could not touch any of the objects on exhibit. Because the museum pieces were too precious to be handled, and most above their comprehension, youngsters soon tired of these self-improving jaunts. But come Friday, the tots will have a museum of their own.

A gala opening has been set for the first Children's Museum of Washington—"Villa Rose"—at 4215 Massachusetts Avenue from 4 to 6 and 8 to 10 o'clock tomorrow. Not only may the children see, but handle and work with the exhibits. A small loan can be borrowed and taken home for a week's study, the same as one would a library book. The purpose of the Children's Museum is to foster hobbies that will inspire vocations and avocations for later life. First and oldest of its kind is the Brooklyn Children's Museum established in 1899. Boston established the second in the world in 1913 and Indianapolis set up the third in 1925.

Organizing committee of the Children's Museum of Washington is composed of Mrs. Lyle Campbell, Mrs. Slocum Kingsbury, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, Miss Portia Oberly and Mrs. Houston Thompson. Miss Matilda Young is secretary, Huston Thompson, chairman and Slocum Kingsbury, treasurer.

District Citizens Must Awaken To Raid Dangers, Says Speaker

PEOPLE of the District lack a real awareness of the imminent danger of an air raid, declared Miss Mary Mason, deputy air-raid warden and director of emergency feeding for the District.

Guest speaker at the Soroptimist Club's luncheon meeting yesterday at the Willard Hotel, Miss Mason gave a comprehensive word picture of the feeding units set up in churches and schools. She pointed out that these gatherings of people will revive the friendly neighbor acquaintanceships. "It behooves every one," she said, "to know someone near whom you can call in an emergency. The feeding units of the neighborhoods would be one means of meeting your next-door neighbor."

Miss Mason, who was introduced by Mrs. Jean Bennett, president of the American Federation of Soroptimists, stressed the danger of being on the streets during an air raid. She also, pointed out that since Washington had no high sky scrapers or tall buildings to break the fall of bombs, that greater damage would befall the man on the street.

Dr. Major to Deliver Address

DR. HAROLD MAJOR, staff member of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will be the chief speaker on the George Washington birthday program, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Memorial Continental Hall. The exercises will be under the auspices of the Sons of the American Revolution, the Daughters of the American Revolution and Children of the American Revolution.

A musical program, which will be in charge of Miss Lillian Chenoweth, vice president general N. S., will consist of a concert by the Marine Band, 2:30 to 3 o'clock. Mrs. J. S. Beachley, leader of the Choir of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, will direct a "massed" choir program.

Club to Give Dinner

MRS. HENRY A. WALLACE, wife of the Vice President, will sponsor a Washington Birthday dinner, Monday, February 23, at the Women's National Democratic Club. The dinner has been so arranged that members of the club and their guests may listen to President Roosevelt's fireside chat. An outstanding speaker will be provided by the Democratic National Committee for the occasion.

Society to Entertain

WAKEFIELD Society, Sons of the American Revolution, will entertain their sponsor, the Martha Washington Chapter, D. A. R., 2:30 Saturday afternoon at the Battery Park Clubhouse.

Joe Lawrence, jr., president of the Wakefield Society, will preside and a group of children will present a musical program. Among the honored guests will be Mrs. Ray E. Brown, national treasurer; Mrs. Frank Heller, State president of the D. C., C. A. R.; Mrs. George Pariseau, regent of Martha Washington Chapter, D. A. R. Also Miss Angus Lamond, past senior president of Wakefield Society.

Club House Offered

THE WOMAN'S CLUB, of Chevy Chase, Md., yesterdayy voted to allow the Red Cross branch the use of the clubhouse in case of an emergency or disaster. At the same time the members voted to buy two $100 defense bonds. Fifty dollars was donated to the blood bank at Children's Hospital. Following the program and regular meeting at 2 o'clock, Dr. Constantine E. McGuire, gave an off-the-record talk on "The Cultural and Social Pattern of the Ibero—American Countries." Dr. McGuire, a consulting economist and adviser to Venezuela, was formerly secretary of the Inter-Ameriran High Commission and on the staff at Brookings Institute.

Musical Fete Planned

THE CONGRESSIONAL CLUB will have another of its all-musical programs, Friday at 3 o'clock. Edward Hanneberry, concert pianist, who made his Washington debut February 27, 1941, at the Wardman Park Hotel, will play a group of Chopin's and Schumman's compositions. Norma Henneberry, contralto, will sing several of Goddard and Speake's songs.

Mrs. Frank Boykin, Mrs. Richard Duncan, Mrs. Lawrence Arnold and Mrs. William Labree will pour at the tea following the program. Members of the hospitality committee are Mrs. Donald McLean, Mrs. Arnold William and Mrs. Cleveland Newton.

Mobile Canteen

IN CASE of emergency, Washington will have at least one mobile canteen equipped to feed 300 people. For that is the Soroptimist Club's outstanding project for 1942. The club expects to purchase a mobile canteen unit, which will be turned over to the District of Columbia Red Cross to be used exclusively in the District.

Mrs. Jean Bennett, president of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, will have charge of the meeting of the Washington Soroptimist Club today 1 p. m. at the Willard Hotel.

Took Over Field Offices

"The time necessary to locate, hire and train a new organization has been saved; the Government payroll does not for this purpose have to be largely increased. Overcrowded Washington does not have to find space for a new wave of residents to carry on this work. Overtaxed office space does not have to take on the extremely heavy new strain which it otherwise would. Staff members unfamiliar with the location of the essential economic information do not have to make useless effort looking for it."

Instead of establishing expensive field offices, Wallace arranged for his board to take over field offices of the bureau. The Tariff Commission had very little to do and Wallace is now making good use of its valuable files and experienced personnel. It's estimated that half of its 300 employes here are now working full time for the Wallace board. And Wallace took over Nelson Rockefeller's commercial and financial division and made it his American hemisphere division.

Wallace Took Short Cut

Wallace needed more information on the requirements of our Allies and friends but he didn't build up his own board by hiring hundreds of new employes. He took a million dollars and gave it to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and ordered it to do the job.

Moreover, it's estimated that at least 1000 employes of the South American republics are working full time for their respective governments gathering information for use of the Wallace board. In fact, about 2000 persons are working for the board that don't show up on the payroll.

War Production Board, which has more than 10,000 employes, is beginning to follow the Wallace formula of putting old-line agencies to work on war duties. Just two weeks ago arrangements were made for WPB's division of research and statistics to call on the domestic half of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce for economic studies on domestic subjects. WPB's division has been using the Census Bureau for business surveys. Now negotiations are underway to have the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce supply domestic information to the Office of Price Administration.

Many Lack Knowledge

Much duplication in Government could be eliminated, a high official said yesterday, if Federal officials were all given a course in "Know Your Government." The plain truth," he said, "is that officials generally know only what they are doing and they haven't the faintest idea of the work of employes in the building next to them."

Meantime, the Civil Service Commission announced that it will waive the job quota system and hire District and nearby residents to fill such low-paid positions as guards, messengers, under clerks, telephone operators and stenographers. Moreover, the commission added, it will waive the system "whenever housing or other conditions make such action necessary." But it intends to apply the quota system whenever it can, although Tuesday's order by the President had the effect of suspending the job quota system, as all appointments to the Federal service are being made on a duration-of-the-war basis and these appointments are exempt from the quota system by law.

3 Steam Whistles Will Be Sought For Montgomery

Albert E. Brault, executive director of the Montgomery County Civilian Defense Council, announced yesterday the county commissioners would be asked to purchase three steam whistles to supplement electric sirens now on order.

The steam whistles, Brault explained, would be placed in Takoma Park, Silver Spring and Bethesda, the county's heaviest population centers, to provide a means of warning civilians of an air raid in case of an electric power failure.

Director Brault also announced plans were being made to use auto sirens to warn residents in outlying rural areas.

Dr. Dexter M. Bullard, chief of Montgomery's emergency medical service, reported that the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda had volunteered to provide two ambulance squads to serve as mobile first-aid units in an emergency.

Welfare Leader Speaks Tomorrow

Mrs. Dorothy Kurtz, executive secretary to the Montgomery County Welfare Board, will speak on "The History of Public Welfare" at the Social Service League Building, Rockville, Md., tomorrow at 10 a. m. Her talk will be the second in a series sponsored by the Montgomery Welfare Council.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, and Mrs. Katherine Gilpin Johnson, assistant supervisory county nurse, will speak next Tuesday.

Youths Rob Furniture Store Collector of $75

Peter J. Rich, 50, collector for a local furniture company, was robbed of $75 by three youths as he left 48 Hanover Street Northwest last night, he told police.

Rich said he was grabbed and thrown to the ground as he left the address. He said the boys were about 15, 19 and 20 years old. Rich lives at 15 Todd Place Northeast.

It's Simple, at That

Here's an incident that happened Monday at Selective Service registration at Annandale Fire House. A prospective selectee was asked by Registrar G. A. Justusson: "When were you born?" "I don't know my birth date," came the answer. "How old are you?" "Forty." "How do you know that?" Justusson asked. "Well, I was 39 last year," he replied.

Recognizing soldier need for smokes and sweets and his inability to buy or receive them in certain foreign theaters of operation, the Quartermaster Corps issues tobacco and candy as a free ration to overseas fighters. Rules Drawn To Enforce Blackouts

Penalties Planned For Those Failing To Extinguish Exterior Lights

Regulations putting teeth into the civilian defense order asking homeowners, storekeepers and others to keep exterior lights turned off are being drawn by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Fines and imprisonment will be provided for violators, Defense Coordinator John Russell Young said, expressing regret that the matter could not be handled strictly on a voluntary basis.

The proposed regulations will permit lights to remain on which can be extinguished the moment an air raid alarm sounds. Merchants will be permitted to install special outside switches so they can keep needed inside lights.

Tentative drafts of the regulations will be submitted to the Federal Communications Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Civil Aeronautics Authority—so that conflicts in jurisdiction can be ironed out, and the rules can be made applicable to airplane and railroad safety lights.

Defense officials have asked Washingtonians to eliminate all "unnecessary light of a character that would be visible from the air and contribute to the vulnerability of the community to attack from hostile aircraft."

Not all places in the city are yet prepared for blackouts, they said yesterday, and others have become careless with lights, despite warning from policemen.

The District Defense Council yesterday moved to meet suggestions made for improvement of its activities by Director James M. Landis of the Office of Civilian Defense. Col. Lemuel Bolles, director, said he believed everything requested could be prepared for in four weeks.

He pointed out that most of the suggestions covered things already on the program and said delay in installation of sirens had prevented the requested series of tests. A blackout might be scheduled before the end of four weeks, he said.

Nancy Vance, Who Began Cancer Fund, Dies of It

Charlottesville, Va., Feb. 18 (AP).—Nancy Vance, whose donation of 20 years' savings to establish a fund to help persons suffering incurable cancer attracted in turn gifts from many parts of the Nation, died today—herself a victim of cancer.

Miss Vance, a State Health Department nurse, saw the fund grow during the eight months of her illness from a few hundred dollars to more than $2300.

Some of the contributors were school children. Donations have been received from persons as far away as Arizona.

Miss Vance was born in Mecklenburg County, N. C., in 1887. After training as a nurse in a Morgantown, N. C., hospital, she did postgraduate work several years later in the Garfield Memorial Hospital in Washington, D. C.

During her work among Virginia school children Miss Vance sought and finally succeeded in establishing a "five-point" health program for public school children.

Contributions to the fund began after Miss Vance outlined her plan in a brief letter to her friends in the nursing profession.

"Now that I am down but not out I am thinking of what I can do to help future cancer patients," she wrote. "My idea is to make a contribution and start a fund that will eventually provide such a place . . . I have been wonderfully relieved from pain by the treatment here and I know there will be patients in the future who will need this relief."

Rationing of Retreaded Tires Deferred Until February 23

Rationing of retreaded tires, which was to have started today, yesterday was delayed until February 23 under a last-minute order by Price Administrator Leon Henderson.

The delay was necessary because required rationing forms have not yet been distributed to all local rationing boards, Henderson said.

All provisions of the rationing program except the actual distribution of retreaded tires took effect at midnight last night. Beginning at that time further sales or deliveries of retreaded or recapped tires to consumers are prohibited without rationing certificates.

Catholic Representatives To Meet With Bolles

Details of the plan to permit clergymen to travel about during blackouts will be discussed at a meeting today of representatives of all Catholic parishes in the city with Col. Lemuel Bolles, civilian defense director.

The meeting will be at 10:30 a. m., in St. Gabriel's Church, the Rev. William J. Sweeney, assistant pastor of the church and representative of the archbishop for civilian defense matters in the metropolitan area, said.

Father Sweeney said the plan had been pretty well worked out except for details. It would include all clergymen. They would be given bands of identification.

Twenty-two women will receive Red Cross home nursing certificates in graduation ceremonies at the church at 3 p. m. today, Father Sweeney announced.

Airline Drops Nurse Requirement

Applicants for stewardess on American Airlines planes no longer need be registered nurses, the transport company announced yesterday.

Because of the increased requirements for nurses as a result of the war, the company has dropped the nursing qualification. Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 26, unmarried, not more than 125 pounds in weight, not taller than 5 feet 6 inches.

1300 Attend Defense Meeting

More than 1300 persons gathered in the Senator Theater last night for a mass meeting of the Benning defense area.

Clement Murphy, chief air raid warden, and Mary Mason, assistant, spoke. "The Warning," a picture showing how the British met air raids, and the Donald Duck movie on income tax were shown. James L. Harrison, deputy air raid warden of the defense area, presided.

Lt. La Masure, Of D. C., Kills Self at Dix

Lieut. Robert L. La Masure, 3729 Reservoir Road, committed suicide yesterday in his Fort Dix, N. J., quarters by discharging his service revolver into his head, the Associated Press quoted Maj. Aage Woldike, public relations officer at the post.

In Washington, Mrs. Martha Neale, sister of La Masure, said the last thing her brother told her before leaving here Monday night for the camp after being away on vacation was that he was "anxious to get into action."

At Fort Dix, Maj. Woldike said Lieut. La Masure left several notes. Their contents were not disclosed.

A native of Washington, Lieut. La Masure was 29 years old. For a time he was operating manager of the Pennsylvania Central Airlines and last May was commissioned in the Army Air Corps. He was an observer with an observation squadron.

He attended public schools here and was commanding officer of the cadet corps at Western High School. He later attended the University of Virginia and Colorado College, where he was graduated. He also was at Pensacola Naval Air Station.

Besies his sister, survivors include his mother, Mrs. Frank La Masure. Both sister and mother live at 3729 Reservoir Road.

Navy to Cut Size Of Maryland Base

Leonardtown, Md., Feb. 18 (AP).—A 1,000-acre reduction in the size of the projected navy proving grounds at Cedar Point means that some 25 St. Marys County families will not have to move.

George Clark of the Farm Security Administration announced today that 25 families would not be relocated. His office is attempting to find new homes for the 250 other farm families who will be moved to make way for the naval base.

Speed Traffic, Cut Accidents, Is Public Plea

Washingtonians, it would seem, want to speed up traffic and at the same time reduce accidents.

This was the consensus last night from preliminary reports by the Board of Trade's special committee on wartime activities in the District.

Although its survey is not complete, the committee reported that public responses to inquiries have stressed the necessity for improvements in the city's traffic and public transportation facilities.

For several weeks, the special trade board group has been investigating the results of the war's impact on Washington—it's old and new citizens.

Special questionnaires have been sent out and a corps of workers have been canvassing Federal agencies for suggestions and criticisms.

The board of trade committee last night emphasized that studies have yet to be completed but that preliminary reactions on local problems fall into this order:

Speed up traffic; reduce accidents; provide a more even flow of transportation facilities; correct housing short-comings; lengthen store hours at least one day a week; extend the stagger hour system.

Committee Chairman Joseph C. McGarraghy urged that more District residents submit their "pet peeves" and suggestions. All communications should be sent to the board of trade offices, Room 204, Star Building.

Policeman Breaks Leg as Motorcycle Skids in Chase

Edward Comingore, 44, motorcycle policeman, suffered a fractured left leg last night when he leaped from his motorcycle as it skidded on streetcar tracks in the 1900 block Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

Comingore, who presumably was chasing a speedster, had his siren wide open when he ran into congested traffic and swung to his left around a streetcar. As soon as he passed the car he tried to wheel back onto the right side of the street.

Jumping when his vehicle skidded, he landed against a car belonging to E. Newton Snider, Arlington, Va., which was stopped by Snider when he heard the siren.

Way Cleared For Kramer School Bldg.

WPB to Permit Structure's Use For Education In Southeast Section

The month-old controversy between the District Board of Education and the War Production Board as to the ultimate disposition of the new Stephen Kramer Junior High School in Anacostia ended yesterday with the announcement that a priority rating permitting the completion of the school had been granted.

As soon as construction is completed the school will be used as an educational unit and will not house any emergency Government agency, according to a notification sent to the board by the WPB, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools said.

Maverick Assisted

In making his announcement Dr. Ballou quoted in part a statement received from Maury Maverick, chief, Governmental Requirements Bureau, WPB, saying, "Concerning the resolution of the School Board of the District of Columbia on February 11, in which justification is set up for priority assistance for the construction of Kramer Junior High School and ten others, it has been decided to recommend a rating for the Kramer Junior High School for its construction and completion."

The continuation of work on the construction of ten other schools in Washington must apparently stop for the duration of the emergency since the rating granted to the school board does not extend beyond the Kramer School, Dr. Ballou said. The War Production Board stated "we are definitely of the opinion that the other school buildings and extensions should be deferred until after the emergency or constructed on a 'temporary' basis."

Supporters Thanked

Immediately following Dr. Ballou's declaration, the School Board adopted resolutions thanking Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, chairman of the House District Committee; Mr. Maverick, Frank A. Maxton, War Production Board and the several Washington citizens' associations whose support was instrumental in effecting the priorities grant which will permit the completion of the school.

The Kramer School, designed to accommodate 1128 students, will do much to relieve congestion of educational facilities in the Southeast section. The nearest school, Anacostia Junior-Senior High School, now has an enrollment of 622 students in excess of its capacity and 500 prospective students are due in the area upon completion of the defense housing projects now under construction, according to Dr. Ballou. The school is being built at Seventeenth and P Southeast.

Cadet's Plea Wins Drill's Continuance

Visibly moved by the dramatic appeal of Robert S. Ashford, 17, senior student of Woodrow Wilson High School and colonel of Cadet Corps of Washington High Schools, the Board of Education unanimously voted yesterday to drop immediately any plans restricting the traditional cadet competitive drill held each year in Griffith Stadium.

Ashford, representing the Cadet Corps and the student body of the Washington High Schools, told the board that the proposed restriction of allowing but one company to represent each school was unacceptable as a "war measure," since it defeated its own purpose.

"Most of the boys in the Cadet Corps will soon be eligible for service in the armed forces of the United States, Ashford said, "and every additional day spent drilling and practicing now will save much time later on."

One of the principal arguments offered in support of the change of the drill schedule was that it entailed a loss of too much time from the students' regular curricular activities.

In response to this, Ashford said that the additional two days necessary to conduct the drill on the traditional basis were, in the opinion of the combined student bodies, worth far more than what they would derive from continued class work.

"Besides," the Cadet colonel said, every participating boy is more than willing to make up the lost time."

The board in accepting the contention of the students that the unlimited competition is the backbone of the Cadet Corps and that any restriction would seriously impair the students' spirit, announced that it is their future intention not to restrict any student activities.

Roosevelt Orders Flying Medals For Trail-Blazers

A pioneering long-distance flight which mapped the route now used to ferry American planes to the Middle East won the Distinguished Flying Cross yesterday for three officers and three enlisted men of the Army Air Corps Ferrying Command.

Cited for outstanding initiative, resourcefulness and a high degree of skill under trying conditions, the six members of the crew of the B-24 four-engine bomber which made the flight were Col. Caleb V. Haynes, 46, of Surry, N. C., the pilot; Lieut. Col. Curtis E. LeMay, 35, Columbus, Ohio, copilot; Capt. Carlos J. Cochrane, 33, Topeka, Kan., navigator; Master Sergt. Adolph Cattarius, 43, Maspeth, Long Island, and Technical Sergt. Richard R. Martin, 36, Buckroe Beach, Va., engineers, and Master Sergt. James E. Sands, 31, Hampton, Va., radio operator.

The decoration, highest Army award for noncombat flight achievement, was conferred on them at President Roosevelt's direction for a flight which began at Bolling Field, D. C., last fall, across the South Atlantic to Africa, to Asia Minor and return, covering in all a route of 26,000 miles.

Sugar Ration Cards to Go Out in March

275,000 Families In D. C. to Register; Stamps to Be Good For 10-Day Supply

Early in March simultaneously with every community in the Nation, 275,000 Washington families, all local restaurants and retailers will register in the District schools to receive sugar ration cards, rationing officials of the War Production Board announced yesterday.

Every adult in the District will be required to register and will receive a book of sugar stamps which will be good for a supply of sugar for a period of ten days. At the time of registration all registrants, including private individuals and restaurant owners, will state under oath the amount of sugar in their possession at that time. Stamps representing the amount of sugar possessed by each individual will be removed from the book, precluding the accumulation of private stocks.

Rationing Waits on Figures

Actual rationing will begin shortly after the War Production Board has made available to wholesalers the amount of sugar necessary to meet the demands of retailers and industrial consumers. The estimated supply required by each retailer will be 80 per cent of the total sugar sold by that retailer to individual consumers and small industrial users, which includes restaurants, in the corresponding month last year.

Washingtonians are fortunate, however, in that the board has classified the city as a defense area and as such entitled to an undetermined additional percentage of the previous year's consumption.

The sugar ration books will contain 28 dated stamps which must be used within the time limits stated thereon and will cover a ten-day period, according to rationing officials. Stamps not used in the specified period will be voided.

Teachers to Assist

Washington school teachers will act as recording registrars for the District and it is expected that the Washington registration will run four consecutive days, from 4 to 8 p. m., Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday. The school authorities will be ready to start registering as soon as the cards and stamps now being printed are made available to them, Ballou stated.

In response to questions raised last night by the Independent Food Distributors Association of Washington, Edward M. Synan, sugar section, WPB, said the constant supply of sugar available to individual grocers depends entirely upon their strict compliance with the WPB regulations. Synan cautioned the grocers to sell sugar only upon receipt of proper stamps, and said their future supplies will be determined by the number of stamps they can produce when purchasing sugar from retailers. They met at the Annapolis Hotel.

The Detective Flunked on Mr. Wawa

Pretend you're a detective for a day, a supersleuth assigned to follow a citizen on an afternoon shopping expedition. From what he buys you must deduce his business.

DULANEY

First off, our man—let's call him Mr. Wawa—enters a china shop and purchases six dozen fair quality dinner plates with cups and saucers to match. That's too many for home use. He must be connected with a hotel, restaurant or hospital.

Then Mr. Wawa contracts for three large boxes of bandages of assorted sizes, a first aid kit and a couple of white broadcloth uniforms. It's a cinch it's a hospital now.

But next come a small tractor, two sprinklers and a sack of horse feed. Must be a country sanitarium with a farm attached.

In quick order our Mr. Wawa now acquires some arsenate of lead, 20 packs of playing cards, some waterproof paint, 30 cases of beer, a gross of aspirin, a truckload of ocean sand, a children's see-saw, 12 trash baskets, several yards of green baize, three beach umbrellas, two score numbered badges, a big box of short pencils, four old tires for a model T Ford (if he can), a barrel of white wash, a miscellaneous batch of valves and pipes and a book on how to budget your expenditures. This apparently is SOME sanitarium.

Of course, our Mr. Wawa isn't running a restaurant, a hospital, a hotel, a gambling house, a resort or a farm. His business has the worst features of all six.

A Jack of All Trades, So to Speak

Wawa is the combination manager, greenskeeper and golf pro of a small country club in a prosperous little city. And most of that aspirin he just bought he'll use himself. His is among the world's tougher jobs.

He must hire and supervise the waiters, cooks, and attendants, being sure they are honest, sober and dependable. If Mr. Bumbleduntz, the club grouch, misses $5 from his locker, Wawa will be looking for another place.

He must keep the roof repaired, the clubhouse painted, the whole place running like a good hotel. He must purchase the food and know something about dietetics. He must give Service, fast and snappy. The club member—particularly the-big-frog-in-a-little-puddle kind—is king.

Immediately outside the clubhouse is another flock of trouble. The water in the little swimming pool musn't give Junior a rash. High heels must stay away from the tennis court. Shrubbery and lawns must look like those adorning a tycoon's estate. There must be fresh gravel on the drive and no fresh remarks from the hired help.

Wawa is a practical farmer, too, but raises no successful crop. His only reward is the silence of his members when greens are free from creeping bent and other parasites, when fairways are mowed and the rough isn't too rough, when traps are freshly sanded and raked. Wawa's all-purpose tractor must keep running as must his little knocked-down Model T which services the course. The old horse which pulls the two-wheel all-purpose wagon must be cared for. Wawa reads text books and Department of Agriculture pamphlets. Twice a year he attends short courses at a nearby college where he learns the latest about grass culture and the eradication of pests (but not how to pacify Mr. Bumbleduntz.)

A Par-Shooter and Match Maker, Too

There's plenty more to occupy the spare moments of our Mr. Wawa. He must play a tremendous lot of golf. Members like to go around with the pro and the pro must be good enough to gain the confidence of the dubs, to pick up a few of their dollars in return for driving lessons. Wawa doesn't get much of a salary. Those golf lessons are needed to buy milk for a couple of little Wawas. Members, too, like to see their names in the papers. Wawa must be friendly to and cooperative with the local sports editors, call them when they're not busy, occasionally invite them out for a free round.

To keep his own name before the public (particularly influential members of other clubs who might hire him if he tells Mr. Bumbleduntz where to go sometime) he must compete in regional pro and pro-am tournaments and do fairly well at them. He must arrange competitions at his own club, organize the ladies, get the elderly babes into putting competitions. He must keep the peace among rival factions, throw soft soap around like a movie executive's assistant.

Then, of course there's the golf shop. Wawa knows how to make and repair clubs. He settles arguments and interprets the rules. He trains youngsters to be caddies, see that enough of them are on hand and that each member gets his favorite.

Wawa must be a salesman, too. Members must like him and his wares. For no small part of his income derives from the sale of golf equipment. Members must be dissuaded from patronizing the cut-rate store downtown which buys in larger quantities. They must be reconciled to the rationing of golf balls.

Yes, Mr. Detective, that's Wawa's job. And you can keep on being a detective and I'll keep right on being a sports writer. I bet Wawa's glad when he's drafted.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

GRIFFITH A GHOST WRITER?

New York, Feb. 18.—Sportin' Around:

The more we study the President's now famous baseball message the more convinced we are that it was written, at least in rough draft, by the man who saved baseball in 1918—Clark Griffith.

CONSIDINE

We do not, and probably never will know just how it was done. Griff won't talk. A man close to the situation in Washington seems to think it was a quadruple play, Griffith to his friend (and chief Washington fan) Gen. Peyton C. March, to Steve Eearly, to the President. Anyway, when it was finally released there was a mixed construction in one of the sentences, bordering around the word "Got." Roosevelt's letters are flawless. Griff can kick that grammar book around pretty well, and this mixed contruction, though it seems a tiny clue in itself, smacked of his wandering pen. The prime connection between the letter and Griff, of course, was its call for more night games: Griff's (and only Griff's) pet for several years.

Anyway, the President came through, and that's good news for all of us. We think, also, that it is one more reason why Griff should be tapped for bones by the hall of fame committee. Over the years he has done more for the sport than almost any man now immortalized in the hall.

The Champion Charity Man

Maxie Berger, the welterweight who fights sensational Ray Robinson Friday night at the Garden, for the benefit of the infantile paralysis work, has probably fought on more charity cards than any fighter in the game. He estimates that about 40 per cent of his 100 fights as a pro have been partially for charity. He's proud of it, too.

Berger is not a red-hot fighter. But he's as smart as they come. He's an excellent boxer, handles himself beautifully and can take a punch—which is one thing he is almost certain to have to take when he meets Ray the rapier. Maxie should give Robinson one of his busier evenings. And, brother, when Robinson is busy he's well worth watching. He's the most arresting figure in boxing today, outside of Private Barrow. He's got lightning speed, dervish footwork, can punch furiously and he's full of killer-diller instinct.

Berger's name fits in neatly with a long list of fine fighters Canada has sent us. Greatest of the Canadian born fighters, of course, was Sam Langford, born in Weymouth, Nova Scotia. George Dixon, featherweight champion of old, was born in Halifax. Tommy Burns, who held the heavyweight title between stops, was from Hanover. There was also George Lablanche, who critically wounded Jack Dempsey the nonpareil with the pivot punch, Jack Delaney, Carl Tremaine, Johnny Coulon, Harry Tenney, Jack Renault (recently a New York restaurant doorman) and Frank Fleming, whose great claim to fame was that he knocked out Benny Leonard.

MacArthur as Sports Enlarger

Did you know that Gen. MacArthur had a lot to do with the size of modern collegiate sports programs? Well, he did. Shortly after World War I, when he became the youngest superintendent West Point ever had, he decided that the sports program there should not be confined largely to football and baseball. He called in his aide, twice wounded Capt. Louis Hibbs, and ordered him to forget the expense and "hire the best basketball coach in the country. We've got to start enlarging our sports program so that every man in the academy will have a chance to compete either in varsity or intra-mural competition." It was an unusually ambitious program at the time and it aroused as much comment as did MacArthur's repeal of the age-old ban against the smoking of cigarettes at the Point.

Army Routs Maryland, 44-32; Navy Bows, 48-34

Terps Suffer 13th Loss; Philpott Star

Special Dispatch to The Post

West Point, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Offering little resistance except in the final five minutes, the University of Maryland basketball team fell victim for the thirteenth time this season as Army racked up an easy 44-32 triumph today before a small turnout of Cadets and officers.

The Army offense was sparked by Jammie Philpott, sophomore discovery from Oklahoma City, who, in addition to accounting for 14 points, was the best all-around performer on the floor. High scoring honors, however, went to Maryland's towering center, Ernie Travis, who sank five field goals and six foul shots for a total of 16.

It was all West Point save for the closing minutes of the contest. Travis, Tom Mont and Don Schuerholz took turns matching the Cadets point for point, but the damage had already been done. Only Mearle Duvall, in addition to these three, figured in the Terps' scoring.

Philpott Tallies Eight Points

Philpott moved Army out into an early lead by scoring eight points in the opening five minutes. Eber Simpson and Ernie White added a field goal each during this period and Travis had three points to make it 12-3 midway through the first period.

Whereas the Cadets found the loose Maryland zone defens to its liking, the Terps seemed dumbfounded by Army's man to man protection. Maryland lost many scoring opportunities, particularly in the first half, on poor pass work and running and walking with the ball in possession.

The closest Maryland came to tying the count was at the start of the second half. Army was in front, 24-13, at the intermission. Travis opened the last period by sinking a foul shot to bring his team to within nine points of a deadlock, but then Army found the range again.

Cadets Clinch Game

The Cadets clinched the victory, if there was ever any doubt of their not winning, by tallying ten points midway through the half while holding the Terps scoreless for five minutes. Maryland, in quest of its seventh win of the year, could make good only one of each six shots it peppered at the West Point baskets. Their record was 9 of 53 floor throws made. Army did a little better, sinking 17 of 73 or about one of every four.

Too Many Hands After One Ball at A. U.

American U. Rally Wins 57-53 Battle

American University started with a hot-hand against Juniata last night, fell behind as they cooled off and then hit upon a final "can't-miss" scoring streak to beat the Pennsylvanians, 57-53, in a speedy game on the A. U. court.

The victory was four in a row for the vastly improved Eagles and the defeat snapped a three-game winning streak of the visitors. The triumph was particularly sweet for Staff Cassell, as Juniata mentor Carty Swartz was his former coach.

Bing Byham, the big, handsome center of the Eagles and George Zuras sparked a high-scoring streak of the Eagles in the first quarter, Byham tossing in four of his overhead, two-hand swish shots and Zuras potting three from the middle of the floor without touching the rim to put the hosts ahead, 20-9.

Juniata Comes Back

Juniata came right back and dominated the second period, with bespectacled Henry Eisenhart and Ray Clapperton, a smooth-working guard tossing in enough points to bring the score to 27-25 at halftime with A. U. still ahead.

Tony Recklis, Juniata captain, Eisenhart and Clapperton came right back in the third period and as the Eagles' defense slipped the visitors moved ahead, 37-32, with Clapperton tossing in two lay-ups and a pot shot in succession.

Fleming Gets Break As Trosky Quits Game

Indian Ace Retires at 29 After Continual Migrane Headaches

Cleveland, Feb. 18 (AP).—The migraine headaches which forced Hal Trosky to announce his retirement from baseball today gave Les Fleming, 26-year-old batting champion of the Southern Association, the biggest chance of his career.

Manager Lou Boudreau said "it looks like Fleming" to replace the Cleveland Indians' slugging first baseman, who in nine major league seasons averaged .314 at bat and drove out as many as 42 homeruns.

As insurance against the headaches which forced Big Hal from the line-up many times last season, the Tribe bought Fleming after he batted a whopping .414 for Nashville to lead the Southern Association's "rabbit ball" hitters.

"He looked pretty good in the two games he played with us at the finish of last season," Boudreau commented. "Of course, you can't tell from two games, but he'll be slated for that position. As for Hal, I know he gave his best It's too bad, because he had a lot of good baseball left in him."

Trosky—who is only 29—wrote the Tribe's President Alva Bradley that hopes of finding relief from the headaches this winter were "totally disappointing" and suggested he be placed on the voluntarily retired list.

Replying to the wintertime Iowa farmer, Bradley "regretted exceedingly" that there had been no relief, and added: "I believe the decision you are making, in view of the circumstances, is wise." He said Hal would remain on the roster for the present, but "I guess we'll have to go through with his request."

Trosky told the Des Moines Register; "If after resting this year I find that I am better, perhaps I'll try to be reinstated. If I don't get better, then my major league career is over."

Buenos Aires Games Plans Go Forward

By the United Press

New York, Feb. 18.—Plans for the participation of the United States in the Pan-American Olympic games at Buenos Aires will be carried through despite the appearance of enemy submarines in Western Hemisphere waters—providing, of course, the State Department is willing—the United Press learned tonight.

Dan Ferris, president of the National A. A. U., one of 104 groups sponsoring Yankee participation, said, "We will continue to prepare for the trip until the State Department officials notify us otherwise. To date we haven't been informed that the games will be called off. Buenos Aires is going right ahead."

A letter requesting the formal advice of the Government has been written by Jeremiah T. Mahoney, chairman of the National Finance Committee of the Games, to Secretary of State Hull. Although original plans for a team of 200 athletes may be modified, spokesmen said it "was almost certain that at least a token team will be sent."

Lions Victors After Coach Is 'Benched'

By Jack Munhall

Owner Mike Uline in a surprise move last night "benched" Coach Ching Johnson "indefinitely" while Defenseman Allan (Pop) Shields took over and led the Washington Hockey Lions to a 3-1 victory over the Indianapolis Capitals at Uline Arena.

The triumph, coincident with Providence's 3-to-3 tie with New Haven, lifted the Lions to within three points of Providence in their fight for third place and an Eastern Division playoff berth in the American League.

Uline described as "psychological" the removal of the former New York Ranger star. He said he had to do something "drastic" to wake his team up and that last night's impressive triumph seemed proof of the wisdom of his action. He emphasized, however, that Johnson was still on the payroll and that he would finish out his year's contract.

"I've been talking to a number of hockey experts, among them Charley Adams, of Boston (Bruins), and Frank Patrick, of the Rangers, and they tell me I have the best team in the league. But here we are in fourth place and struggling to make the playoffs. Something had to be done, so I took a gamble," said the owner.

Johnson Won't Talk

Uline said that General Manager Lee Perrin had been ordered to accompany the Lions on a two-day road trip. They left last night soon after the game for Buffalo, where they play tonight. Tomorrow the Lions meet Philadelphia, and then return home to meet Hershey here Sunday night.

"Shields will continue to act as coach," said Uline. "Whether the team wins or loses those two road games may influence my future action."

Perrin, admitting he was no hockey expert, indorsed the selection of Shields as temporary coach.

Uline would not say when or if Johnson would resume control of the team, but he repeated over and

Hoya Varsity, Frosh Fives Beat Loyola

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Feb. 18.—Georgetown University's varsity and freshman basketball teams swept a double-header with Loyola tonight. The big Hoyas won, 41-34, in a close battle, while their yearlings maintained their unbeaten pace with an overwhelming 59-13 decision.

Except one brief moment when Georgetown boosted the lead to eight points, a seven-point margin was largest the varsity victors could boast. But after Georgetown had erased Loyola's early lead it stayed in front all way.

Georgetown's ability to cash in on frequent foul throws tipped the scales. Loyola with 5 field goals was only one below Georgetown total but the Hoyas added nine points from the free-throw line against only four for home club.

Buddy O'Grady, high-scoring captain, accounted for eight points on his own and was invaluable in short game which finally brought victory over Mason-Dixon Conference leaders.

Fran Bock and Jim Nouss kept the Greyhounds in the ball game with two field goals but Martin and McDonough boosted Georgetown's half-time lead to 23-18.

Kostecka Tops Frosh

Play in the second half, lacking finesse of earlier stages, still was all in Georgetown's favor.

After Loyola had whittled away at Georgetown's eight-point margin of the third period, O'Grady dropped a right-hand looper to put his club on safer ground.

Andy Kostecka, towering Georgetown freshman center, dropped in 21 points, more than enough to beat the Greyhound yearlings single-handed. Standing 6-feet-3, the sharpshooting center acounted for 15 of his club's 26 first-half points. Seven field goals brought him 14 of these counters.

Bill Hassett wrapped up eight points himself but was even more valuable to Georgetown cause as key passer to Kostecka.

From opening whistle there was no doubt that the freshmen would take their fourteenth straight victory. Loyola's zone defense kept Hoyas in mid-court during the opening minutes but Georgetown's long-range guns hit target enough to give them a 13-0 lead at quarter.

Dan Krauss, Georgetown regular, saw action with the yearlings for the first time since Navy contest. Krauss had been on side lines with torn leg ligament.

W. Virginia Utilizes Its Free Throws

Dick Kesling Leads Attack for Winners With 16 Points; Middies Drop Fifth

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 18.—Scoring 16 of 18 free throws, West Virginia University's Powerhouse basketballers extended their winning streak to 10 games today, walloping a willing, but outclassed, Navy quint, 48 to 34.

Uncanny at the foul line, the Mountaineers vaulted into the lead after being held scoreless in the first five minutes and showered points into the basket from every angle. West Virginia drove steadily forward, taking a 26-to-11 halftime lead.

By their victory, the invaders notched their twelfth triumph in 13 games while Navy suffered its fifth setback in 9 starts. Unbeaten since losing to Duquesne early in the year, the Mountaineers boosted their seasonal point total to 706.

Commit 14 Fouls

Mystified by West Virginia's baffling ball handling, Navy committed 14 personal fouls, the majority occurring because the Middies often were caught flat-footed by quick Mountaineer moves. Both teams scored 16 field goals.

Seven Mountaineer doubledeckers were manufactured by Dick Kesling, midget center, who finished the game with 16 points, hiking his individual point total for the season to 186.

While Kesling proved unstoppable around the basket, his two running mates, Scottie Hamilton, rotund forward, and Skinny Roger Hicks, poured 12 charity throws and four field goals through the strands. Hamilton, keyman in the Mountaineer attack, was applauded often by the Midshipmen spectators for his stellar all-around exhibition.

Navy Leads Early

Navy led, 4 to 0, in the opening minutes of the game when Bill Busik and Pat Patrick sank successive field goals. Feeling out Navy's defenses momentarily, the Mountaineers suddenly came to life and pelted the rims for 14 tallies without a Navy response. The Middies then were held to two additional goals and a foul toss while West Virginia's rampaging stars collected their half-time advantage.

Ohio State Routs Pitt's Trackmen

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 18 (AP).—Ohio State University opened its indoor track season here today by trampling the University of Pittsburgh, 76 to 28.

Bob Wright, ace Ohio sprinter, won the 60-yard high hurdles, tied with Stickel of Pitt in the 70-yard low hurdles, and finished third in the shot put and 60-yard dash.

Two new fieldhouse records were established.

Wright did the 60-yard high hurdles in 8.7 seconds, bettering the old record of 9 seconds, and George Hoeflinger, of Ohio, cleared the high-jump bar at 6 feet 3½ inches to better the original 6-foot 2-inch mark.

Five Players Sign Before Making Trip

Wyatt, Walker Hold Out; Higbe Voices Dislike of Camp; Team Goes by Air

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 18.—Bustling Larry MacPhail came to terms with five Brooklyn baseball players in a whirlwind series of conferences today, then packed them off with the rest of the National League Champions for the Havana training camp.

Left behind were three holdouts—Pitcher Whitlow Wyatt, Outfielder Dixie Walker and Rookie Pitcher John Kraus. None of the three even showed up at Miami to talk to MacPhail, the club president. Another stay-behind was Pitcher Kirby Higbe, who balked at the last moment. Club officials said he wanted to take his wife along, but Higbe's only comment was "I just don't like the place and MacPhail knows it. Besides the food being terrible, the water is bad."

Players' wives were not asked to make the trip because only limited space was available for the aerial jump.

Asked when he would join his teammates, Higbe said: "I don't know. There's no use thinking about that now."

MacPhail, who flew in from New York last night, rushed over from his Miami Beach hotel this morning and went to work on the players he had not signed.

Late, after the squad had left for Havana on two chartered Pan-American clippers, Club Secretary John McDonald announced these players had reached an agreement on their salaries:

Hard Battle With Wyatt

Veteran Relief Pitcher Johnny Allen, Pitcher Larry French, Infielder Arky Vaughan, obtained from Pittsburgh in a big swap during the winter; Outfielder Joe Medwick and Outfielder Don Padgett, acquired from St. Louis.

The terms were not announced. McDonald said they would sign contracts as soon as they got settled at Havana.

Catcher Herman Franks and Infielder Lester Burge, both already signed, did not accompany the squad today because of illness in their families.

MacPhail indicated that he expected the salary difficulty with Wyatt to be the hardest to settle. The highly-successful hurler was reported asking $20,000—up $7,500 over his 1941 pay.

"Wyatt is entitled to a raise," MacPhail declared. "But last year was his first big season, and he can't expect to jump over the heads of players who have been up there a long time."

There was no indication of the amount offered Walker, or of the sum he asks.

McDonald said Kraus, who played last year with Durham of the Piedmont League, wants more than offered—"maybe the price of a cup of coffee, but we're not going to bother with him too much."

Meyer Not Worried by Task Of Filling Gehringer's Shoes

L. D. (Little Dutch) Meyer, 26, takes time out from a golf game to ponder the opportunity open to him with the Detroit Tigers this year, where he is scheduled to take over the second base post vacated by Charley Gehringer who will be a Tiger coach. Meyer is a nephew of Leo (Dutch) Meyer, Texas Christian football coach

Young Tiger Rookie Lauds Famed Player: New Recruit Nephew of T. C. U. Coach

By the Associated Press

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 18.—L. D. (Little Dutch) Meyer is accustomed to being on the spot, so attempting to fill the shoes this year of the great Charley Gehringer at Detroit doesn't have him worried in the least.

The 26-year-old Meyer, who has been in professional baseball five years, playing 40 games last season with the Tigers, said today as he prepared for his trip to Lakeland, Fla., to join the Detroit squad:

"No one can entirely replace Gehringer and I don't think the fans in that swell baseball town expect anyone to. I feel they will be liberal with me as I try to fill the shoes of the greatest second baseman of them all."

Gehringer this year will be a coach at Detroit.

Meyer finished at Texas Christian University in 1937 after four years of being on the spot—as far as many of the fans were concerned. It happened that his Uncle Leo (Dutch) Meyer, was the football coach.

Little Dutch played as a freshman under Meyer and the next season the latter was promoted to varsity coach, so for three years the nephew had to listen to criticism that he wasn't getting his full dues.

Many of the fans said, when Little Dutch understudied the starting ends on the Horned Frogs team, that Meyer was leaning backward and not using his nephew enough for fear the fans might yell "favoritism."

There was nothing of the sort, declared Little Dutch. "We talked about it," he said, "but I told my uncle I was being used just right. I realized I was an offensive player and not as strong as the others on defense."

He never weighed more than 170 pounds as a college footballer.

Leland Wins 11th Game in Row

Leland Junior High School's undefeated basketball team yesterday won its eleventh straight victory by overwhelming Georgetown Prep's junior varsity, 40-9, on the home court.

The Little Hoyas were held scoreless until the fifth minute of the second half, or for about 23 minutes.

Hardy Sorrell and George Van Wagner, with eight points each, and Pete Smith, with six, formed a swift moving trio for the winners, while Dillon's six points were best for the losers.

Fletcher Ends Holdout, Signs With Pirates

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Feb. 18.—First Baseman Elbie Fletcher, the Pittsburgh Pirates' only holdout to date, agreed today to terms for his 1942 contract in a telephone conversation with President William Benswanger, the club announced.

It also was disclosed that Long John Gee, 6-foot-9-inch southpaw pitcher, has been optioned to Toronto in the International League. Gee, hailed as a potential second Lefty Grove after a spectacular season in the International League in 1939, injured his arm in the Pirates 1940 spring training camp and never hit a winning stride. He cost around $75,000.

Fletcher was understood to have been given a salary cut in the first contract based partly upon a drop in his "runs driven in" total from 104 in 1940 to 74 last year. Opposing pitchers still showed their respect for Elbie's bat last year however, by passing him 118 times, the most given any National League batter. Dolph Camilli, the league's leading hitter drew 104 passes and Mel Ott of the Giants 100 to place second and third.

Fletcher will be 26 next March 18. He is married and has a child 2½ years old.

The only unsigned Pirates now are Outfielder Vince DiMaggio and Catcher Eddie Fernandes, both of whom live on the West Coast and are expected to report at the Pirates' training camp and sign up later this month.

C. U. Battles Western Md. Five Tonight

Catholic University will attempt to keep its head above the even-stephen level in the Mason-Dixon Conference tonight when the Cards play host to Western Maryland in the only game involving the District college teams.

The Green Terrors defeated Washington College on Tuesday by four points and climbed to a fourth-place tie in the conference with a 6-and-4 standing. C. U. is two notches below with seven victories and six defeats.

Catholic U. lost to the defending champions, 50-33, in an earlier meeting in Westminster. Game time is 8:30 p. m. following a freshman preliminary.

State of Mississippi May Cancel All Sports

Meeting in March to Decide Fate of 6 Colleges; Ole Miss Carded for Grid Game Here With G. U.

By International News Service

Jackson, Miss., Feb. 18.—The heads of Mississippi's State-supported educational institutions tonight prepared to cancel, if possible, their intercollegiate athletic programs for the duration of the war.

The educators were ordered by the State College Board to study existing contracts for contests with other institutions, and the contracts of coaches to determine if they can be negated, and to report to the board at its March meeting.

The six State-supported institutions are Ole Miss, Mississippi State, both members of the Southeastern Conference, and Mississippi Southern, Delta State Teachers College, Mississippi State College for Women, and Alcorn College for Negroes.

Georgetown University will be affected if Ole Miss' sports schedules are canceled, since the Hoyas are slated to meet the Rebels October 2 at Griffith Stadium in their second football game of next season. The Hilltoppers and the Rebels also are carded to meet on the gridiron here in 1943.

Shenandoah's Five Loses to Columbus U.

Shenandoah College, of Dayton, Va., provided little opposition for Columbus last night in the Tech gym as the Explorers won, 66-45, making it 11 victories in 14 starts.

Columbus was ahead, 35-21, at halftime and added to the margin in the second half with reserves playing most of the last period.

The consistent high-point men of the Explorers, Ack Viana and Gerry Burns, were leaders with 13 and 12 points, respectively, while honors for the game went to Matery, of the Virginians with 16.

Columbus plays St. Vincent Friday at Eastern High and Marshall College Saturday in Huntington, W. Va.

Mal Elward Resigns Grid Post at Purdue

By the Associated Press

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 18.—Allen H. (Mal) Elward, Purdue University's head football coach since the summer of 1937, said he gave his resignation tonight to President Edward C. Elliott.

The resignation was addressed to Dr. Elliott and the board of trustees. Only last month the trustees relieved Elward of the job of athletic director.

Elward has been on the Boilermaker coaching staff since 1927. He succeeded Noble E. Kizer as athletic director and head coach.

Kizer gave up his coaching duties when he went to Arizona for his health in 1937. He died in 1940.

Elward said he was resigning to go back into the Navy, in which he served four years in the World War and gained the rank of lieutenant, senior grade.

Accompanying Connie were Catcher Hal Wagner, Outfielders Eddie Collins, jr., and Elmer Valo, Infielders Jack Wallaseca, Crash Davis and Al Rubeling, and Coaches Dave Keefe and Lena Blackburne.

The squad is scheduled to reach Fullerton, Calif., Saturday afternoon.

Dodgers Arrive in Cuba By Plane for Drills

Havana, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers, National League baseball champions, took to the air today to get to Havana for a 20-day training period.

The Dodgers arrived here in two planes, making a brief air jaunt from Miami, Fla., where many of them had concentrated to discuss salaries with Larry MacPhail, the club president.

Hot, sunny weather and a crowd of Cuban sports fans greeted the Dodgers at the airport here. Many Cubans, in cables to Brooklyn last fall, insisted that it was the Havana training that brought the Dodgers their pennant.

Real training will get under way tomorrow. The first spring training game of the season will find the Dodgers meeting the New York Giants here Saturday, February 28.

Rosslyn Wins, Boosts Lead

Gladys Lynn rolled a 356 set for Rosslyn last night as the Galt Davis' team defeated King Pin, 2-1, and increased its Ladies' District League lead to three games. Kitty Mulroe had 385 for the losers.

Georgia Hays posted a 371 for Lafayette, which won two from Convention Hall while Dot Gude's 370 was high for Clarendon in its odd game triumph over Ice Palace, despite Alma Mehler's 354.

Other results: Hi-Skor, 2; Arcadia, 1; Rendezvous, 3; Spillway, 0, and Brookland, 2; Arlington, 1.

Quakertown Captures Hialeah Feature in Thrilling Finish

Horn Takes 2d Place With Doublrab 3d

Victory Is Second Straight; Winner. Ridden by Wright, Returns $5.90 Price

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 18.—In one of the prettiest finishes of the season, James B. Campbell's Quakertown emerged victorious over P. M. Burch's lightly weighted Horn and F. Campagna's Doublrab in the Grade "C" Handicap that topped the day's sport. At the end of the 6½ furlongs, Quakertown held a nose margin over Horn, while Doublrab was a scant half length behind.

It was Quakertown's second straight triumph here and his victory was very popular with the crowd, which installed him favorite at $5.90 for $2. The victor and Doublrab were equal top-weights under 120 pounds. The thrilling affair was completed in 1:18 3-5.

Quakertown was ridden by the veteran Wayne Wright, while Horn's pilot was Warren Mehrtens, the Long Island lad who, as this race was run, had more winners than any other rider at the meeting. Mehrtens loses his precious five pounds apprentice over the coming weekend.

Doublrab, Tamil, Eire and Horn dashed away from the others after a good start, that quartet racing in close alignment for a quarter mile. Quakertown moved up on the leaders leaving the backstretch. Eire was first to crack. In the stretch drive, Horn, Doublrab and Quakertown were heads apart. The last named, in the middle of the trio, poked his nose in front of Horn just as they hit the wire. Doublrab was easily third.

Novel Target Simulates Foe Advancing on Marksman

Members of the Palmetto Pistol Club know what it's like to fire at an advancing enemy, for their pistol range, only one of its kind in this country, provides the same effect with targets that slowly advance toward the firing line. The moving targets, shown as they appear to the marksmen, are mounted on a two-and-a-half-ton crane which moves on four light-guage tracks and is controlled from behind the firing line. Club officials say the United States Marine Corps has studied the device and may install similar ranges at Quantico

Selections at Hialeah

Dear Al:

The boys and girls who bet hunches at this track still cling to the No. 1 post position, which has gotten a lot of publicity and furnishes a surprising number of winners. The No. 1 position became popular when the track was off during the early stages of the meeting. On a drying-out track at Hialeah the best going is along the rail, contrary to the situation that holds at most ovals. This is because the soil seems to drain better on the inside and then, again, horses are never allowed to work on the rail at Hialeah when the track is not fast. The first week of the meeting the track was either off or dead for the most part, and long-shot winners paraded out of the No. 1 gate. Last Tuesday three winners were from the inside post position. Then, again, Flying Legion, a horse that should have been 50 to 100 to 1, closed at 12 to 1 for no other reason than he was in the No. 1 slot. Horses continue to be shipped into Florida, but the stalls are running out. Even Tropical Park is hanging out the "full" sign. Guy Fawkes, a frequent winner, is stabled at a riding academy up the road from the Coral Gables course. Bill Carl, of the Call Carls, tells me he is going to enter his Sir Rowdy in the Redland Hunt point-to-point races on March 7. I couldn't quite put Horn into the winner's slot yesterday, but he did run a wake-up race. The sire Time Supply has a couple of fine 2-year-old fillies about ready for the campaigns. They are Gold Betty and Gold Queen. They tell me the horse Italian Harry is now earning his feed in a riding stable around Washington. I wonder what Huppy is doing? They tell me that Jockey Eddie Smith, the Washington boy, is considering retiring as a rider. You can bet me. The first warm day of March Eddie will be working horses at Bowie. Let me know if you see him. They say lightning doesn't strike twice in the same place. What about Alsab? Forty more days to Bowie. BILL.

First race—The entry of MEDID and UHHUH, with the accent on the last-named, seems to have a strong hand in the day's hop, skip and jump for juveniles. TWO TIMER has speed and is dangerous. BUDGETEER to take care of the others.

Second race—ARTHUR J. should make the most of the rail position in this sprint field and I'm going to string along. WAR STONE likes the 7 furlongs and will be close. HOMELY JOE for the show end

Third race—GAY MAN, with McCoombs to do the booting, appears best placed of this field. GRAND CENTRAL will be in the thick of contention and deserves attention. SPECIFY is a guessing game.

Fourth race—COFFEE MAN won earlier in the meeting and should give an excellent account of himself. I'm going to put him on top. PRAIRIE DOG is good now and will be a keen factor. BUCKLE UP is a possible surprise.

Fifth race—The Brann entry of MOON MAIDEN and CHALLOMINE should produce the winner in this sprint. Either could turn the trick. VERSE is tossed in this with a feather assignment and belongs close. WISE NIECE has a fighting chance.

Sixth race—FIRST FIDDLE seems to have the Indian sign on this field. Needs only the right ride. AUTOMATON is better than that last so watch out. RED HORN gets in with 99 pounds and is a threat.

Seventh race—COLORADO ORE gets in with 104 pounds and likes the marathon route. TEDDER is good now and belongs close. BRIGHT GRAY to take care of the others.

Eighth race—HANDIBOY looks like the goods in the day's finale. The company is right. SIR GIBSON and LEONARDTOWN to fill out the money bracket.

Best bet—FIRST FIDDLE.

Local Shooter Wins High Junior Rating

Stanley Williams, 3568 Thirteenth Street Northwest, has fired his way into national target shooting prominence by winning the second highest junior award of the National Rifle Association, it was disclosed by the N. R. A. junior division here last night. He is one of the first junior contestants in the association's shooting qualification series to gain this distinction so far this year.

Young Williams was required to fire 50 shots in the most difficult of all shooting positions—standing—at a bullseye actually smaller than the .22-caliber cartridges he was firing. The distance was 50 feet and the youthful sharpshooter had to average 80 per cent accuracy over the course.

Stanley's new award is second in importance only to the Distinguised Rifleman Gold Bar, for which he is now eligible to compete, and is preceded by 13 progressively harder tests which the Washington boy was required to pass. The firing was done in a recent series of qualification shooting which annually draws thousands of juniors into rifle competition. Last year the junior division awarded some 90,000 medals in all the 15 classifications, the great majority, of course, being taken by shooters in classifications lower than expert.

EAHL Head Will Explain Title Play-offs

Thomas Lockhart, jr., president of the Eastern Hockey League, will be here today to explain plans for the Eastern League's championship play-offs next month.

Lockhart will confer with Owner S. G. Leoffler, sr., and Coach Redvers Mackenzie of the Eagles, early in the afternoon.

The Eagles will be bolstered by the return to action of fiery Paul Courteau tomorrow night when they entertain the revised Boston Olympics at Riverside rink, 8:30 o'clock. Boston likewise will be bolstered by the return to the nets of Vic Polich, its great goalie.

Courteau served a one-game suspension against the Atlantic City Sea Gulls last Tuesday night after previously having been charged with his third misconduct penalty of the season in Atlantic City over the weekend.

The Olympics likewise have been forced to go along without the service of Polich, who has been making an appearance before his draft board in Hibbing, Minn.

The Olympics are making a desperate battle against the odds in a brave fight for a pennant they appeared to have just about clinched before their ranks were raided and four of their key players lifted by their parent club, the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, recently.

George Selkirk Returns Signed Yankee Contract

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—The signed contract of George Selkirk, veteran outfielder, was received at the New York Yankees' office today. Selkirk, who has been wintering in Florida, is the twelfth player to sign. The 34-year-old player batted only .220 last season, competing in 70 games.

Ray Flaherty Named

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP). — Ray Flaherty, coach of the Washington Redskins, today was named to the rules committee of the National Football League by Commissioner Elmer Layden. Flaherty will serve with George Halas of the Chicago Bears, Steve Owen of the New York Giants, Curley Lambeau, Green Bay Packers, and Bert Bell, Pittsburgh Steelers, all hold-overs.

Duseks Meet Unbeaten Foes Here Tonight

One-half of the famous Dusek "Riot Squad" will be in action in one bout tonight at Turner's Arena when Emil and Rudy Dusek engage the popular two-man wrestling team of Maurice LaChappelle and Ace Freeman in the feature match.

The Duseks are out to crack the 10-match winning streak of their younger and more scientific adversaries, and are counting on four powerful fists and brute strength to turn the trick.

This will be two out of three falls, and may find two referees handling the bout. Up to late last night Promoter Joe Turner had not made up his mind as to whether he would use just one or two officials. Casey Berger, Turner says, can tandle the task O. K., but those "Terrible Dusekes" want Curley Brown of New York to aid the big airport guard.

Two-man competition is sweeping the East. In St. Louis Tom Packs reports that his crowds have doubled since he started staging such bouts, while Eddie Gottlieb, Philadelphia promoter, said that the Duseks drew better than $3500 in a two-man match in the Quaker City the other night.

The semiwindup promises to hum with interest. It finds Yvon Robert, good-looking Canadian champion, and erstwhile world titleholder, meeting Gino Garibaldi, powerful Italian grappler. It was in Washington that Robert lost his crown to Cliff Olson when he suffered a broken leg some years ago.

Cowboy Luttrall, anxious for a third crack at Garibaldi, will meet Milo Steinborn, the "Strong Man," and Frank Judson and Art LaGrand will raise the curtain at approximately 8:45.

Officials Relent So Blair and Bethesda Fives Clash Tonight

Maryland U. Floor Scene Of Struggle

Student Bodies Promise to Be Good; Bethesda Favorite; Jayvees Also Play

After a promise from the respective student bodies that school spirit would not be carried too far, officials of Blair and Bethesda High Schools permitted the Montgomery County rivals to settle their differences in a single game tonight in Maryland University's Ritchie Coliseum.

The two-game series was called off recently when Bethesda students broke 50-odd windows in the Blair buildings and painted the brick walls and then Blair students were taken into the custody of the police when they went to Bethesda with similar damage in mind.

The affair was straightened out this week and yesterday principals and athletic directors of the rival institutions agreed on one game in order to retain one of this section's most popular scholastic rivalries.

Junior varsity teams will play at 7 p. m., with the varsity encounter about 8 o'clock. In place of the usual home-and-home agreement the schools will split the proceeds from the single game this year. In the past upwards of 2000 have attended since the games have been played at Maryland.

Bethesda, with by far the best record, will rule as favorite although Blair handed Charlotte Hall its second defeat of the season last Saturday and may have another upset in store. Bethesda won both games last year.

A.A.U. Extends Deadline for Senior Boxers

After weighin-in the largest class of novices ever registered for a District A. A. U. boxing tournament, the committee in charge last night voted to extend the deadline for senior entries until next Wednesday.

More than a score of seniors were examined and passed but the several contestants notified Chairman Billy Blake they would be unable to appear last night and it was decided to extend the time limit. A week's grace will give several coaches an opportunity of entering some candidates who had hoped to compete but were not in proper condition.

National Training School, coached by Bill McGeever, topped the list with 14 entries and to 169-pound Edward Ryan went the honor of being the first fighter officially entered. Bill Hodges, Training School bantamweight, was next before Jimmy Hubbard, of the Apollo A. C., stepped on the Fairbanks.

Duke Brings 'Wear 'Em Down' Five Here to Test Colonials

Coming From Behind Nothing New To G. W.'s Saturday Night Rivals

George Washington rooters should not be too enthusiastic if the Colonials hold a half-time lead in Saturday's big ball game at Riverside Stadium with Duke's Southern Conference leaders, for it has been the policy of the Blue Devils to wear the opposition down and come from behind to win, if necessary.

Coach Eddie Cameron uses nine players of about equal ability, working them in and out so as not to tire any one man but at the same time keeping fresh material against the opposition.

In Duke's 11 consecutive conference victories to date, Clyde Allen, Sam Rothbaum, Bill McGahan, Bill Stark and Hy Spuhler have made up the starting club while the Loftis brothers, Sedrick and Garland, John Seward and Bob Gantt have supplied the relief.

Sedrick Loftis, who, with his brother and Gantt, played on Durham's famous high school club of several years ago, is the Devils' high scorer with Allen second best.

Duke plays Wake Forest tonight in the latter's gym in its last game before playing here on Saturday.

The Durham Club defeated G. W., 38-37, in North Carolina this year and the teams divided a two game series last season.

Hoopes Leads Arrow Team In Bowling

Jack Hoopes and his Arrow bowling team were the whole show last night in the United States Chamber of Commerce meet at the Ice Palace. Hoopes, with a 139 high single and 371 set not only topped the league but sparked his mates to team highs of 548 and 1590. Teammate Wilson Terrell helped Hoopes and together they led a three-game attack on the Tommyhawks that chalked up three wins for the Arrows.

SILVER SPRING

Hugh Arbaugh, owner of the Silver Spring drives, proved he was top duckpinner in the Ameircan League when he posted individual highs of 152-395 for his Sandford's quintet. The Georgia Tavern boys, however, proved the best team with high game of 589 and set of 1744, also winning three from Willis Builders, while Coffman Realty was whitewashing Wonder Bread.

CONVENTION HALL

The State Department League at Convention Hall was topped by Charley Hatten. Personnel, whose highs of 134-358 sparked an odd-game win over MASU. DCR No. 2 and Accounts shared the team highs with respective totals of 565 and 1594, with the latter team taking three from Passports.

PENN RECREATION

Abe Weinberg was top duckpinner in the Hebrew League at Penn Recreation with his 154 single and record set of 448 to pace the Milton's Service boys home for team honors after pinfalls of 603 and 1685. Despite these highs, however, the team dropped a pair to Rosenblatt's Delicatessen.

Landon Five Bows In Overtime, 34 to 31

St. Paul's Comes From Behind to Tie Battle; Devereux Hero in Defeat

Playing their best basketball of the current season, Landon Prep carried the crack St. Paul's five, of Baltimore, into overtime yesterday before bowing by a 34-31 margin. The visitors came from behind to tie the score in the final 25 seconds of regulation time and then outscored their rivals in the added session.

St. Paul's with only two defeats this season gained an 18-15 lead in the first half but Landon rallied and fought its way to the front to hold a 25-21 advantage at the end of the third quarter. With a minute to go, Bishop sank a field goal and Galloway came through with a foul shot to even the count at 30-all.

In the extra period, Landon was held to a single point while St. Paul's dominated the action.

Joe Devereux played a strong floor game for Landon in addition to leading his club in scoring with 12 points. Charlie Cady and George Kriner also were prominent for the local five. Galloway made 13 points in addtion to his tying foul shot and otherwise proved himself considerable basketball player.

Byham flipped in three push-up shots and A. U. was ahead, 44-39, at the end of the third period and soon increased it to 49-39.

Juniata cut into the margin but could not come within four points, and with two minutes to play Rube McNab, the freshman who starred for Washington and Lee last year, tapped in a follow-up to sew up the ball game.

Cassell's frehmen, McNab, Bart Fugler and Ed Rabbitt were impressive, particularly the latter, while Charley Kligman, who tossed in ten points was also a big help to the winners.

Eisenhart was high scorer with 21 points while Byham was only two back with 19.

over again that he wouldn't say or do a thing to "hurt Ching."

"We discussed the move yesterday," said Uline, "and Ching agreed to sitting out last night's match."

Coach Johnson was nowhere to be seen during the match but came in the arena afterward.

He explained his absence with a smiling "Just say I'm benched." He would not elaborate on that laconic statement.

The ever reliable Louie Trudel and Capt. George Mantha, plus the clever playmaker Rod Lorrain and the plugging Polly Drouin were the Lions' offensive heroes in the Indianapolis victory. Trudel fired Washington's first goal at 16:34 of the opening period, and then assisted Mantha to the decisive point at 9:57 of the last session. The third and last Washington marker fell to Drouin at 16:23. Lorrain started the play on which Mantha scored and he also paved the way for Drouin's red lighter. Shields, oldest player on the squad, set up Trudel's counter with some adept stick handling.

Barons Top Hershey, Tie for West Lead

Hershey, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP).—The Cleveland Barons defeated Hershey, 4 to 0, tonight and went into a deadlock with the Bears for first place in the Western Division of the American Hockey League. About 7600 fans saw the action.

It was the first time since the middle of the 1939-40 season that the Barons were able to trounce the Bears in their own backyard.

The first period was a rough and tumble battle that sent seven men to the penalty box, once reducing the two teams to three players and a goalie each. In the second period the Bears faltered and in 18 seconds the Barons tallied twice. Foster scored first and Deacon flipped home the second point.

New Haven Rallies, Ties Providence, 3-3

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18 (AP).—Overcoming a two-goal deficit, the New Haven Eagles battled to 3-3 overtime tie with the Providence Reds in an American Hockey League game tonight. Norm Tustin fired in two goals for the locals and Norm Burns pegged the other.

Providence got off to a fast start in the opening period on tallies by Norm Calladine and Oscar Aubuchon. Burns gave the Eagles their first score in the same frame. The second period was scoreless.

Aubuchon, netting his second goal of the game in the third period, gave the visiting Reds what appeared to be a safe lead, but they failed to bottle up Tustin, who tossed in a pair of fast goals at 8:10 and 9:33 to tie the score at 3-all.

A fast overtime period was nonproductive of scoring.

Music Industry Ordered to Cut Materials' Use

By the Associated Press

The War Production Board ordered a sharp curtailment yesterday in the use of critical metals and plastics in musical instruments, in order to save "substantial quantities" for weapons, planes and ships.

The curtailment of the 50 million dollar industry, which employs about 15,000 workers, covers the period from March 1 to June 1, after which it may be extended or made more drastic.

All musical instruments except radios, phonographs and radio phonographs—whose producers have been ordered to prepare for complete conversion to war work—are covered in the order, as well as such accessories as music stands, bows, picks and piano stools.

The materials named include iron, steel, magnesium, aluminum, nickel, chromium, rubber, copper and copper alloys, tin, lead, zinc, neoprene (synthetic rubber), cork and certain plastics.

The order provides that in the three-month period manufacturers may use in total volume up to 75 per cent of their average 1940 consumption for a similar period in instruments containing less than 10 per cent of these materials by weight. In instruments containing 10 to 25 per cent of the restricted materials, they may use up to 65 per cent, and in instruments containing 25 per cent or more of the materials, only up to 50 per cent.

Seventy-five per cent of 1940 consumption may be used in the manufacture of spare parts for all instruments.

Facilities of the musical instrument industry are not readily adaptable to war production, WPB noted, although some war work has been undertaken and efforts are being made to obtain additional contracts.

Crude Oil Output Declines in Week

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—Daily average crude oil production in the week ended February 14 dropped to 4,078,500 barrels, a decline of 258,400 from the preceding week, the American Petroleum Institute reported today. This compared with 3,638,100 barrels a year ago

Gasoline production amounted to 12,471,000 barrels, against 12,895,000 a week earlier.

Gasoline stocks expanded to 101,796,000 barrels from 100,224,000 at the end of the previous week and 93,801,000 a year ago.

The industry as a whole ran to stills 3,772,000 barrels of crude oil daily, based on reports which indicated operations were at 80.6 per cent of capacity. This compared with 3,853,000 barrels and 82.3 per cent of capacity in the preceding week, and 3,606,000 barrels a year ago.

1809 Cargo Ships Under Construction

New York, Feb. 18 (AP).—J. Lewis Luckenbach, president of the American Bureau of Shipping, reported a January gain of 763 ships of 5,049,020 gross tons on order or under construction in American shipyards.

Writing in the bureau's February bulletin, Luckenbach declared that on February 1 there were 1809 merchant ships of 11,511,690 tons building or under contract, as compared to 1046 vessels of 6,462,670 tons on January 1. These figures, he said, did not include 52 ships being built for the British government in Atlantic and Pacific Coast yards of the Todd Shipyards Corporation.

U. S. to Curb Exports Of Fire Equipment

By the Associated Press

The Board of Economic Warfare announced yesterday that all general licenses for export of fire fighting equipment—except automotive fire engines—would be revoked at midnight, February 25, except with respect to destinations in Canada, Great Britain, Northern Ireland, Newfoundland, Greenland and Iceland.

The action was necessary because of critical shortages of fire fighting equipment in the United States. After February 25 individual export licenses will be required for such equipment.

Conventions Being Streamlined, Shortened To Conserve Time of Business Executives

In stepping up armament production from a trickle to a flood-tide, full use must be made of the talents of industrial management. Nothing should be permitted to distract executives from their basic wartime job of raising the productivity of the Nation.

Specially, non-essential conferences should be reduced, and business conventions should be shortened.

The Ohio Bankers Association has a plan which should be of interest to all financial and business groups in the Nation. It recognizes the value of periodical meetings to interchange ideas and practices, but instead of a prolonged, dragged out series of sessions over a three-day period it has a new design for conventions in busy times.

At its recent mid-winter conference at Columbus it attracted country and city bankers from all over the State through asking them to make no sacrifice whatever of business time. It held the convention on a bank holiday, namely Lincoln's birthday, started the sessions with a luncheon and ended the conference at 4 o'clock the same afternoon. Thus it gave a modern interpretation to the old aphorism that brevity is the soul of wit.

In wartime, such an intelligent formula for conserving the time of business executives should be spread throughout the 48 States.

In a short meeting there can be concentration on the high spots, with a few significant and carefully planned addresses. Other details can be conveyed through printed bulletins.

If all the thousands of business organizations would thus streamline their conventions, a significant release of executive time would result.

In the case of national associations, which draw to its convention leaders from all the 48 States, there could be important conservation of transportation facilities and the time of members through the device of breaking up the national convocation into three or more regional meetings. As a result, many hundreds of thousands of passenger-train miles woul be saved, as well as tens of thousands of executive man hours.

In view of the need of keeping up morale and of interchanging rapidly new ideas for speeding war production and for finding substitutes where necessary for civilians, there should be no moratorium on organized meetings of business men. But conventions should be streamlined, shortened, made more pertinent for current abnormal conditions, and they should also be broken up into regional meetings to cut down on avoidable travel.

Sometime ago Donald M. Nelson told me that just as the Government had sponsored defense clinics around the country, he thought it would be desirable for business leaders on their own initiative to hold non-defense clinics. At such meetings, Mr. Nelson thought, the larger companies could help to keep the enterprise system alive by imparting to smaller businessmen the techniques by which they were adapting their own operations to changing wartime conditions, thus raising the productivity of the Nation through passing along the fruits of their own research, development of synthetics and their creative ideas for making the best out of a troubled period.

Sharp Drop Seen In Credit Buying

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 18 (AP).—Federal restrictions stemming from the war forecast a sharp decline in credit and installment buying, Dr. Albert Haring, professor of marketing at Indiana University, told delegates to a district conference of Associated Credit Bureaus.

"Pressure toward greater cash sales will be the situation for the duration," Dr. Harris said. "As a result, credit bureaus will experience a declining volume of the type of business that has supported them for the last five years."

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP).—Grain prices tried to continue their recent creeping advance today, but, after early fractional gains had established new peaks since last month, the market reacted as a result of late profit taking.

Wheat finished ⅛@⅛ cent lower than yesterday, May 1.30⅝@1.30¾; July, 1.32¼; corn, ⅛@⅜ down; May, 88; July, 89⅝; oats, ¼@1 cent lower; rye, ⅜@⅝ down; soybeans unchanged to ⅛ off, and lard unchanged to 5 lower. Closing prices were at or near the day's lows in all pits.

With trade comparatively light and speculative and investment interest on a small scale, only scattered profit taking and hedging sales were necessary to cause the late reaction.

French, president, said sales for 1941 totaled $16,503,025, an increase of 187 per cent over 1940, largely due to Government business but attributable in part to a gain in commercial work.

French said personnel increased 1600 men to a record total of 5100 at year's end and that possibly 1500 more would be added this year.

Detroit Edison Co. reported for 1941 net income of $12,443,156, equal to $1.96 a share, on the capital stock, compared with $10,732,735, or $1.69 a share, in 1940.

Westinghouse Air Brake Co. reported for 1941 net profit of $6,058,635, equal to $1.91 a share on its capital stock, compared with $5,591,606, or $1.76 a share, in the preceding year.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad reported preliminary net income of $788,572 for 1941 against a 1940 net loss of $1,041,021.

McKesson & Robbins, Inc., drug manufacturers, reported for six months ended December 31 consolidated net profit of $3,957,543 after charges and setting aside a reserve of one million dollars. The statement was the first issued since the return of the company to private management after its prolonged period of reorganization. W. J. Murray, president, said sales in the period amounted to $102,451,571, compared with $80,861,566 in the comparable period of 1940.

Baldwin Locomotive Works and subsidiaries including the Midvale Co., doubled earnings during 1941, Charles E. Brinley, president, disclosed in the company's annual report.

Brinley said, however, the company was "still seriously lacking in cash working capital" and "reasonable prudence . . . would indicate a postponement of declaration of dividends on the common shares."

Consolidated 1941 earnings for the company amounted to $3,975,499, after deduction of provision by the Midvale Co. of reserve for war contingencies and payment of Baldwin preferred stock dividends. This equalled $3.70 per share on the common stock, 60 cents of which is represented by undistributed earnings of the Midvale Co. In 1940 the company earned $1,944,072, equal to $1.75 per share on the common.

Nickel Plate Railroad reported January net income of $635,212, compared with $594,920 for the corresponding month in 1941.

General Baking Co. reported for the 52 weeks ended December 27 net profit of $1,176,025, equal to 31 cents a common share after charges and preferred dividend requirements. This compared with $1,923,926, or 77 cents a share, in the preceding 52 weeks.

Raybestos-Manhattan, Inc., manufacturers of automotive equipment and specialty lines, reported for 1941 net profit of $2,053,037 after ordinary charges, and setting aside $1,044,745 for depreciation and $4,500,000 for Federal income and excess profits taxes, in additioin to $896,700 for post-war adjustments. This was equal to $3.27 a share on the capital stock, and compared with $1,696,926, or $2.70 a share, in 1940.

Commonwealth Edison Co. and subsidiaries reported net earnings declined to $26,747,901 in 1941 from $29,170,756 in 1940. The 1941 earnings were equal to $2.10 a share, against $2.32 in 1940. Operating revenues rose from $154,805,524 in 1940 to $165,482,143 in 1941, but this gain was offset by increased labor and material costs, higher Federal taxes and larger "direct costs" as a result of the greater output. The company does substantially all of the electric business in Chicago.

Coffee Market Firms On Shipping Danger

Cuban Sugar Crop Quota Raised 1,200,000 Tons

Havana, Feb. 18 (AP).—A decree fixing the 1942 Cuban sugar crop at 3,600,000 long tons was signed yesterday by President Fulgencio Batista.

The United States is scheduled to get 3,400,000 tons of the total, largest crop since 1930, when the yield was 4,670,993 tons. Cuba's 1941 production quota was 2,400,000 tons.

Steel Output In Week Sets New Record

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 18.—First reaction of the Nation's steel mills to the fall of Singapore and other unfavorable war news was to step up production this week to a new high level, Iron Age said today.

One factor behind the improvement, the steel magazine said, was the more vigorous effort of scrap dealers and mills to increase scrap deliveries despite bad weather in some areas.

Steel output was estimated by the publication at 98.5 per cent of capacity, a gain of 1 point over last week, and ½ point above the previous week reached in early Navember last year.

Orders Accelerate

"Steel orders during the last 10 days," said the survey, "have run ahead of the corresponding period of January, a though necessary civilian requirements, such as repair and maintenance, are likely to be met, heavy war needs will blot out all other requirements for some months to come.

"More plates will be needed than generally supposed, and munition requirements may expand sharply before the end of the year. The need for ships overshadows all other demand, and is diverting a very large tonnage of steel from other uses.

"Demand for structural shapes for freight cars and rehabilitation of new factory buildings, including such items as a new 13-million-dollar plant to be built in Ohio for the War Department, is so heavy that complete allocation for this product is likely."

Chicago Mills Busier

Iron Age reported that increases in production schedules in various steel areas were small and scattered. Pittsburgh remained at a 97 per cent of capacity; Chicago was up 1.5 to 104 per cent, Philadelphia district up ½ of 1 point to 91 per cent, and Cleveland 3 points higher ata 98 per cent.

Youngstown dropped 2 points to 95 per cent, Buffalo held at 90, and Whee ing ata 88. South Ohio River plants dropped 7 points to 98 per cent, while Eastern mills gained 8 points to 113.

C. & O. Railway Net Drops; Gross Heavier

Cleveland, Feb. 18 (AP).—Gross income of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway was up almost 20 per cent last month over January, 1941, but the road's net was less due to greater tax allocations. The gross was $12,081,883, comparing with $10,337,673 last year. Net amounted to $1,764,289, against $2,244,776 in January, 1041.

Tax accruals this year were $2,467,247—including Federal income and excess profits taxes of $1,575,992 for the month—against accruals of $1,454,443 in the 1941 month.

Buoyancy of Rails, Steels and Motors Helps Wavering Market to Recover

New York, Feb. 18.—Rails, steels and motors put some backbone into a wavering stock market today and thus permitted the list to erase part of an early decline.

The market apparently drew upon its internal resources for the uneven comeback effort since the news failed to provide any relief from the depressing fare that has been disturbing speculative circles since war started in the Pacific.

No selling of consequence appeared as prices extended the Tuesday slide and around midday certain of the pivotal groups stiffened. This suggested to market followers the recent hard blows to the United Nations in the Orient might have been discounted in large part by the February drop in share quotations.

Fractional gains and losses were about evenly distributed at the close. The Associated Press 60-stock index was unchanged at 36.5. The rail composite moved up .2 of a point.

Transfers made up one of the smallest totals since last June at 343,700 shares, compared with 389,100 the previous day.

The moderate revival of interest in rails was accompanied by hopeful talk about the carriers' prospects for gaining an Interstate Commerce Commission decision boosting freight rates. The ruling was expected soon. The roads asked for a 10 per cent rise in tariffs and Wall Street has felt that advances averaging around 5 to 7 per cent were likely.

American Telephone pushed ahead for a closing gain of 1¼ points in response to the declaration of the regular $2.25 a share quarterly dividend. When the stock was in a slump a month or so ago there were reports in Wall Street that increased taxes might prompt the company to cut the $9 annual rate which has been paid continuously since 1922. Telephone's 1941 earnings easily covered the dividend, but officials have mentioned taxes as an increasing factor for this year.

Chrysler stood up well throughout in the face of reduction in the dividend to $1 from $1.50 in the preceding four quarters.

Stocks finishing in the plus division included Bethlehem Steel, Kennecott, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Santa Fe, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Great Northern. Lower were American Can, Johns-Manville, Standard Oil (N. J.), and J. C. Penney.

Bonds and commodities were mixed. Chicago wheat closed off ⅛ to ½ of a cent a bushel and corn dipped ⅛ to ⅜. Hogs were down 10 to 15 cents. Cotton ended 5 cents a bale off to 10 cents higher.

American cyanamid, Cities Service and Glen Alden added small fractions in an irregular curb. American Gas and Sherwin Williams slipped. Transactions here were about 57,000 shares against 78,000 the day before.

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 46—Penalties for Delay

In the event of failure to make and file an income tax return as required by law within the prescribed time, a certain per cent of the amount of the tax is required to be added to the tax unless failure to file the return within the prescribed time is shown to the satisfaction of the commissioner to be due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.

The amount to be added to the tax is 5 per cent if the failure is for not more than 30 days, with an additional 5 per cent for each additional 30 days or fraction thereof during which failure to file a return continues, not to exceed 25 per cent in the aggregate.

A taxpayer who files a tardy return and wishes to avoid the addition to the tax for delinquency must make an affirmative showing of all facts, alleged as a reasonable cause for failure to file the return on time, in the form of an affidavit which should be attached to the return. Alleged ignorance of the law does not constitute reasonable cause for delinquency.

Taxpayers should make every effort to file their returns within the time prescribed by law and thus avoid the possibility of the additions to the tax for delinquency in filing returns.

D. C. Committee Acts Tomorrow On ABC Probe

The House District Committee will decide tomorrow whether to hold an all-out investigation of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Chairman Randolph announced yesterday that the committee will meet in executive session at 11 a. m. tomorrow "to discuss further the ABC Board and its administration."

Representative Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, said he was going to request an investigation after the Commissioners reappointed Thomas E. Lodge to head the board for another term early this month.

When no formal request to the committee followed, Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, said he desired a thorough investigation of the board and the sources of criticism of it.

The committee has had Hebert's request "under advisement" since he made it 10 days ago. Information from the Commissioners regarding the board will be considered at the executive session, it is understood.

BRAVE ON THE WARPATH

DID YOU KNOW THAT BRIG. GENERAL CLARENCE TINKER HEAD OF THE ARMY AIR FORCE IN HAWAII, IS DESCENDED FROM THE OSAGE INDIANS AND CAN TALK THEIR LANGUAGE?

NEW WORLD NECTAR

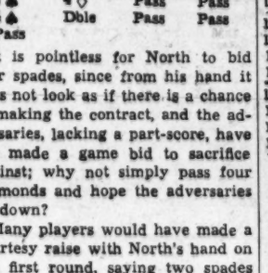
CABIN'D, CRIBB'D, CONFIN'D.

TO MOST OF US, THE NAME JOHN BURROUGHS IS SYNONYMOUS WITH OUT-OF-DOORS — BUT THE LATE GREAT NATURALIST SPENT TWENTY YEARS OF HIS LIFE WORKING INSIDE A U.S. TREASURY VAULT.

Contract Bridge

A spade hand—this one was pushed beyond its limits—is contributed by Mrs. C. C. A., who writes:

"Will you kindly look over these hands and give the correct bidding?" The way the bidding actually went caused quite an argument. These were the cards, with North dealer:



The bidding went:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
Pass	2 ◇	Dble	Pass
2 ♠	4 ◇	Pass	Pass
4 ♠	Dble	Pass	Pass
Pass

It is pointless for North to bid four spades, since from his hand it does not look as if there is a chance of making the contract, and the adversaries, lacking a part-score, have not made a game bid to sacrifice against; why not simply pass four diamonds and hope the adversaries go down?

Many players would have made a courtesy raise with North's hand on the first round, saying two spades over South's one spade; others would have said three spades rather than two spades after South's takeout double, to indicate real trump support. But it seems to us that the North player became interested in the bidding at a dangerously late stage.

Of course, four spades will do rather well if the trumps split and the ace of hearts is with East. Declarer can give up a heart, a diamond and a club, discard one or two clubs on heart honors and trump the rest.

We would not approve of a double of four diamonds by South even if the result would be most profitable. The risk entailed in doubling the opponents into game is too great to offset the rlatively small set to be scored.

Alan Reed has a great advantage over most of us. He can answer the telephone and find out who is calling without identifying himself—that is, unless he wants to.

It's all very simple, for him. Suppose you're telephoning Mr. Reed at his home when he doesn't want to be disturbed. A high-pitched voice may answer thusly: "Misser Leed's lesidence, Misser Leed's lesidence, Misser Leed's butrer speaking." And then, after a pause, while you explain who you are, you're likely to hear: "Velly, velly solly. I rook awr over and Misser Leed not here this afternoon. Velly, velly solly."

Or it may go something like this in a very Russian basso: "On dis hend is tukking Meester Reed's bottler," and then, after the explanation: "I sorch de place frawm oppstairs dawnstairs, ees novare findeeng Meester Reed." If you persist, the dialect gets thicker and thicker and finally you give up.

Now, Mr. Reed can do this where you and I couldn't, because Mr. Reed is one of the most skillful dialect comedians in the business—which is radio.

He can do 22 dialects, which are without flaw, for all practical purposes, which explains why he's one of the most prosperous actors in radio—well able to afford a butler, it must be added—and why he's heard regularly on such shows as Fred Allen's Thursday night opus, "Duffy's Tavern," "Meet Mr. Meek" and lots of others—being Irish, Italian, Russian, English, Greek, Brooklynese, French, or what have you.
